The Argos also named John Williams, former Hamilton Tiger-Cats defensive back released by Toronto earlier in the season, and former Ottawa Rough Riders tight end Tom Pullen to start in Sunday's game here against Calgary Stampeders.

L. J. Calyton, s speedy but inexperienced cornerback, will move to wide receiver, replacing Canadian rookie Al Charuk.

The Argos also put three players on five-day trials: Bill Belk, a defensive end who has been with San Francisco '49ers the last seven years, Nyke Horton, an offensive guard from UCLA via New England Patriots, and Rudy Vido, defensive end and linebacker also released by New England.

Tastes Grape!

Come celebrate the harvest season—tour the vineyards, crush grapes underfoot or taste the vintage under the stars. The lush Niagara Region plays host and all are welcome.

September 19-28, the Annual Niagara Grape and Wine Festival, centred in St. Catharines, caps the fruits of the summer's labours with high-spirited entertainment and good times. Toast the season and tickle your palate at one of the many open-air wine and cheese parties. See street theatre and costumed dancers, the famous Trinidad Steel Band, baton twirling, a gala coronation ball and the finest and one of the best attended street parades in Canada. While in the region, picnic on the pick of the crop at an orchardside fruit stand. Take in Caesar and Cleopatra at the Shaw Festival in historic and picturesque Niagara-on-the-Lake—you'd be well advised to book in advance. Or venture a little farther to Niagara Falls itself, with its many public gardens and attractions and amusements. The Niagara Region offers a whole bunch of reasons to visit in the fall.

Expo Bats Boom

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Jorgensen came within a measure of the promise held for him in the 1975 season as Montreal Expos outslugged Chicago Cubs 9-6 in a National League baseball game Friday night.

Jorgensen slammed a three-run home run and contributed a run-scoring single as the Expos pulled within four games of the fifth-place Cubs in the East Division.

Jorgensen went four-for-four with a walk and counted the performance among his better this year.

"There were some lucky ones in those hits—a couple I guess," Jorgensen said after his stellar night. "I don't know if they really even up, but I'll take them."

The fine-fielding first baseman hit .310 in 131 games last year but had seen his record drop to a .243 batting average in 136 games this year going into the game.

"The home run wasn't lucky though. It was a slider and it was lucky just that the fence wasn't a little longer. It was a little frustrating at times this year, but this was good."

Tim Foli and Pete Mackanin also slammed homers in the game for Montreal. Foli's was his first since Sept. 23, 1973, and Mackanin's was his 11th of the year and his 11th solo shot.

"It's a tough-luck thing, and I haven't given up hope," said Mackanin. "We have a few games to go, and I hope to hit one with a man on yet."

Jerry White contributed two RBI singles and Mackanin a sacrifice fly.

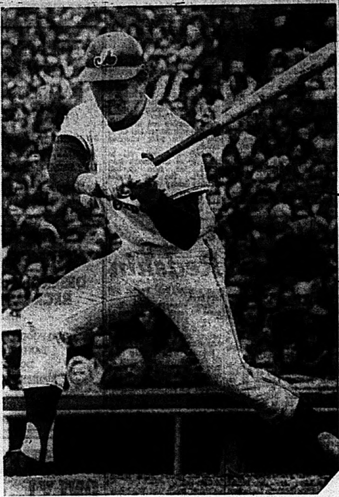
Andy Thornton's two-run single keyed a four-run fifth inning for Chicago, when Rick Monday had an RBI double and Manny Trillo a run-scoring hit.

The Cubs got one run in the first on consecutive doubles by Don Kessinger and Monday. They scored their final run in the ninth on an RBI hit by Jerry Morales, but it was the only run surrendered by winner Dale Murray, 13-8.

He bolstered his reputation as Montreal's No. 1 reliever, bailing out starter Steve Rogers in the seventh. Starter Bill Bonham took the loss for Chicago and fell to 13-14.

Jose Cardenal grabbed his 32nd stolen base of the year and equalled a modern single-season Cubs record before 5,201 fans, the second-lowest Montreal crowd of the year.

Rick Reuschel, 10-16, goes for the Cubs today against Don Carrithers, 3-3.



Mike Jorgensen – Lives Up to Expectations

Borg Given Run By Chilean

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Chile and Sweden were tied 1-1 Friday after the first day of their Davis Cup tennis semi-finals at this southern seaside summer resort.

The day passed without incident, although scores of buses loaded with demonstrators were converging here from various parts of Sweden.

Swedish ace Bjorn Borg had unexpected trouble in beating Chile's Patricio Cornejo, who took the first set before succumbing to the teen-age star's increasing pressure.

Borg won 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3 in two and a half hours. A rain shower briefly interrupted the match in the second set.

In the second match, Chile's Jaime Fillol trounced Sweden's No. 2, Birger Andersson, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 in only 90 minutes. Fillol seemed tense but concentrated on his play, despite death threats he received before the match from Chilean junta opponents.

The Chilean non-playing captain, Luis Ayala, twice winner of the Baastad Open some 15 years ago, said he was very satisfied as both Chilean players made a strong showing.

He also was satisfied that the day was free of incidents, the 1,300-strong police army only having to take care of an ordinary drunkard.

In today's doubles match Fillol and Cornejo, rated among the world's best doubles pairs, face Borg and veteran Ove Bengtsson as clear favorites. The Swedes have had no success as doubles players.

No Chilean players were available for comments after the heavily guarded matches. Police authorities do not allow the players outside the iron ring around the stadium area where they share a villa with the Swedish team.

Forty buses with an estimated 1,500 demonstrators from Goteborg alone were reported rolling toward Baastad today for a demonstration by the "Chile Committee" action group with the motto "Stop the Match."

Boston and Oakland Peek Over Shoulders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If you're in first place this late in the baseball season, you keep looking over your shoulder to see if anybody's gaining on you.

"Everybody's looking at the scoreboard," says Boston Red Sox third baseman Rico Petrocelli. "We're looking at it just like they (Baltimore Orioles) are looking at it.

"But I'm not concerned. We just worry about our game."

There wasn't much to worry about Friday night, as the Red Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 7-5 to maintain their 4½-game lead over second-place Baltimore Orioles in the American League East.

Checking the scoreboard, the Red Sox would have seen that second-place Baltimore Orioles kept pace with a 6-5 win over Milwaukee Brewers.

RICO PETROCELLI

Friday's victory reduced Boston's "magic" number to six for a division pennant—any total of six Red Sox wins or Baltimore losses will end another pennant race.

The champagne party that goes with a pennant win occupies Kansas City first baseman John Mayberry as Oakland A's come close to eliminating the Royals and taking a fifth consecutive crown in the West.

"We're just playing for pride now," he said after the Royals beat the A's 5-4 but stayed seven games behind first-place Oakland with nine games left. "We don't want them drinking champagne in our town."

Still, the A's' "magic" number stood at three as the clubs prepared for tonight's night game.

In Friday's other American League games, Texas Rangers blasted Chicago White Sox 10-6, Cleveland Indians tripped New York Yankees 3-2, and California Angels edged Minnesota Twins 1-0.

Petrocelli hit a two-run single in the fifth inning to break a 4-4 tie and propel Boston over Detroit in a game twice delayed by rain.

The Red Sox scored four runs in the first inning off Ray Bare on five singles and a walk, but Detroit replied with three runs.

Al Cowens' two-run single in the seventh inning helped Kansas City nip Oakland. Steve Busby, 18-12, gave up eight hits to the A's, who committed three errors. In the top of the seventh, Joe Rudi's 19th homer of the season, scoring Gene Tenace ahead of him, had pulled the A's into a 4-3 lead.

"We've just got to go out and play it day by day," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver after the Orioles topped the Brewers. "They (Boston) have to win seven out of 10. We're going out and try to win every game we play."

Rookie pinch-hitter Royle Stillman walked with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to win the game and pick up his first career run batted in.

JOHN MAYBERRY

Tom Grieve blasted his 14th homer of the year and Mike Hargrove drove in three runs to lead Texas over Chicago.

Fritz Peterson picked up his 10th consecutive pitching triumph as Alan Ashby's two-run single carried Cleveland past New York and Catfish Hunter.

Minnesota wasted 12 hits and a three-hitter by Bert Blyleven in dropping its game to California.

Orioles Follow Doctor's Orders

NAIROBI (Reuter) — All Baltimore Orioles have to do to win the American League baseball East pennant is stop making love, get up early and take the field with magic charms.

These are the latest instructions from a Kenyan witchdoctor, John Agunga, who was hired by Baltimore disc jockey Johnny Walker last weekend to put a hex on the division-leading Boston Red Sox.

Since his services were acquired, Boston's lead has been cut to 4½ games.

The most important of his latest instructions is that on the night before their remaining games, the Orioles' players, reserves, club officials—and Walker himself—must refrain from sex. If they are staying with their wives, they must sleep in separate beds.

The second condition is that the Orioles must get up very early so as to be out of bed before their opponents—6 a.m. or earlier, if necessary.

The third requirement is that a team member carry certain magic objects on to the field during games. The objects are black powder and human hair the witchdoctor gave Walker on Sunday, and a baseball on which he has cast the spell.

The letter containing the instructions will be forwarded to Baltimore as soon as it has been translated from Swahili.

The witchdoctor, who has been hired by several Kenyan soccer teams, says he has found that if the other side knows it is being bewitched, trouble sometimes breaks out among its players and or supporters and may lead to riots.

Kenyan soccer games frequently end in riots.

SOVIET—U.S. PACT

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The United States and Soviet Union signed a five-year agreement Friday on expanding sports competions which will include more exchanges of youth teams.

Cards, Mets, Willie Right Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Friday night was a bad night for Willie Stargell but a good night for Pittsburgh Pirates and a goodbye for St. Louis Cardinals and New York Mets.

Stargell was knocked out in a collision with team-mate Dave Parker during Pittsburgh's 7-1 victory over the Cardinals in a National League baseball game.

While Stargell was knocked out of the game, the Cardinals and Mets were knocked out of the National League East pennant race, leaving only Philadelphia Phillies with a chance of catching the Pirates.

After taking care of the Cardinals, the Pirates piled into their dressing room in a jovial mood. The radio blared and Richie Zisk wore a grin and a red knit cap that bore the Phillies' emblem.

Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh, who hardly ever pays attention to other games, was concerned about the New York-Philadelphia game.

"Well, our game is over," he said. "How are the Phillies doing?"

"What inning is it?" asked Zisk.

"What's the score?" asked relief pitcher Dave Giusti.

The score eventually turned out to be 4-3 in favor of the Phillies, but it didn't dampen the Pirates' spirits.

"Only four to go," said several Pirates, pointing to their "magic" number for winning the East championship. Any combination of Pittsburgh victories and Philadelphia defeats adding up to four will eliminate the Phillies.

In Friday's other National League games, Montreal Expos whipped Chicago Cubs 9-6, Cincinnati Reds defeated Atlanta Braves 7-6, Houston Astros trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5 and San Francisco Giants beat San Diego Padres 3-1.

Ed Kirkpatrick, put in the game after Stargell was stunned, hit a three-run homer to help Pittsburgh beat St. Louis. Starting pitcher Ken Brett and reliever Ramon Hernandez combined on a seven-hitter for the Pirates, 8-5 against the Cardinals this season.

Dick Allen, who earlier tied the game with a double, hit a home run in the eighth inning to give Philadelphia its victory over New York and break a tie that had lasted from the sixth inning, when Allen doubled home Jay Johnstone from second base.

Reliever Tug McGraw, 9-5, who held the Mets hitless over the final three innings, was the winner. Skip Lockwood, who relieved Tom Seaver and gave up Allen's homer, was the loser.

ED KIRKPATRICK

Pete Mackanin hit his 11th home run and later lofted a sacrifice fly for the go-ahead run in the seventh inning as Montreal beat Chicago.

A solo home run by Dave Concepcion and three-run double by Terry Crowley highlighted a five-run Cincinnati fifth inning and lifted the Reds over Atlanta.

Ken Boswell's two-out pinch single in the 12th inning scored Milt May with the winning run as Houston trimmed Los Angeles.

TERRY CROWLEY

Gary Matthews' three-run homer in the first inning lifted San Francisco past San Diego, denying Randy Jones his 20th victory of the season.

Killer Whale Hunters Earn $100,000 a Prey

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — Priceless sea otter pelts lured 18th-century merchants to British Columbia's coast but today's profit-minded zoo and aquarium proprietors have discovered an even more valuable resource—killer whales.

Fetching prices of up to 100,000, the killer whale is becoming the feature attraction at oceanaria all over the world.

It's doubtful the killer whale will suffer the same fate as B.C.'s sea otter, driven to extinction in the early 1800s, because the Canadian government is tightening controls on trapping the huge mammals for public display.

Canada's western regional director of fisheries, under existing policy, makes all decisions regarding hunting permits. Trapping expeditions are carried out only by experienced crews and are closely watched by the federal environment department.

A new killer whale policy is expected to be adopted within the next year with the possibility of a complete ban on capturing the animals.

"The government is concerned that not too many be taken, that the herds not be depleted," said Mike Bigg, a marine mammologist with the federal Pacific Biological Station at Nanaimo.

Dr. Bigg, 35, heads a four-year program under which killer-whale movements between Puget Sound and the Queen Charlotte Islands are monitored. The purpose of the project is to determine the population of the species so the government can decide whether they are being over-harvested.

"There is nowhere else in the world, to our knowledge, that killer whales are so frequently seen by the general public," he said, "so it's a rather unique species to this area."

The project so far has been successful but results were rather disappointing. It was originally thought there were several hundred killer whales roaming Canada's western seas but Dr. Bigg now estimates the total population at only 200 to 250.

Much of the program's success can be attributed to public co-operation, Dr. Bigg says.

"The first three years of our work involved asking mariners to record sightings of killer whales in various parts of the province's coastal waters and we derived ball-park figures of the abundance of the animal in the province on that basis.

"But it's not a particularly accurate method so we weren't 100-per-cent satisfied with our results."

The biological station sent out 16,000 questionnaires to B.C.'s various marine outlets each year from 171 to 1973, asking boaters to watch for killer whales on specific days. About 500 replied.

"We weren't particularly confident at the time because it's difficult for people to count these animals in the water without experience. So we wanted to refine our census techniques and this we did by luckily observing an individual identifying mark on whales."

It was found the whales could be distinguished by permanent nicks on their dorsal fins, Dr. Bigg said, and in 1972 his staff began photographing the fins.

The photography technique was expanded in 1973 and the public was asked to telephone the biology station if whales were spotted. Scientists would then dispatch a boat to the area and pictures of the dorsal fins would be taken.

"From Aug. 1 to 10, 1974, we had seven boats strategically placed. We had boats off Victoria in the Gulf Islands, Vancouver, Sechelt, Denman Island, Campbell River, Stuart Island and Johnstone Strait, so we were really covering a big area."

A total of 90 whales were seen during that period and there now are observers located along various parts of B.C.'s coast who will continue to report sightings until the end of 1975 when the project ends, he said.

The project may carry into the early part of 1976 but Dr. Bigg said he hopes there will be enough information available by the end of the year for the federal government to determine a new policy on killer whale harvesting.

Although the government is worried that killer whales may become overexploited, he said, there is some educational value to confining the creatures in aquariums.

Hong Kong Has Pirates

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Hong Kong, a haven for seafaring pirates centuries ago, is gaining a reputation as a paradise for unscrupulous commercial pirates.

These modern pirates are making fortunes every year by selling inferior goods bearing the labels of genuine products.

The pirated goods range from consumer items like toilet paper, detergents and foodstuffs to French brandy, Swiss watches, pop records and tapes.

"Pirates here will copy anything that sells and earns them a quick dollar," a senior official of the commerce and industry department said.

And on a smaller level it is not uncommon to hear of housewives being cheated by shopkeepers. Butchers injecting water into beef to make it heavier and peanut oil being mixed with lard are regular complaints.

Because of the increasing menace and the resulting blot on Hong Kong's reputation, the authorities are coming down harder on these unethical practices.

Officials are concentrating mainly on the manufacturers of pirated cassette tapes and records and the makers of spurious Swiss watches.

Copied tapes and records sell like hotcakes here. Professional institutions estimate the annual turnover on these products is more than $2 million.

Dave Young, director for the Asian and Pacific area of the London-based International Federation of Producers of Phonograms and Videograms, said that, because of co-operation between his organization and the authorities, the situation now is improving.

"But the more we're getting into it, the deeper the problem seems to get."

A survey by the federation showed that record shops in several districts displayed 70 per cent pirated tapes and discs but in later findings the trend appeared to have been reversed.

Young said music piracy is lucrative because operators usually make 100 per cent profit by selling pirated tapes to retail outlets.

Retailers sell each pirated tape for a bit more than $1 whereas an imported original recording goes for $5.

Want a home with our help?

Take this ad to your Builder or Lender.

Before you start, let's make one thing clear. This help applies to moderate-income families with at least one child. Family income cannot exceed a certain level, nor can we help you buy a home more expensive than a set maximum.

These income and house price maximums vary considerably, depending upon where you live in Canada. In Toronto, for example, the maximum family income for eligibility is as high as $20,000. Similarly, maximum house prices range up to $43,000 in high cost areas. To find out the maximums for your area, send in this coupon.

So, for this assistance, you've got to have a family, earn an average income, and buy a new, reasonable-cost home. In those cities where costs are highest, these homes are likely to be town houses or condominiums.

How do we help you? In two ways.

First, we'll reduce your down payment to as little as 5% by insuring your loan with your bank, trust or insurance company, for up to 95% of house value.

Second, we'll subsidize your monthly mortgage payments up to a maximum of $100 a month, or $1,200 annually.

The aim of the subsidy is to ensure that you pay only about 25% of your family income on monthly mortgage payments.

Now, how do you take advantage of our help?

First, take this ad with you to your local builder. He will show you his choice of homes under the house-price maximum. Then, through him, apply for federal government assistance.

If, on the other hand, you want to build your own home, using National Housing Act standards, or hire your own builder to build it, then you'll go to a bank, trust or insurance company, or other lender to raise the mortgage money. Then, if you're eligible, apply for federal government assistance through your lender.

For further details about this and other programs of federal and provincial assistance in buying a home, contact your local C.M.H.C. Office or builders' association member.

IN MEMORIAM

YOUNG — In loving memory of a loved father, Thomas Cecil (Cy) Young who departed September 21, 1969.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
There's not a day, dear father,
We do not think of you.

—Loved and remembered by son Peter, daughter-in-law Janet.

DI TOMASO — In loving memory of my dear husband and our dear father, Francesco Di Tomaso who passed away Sept. 21, 1967.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
But in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

—Sadly missed by wife Maria, daughter, Antoinetta and sons Pat, Dominic and Nick and Umberto.

YOUNG, Thomas Cecil (Cy) — Six years ago, September 21, 1969.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
Just the love and sweet devotion,
Of one who thinks of you.

—Always remembered by daughter Debbie.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear father Thomas Cecil (Cy) Young who passed away Sept. 21, 1969.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

—Sadly missed by daughter Betty and family.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear husband Thomas Cecil (Cy) Young who passed away September 21st, 1969.

There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.

—Sadly missed by wife Kay.

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Thomas Cecil (Cy) Young who passed away six years ago today, Sept. 21st, 1969.

God looked around His garden,
And found an empty place,
And looked down on earth,
And saw your tired face,
He put His arms around you,
And lifted you to rest,
God's garden must be beautiful,
For He takes only the best.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Margaret, son-in-law Les and grandsons Bobby and Timmy Reid.

MARINOFF, Mildred — Who passed away September 20, 1973.

Years of striving, little of play,
Loving, giving, the whole of the way,
A cherished smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest mother the world could hold.
Happy memories fond and true,
From us who thought the world of you.

—Lovingly remembered by husband Vic, daughters Shirley and Marie, grandsons Michael, Victor and John.

DODDS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Maxwell who left us on September 21, 1974.

Wonderful memories woven in gold,
This is a picture we tenderly hold,
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept,
To love, to cherish, to never forget.

—Sadly missed by Vera and Helen.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. F. Robson Clarke, Belleville, are happy to announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Beth, to Mr. Stanley Wayne Wagstaff, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Stanley Wagstaff, Qualicum Beach, British Columbia. The wedding will take place on Saturday, October 11, 1975, in Christ Church, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fish, Belleville, Ontario, wish to announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Nancy Jill Luanne to Dennis Michael eldest son of Mr. and Mrs Michael Flesch, R.R. 4, Belleville, Ontario. The marriage to take place October 11th at 4.00 p.m. in College Hill United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Dusen, of Madoc will be at home to friends, relatives and neighbors on the occasion of their 45th wedding anniversary on Sunday, September 28th, 1975 from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Hugh McCullough wish to thank neighbors and friends for the many kindnesses shown to them during the recent loss of a dear husband and father. Grateful thanks to Doctor Derry of Madoc, the Madoc detachment of the OPP, and also fellow employees of Northern Electric.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my family, relatives, friends and neighbors for flowers, cards, gifts, also personal visits and phone calls, while undergoing surgery in Belleville General Hospital and since my return home. Special thanks to Father Stitt, Dr. Peter Scott and Dr. Pearce. Also to the nurses and staff on 5th level for making my stay as pleasant as possible.

Margaret Baker,
Tweed, Ont.

On behalf of the late Rodney Newton's family, we would like to thank friends for donations and floral tributes due to the recent loss of a loving father and grandfather. Thanks to Hastings Manor where Mr. Newton resided for the past two years. A special thanks to the doctors, clergymen, nurses of 8th level, 7th level and Intensive Care Unit of the Belleville General Hospital. Also to Canon Tett, the Canadian Legion members and Bush's Funeral Home on the event of Mr. Newton's death.

Costs less than you would think.

Want The Best?

Then consider a new home in Fenwood Gardens. Built by Swan Construction. A flick of a switch reverses the heat pump from heating to air conditioning. The circulating air is electronically filtered. You'll like the family room with floor to ceiling fireplace. There are four bedrooms.

Hard To Leave

Recreation room with floor to ceiling fireplace, wet bar and lower level washroom are offered in this hi-ranch bungalow on Sunningdale Drive. There's no sign up but we will be happy to take you there to see a beautifully decorated home with attached 2 car garage on a well landscaped lot. Please call.

No Mortgage Worry!

$6,000.00 down — no qualifying necessary — assume the existing mortgage at 11% with monthly payments of $318.00 including principal, interest and taxes. This delightful three bedroom split level is worth every cent of the asking price of $36,900.00.

Snakes Stolen

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (CP) — Thieves broke into a manor house and stole several items, including a wooden case containing 45 deadly live snakes from the Congo. Police were broadcasting to warn the burglars against opening the case.

To Take Risk

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (CP) — A travel agent was advertising an African safari with the line: "You'll be just as safe as you are in your own home." Scrawled across one of the brochures someone had written: "That's the risk you have to take."

Developed

TOKYO, Japan (Reuter) — A Japanese company has started commercial production of a new artificial kidney, which it says is the most efficient in the world. The new kidney, which is to cost between $42 and $63, is only about 12 inches long, about one-third the length of the conventional artificial kidneys.

Your Weekend Horoscope

BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, Sept. 21

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be highly protective of your self-interests early in the day, but will soon realize you're being too self-centered. Your better instincts will take over.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Though you could be inconvenienced, you'll feel better if you let compassion rule your actions even if a small personal loss is involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Gentle methods will achieve things for you today that flexing your muscles or raising your voice could never hope to accomplish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Praise or recognition are not nearly as important to you today as playing the game by your usually high standards, and enhancing your image.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Bolster your belief in things spiritual today by seeking inspiration, or mediating quietly on your goals and ambitions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to bog yourself down with business matters. Put the account books away. Go off and enjoy yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can make a fine impression on your mate today if you're willing to forego your interests and do the things she'd like to do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Stick to your hunches involving money today. If your instincts warn you about a certain person, it's best not to deal with him.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Being around larger groups today won't give you the excitement it usually generates. You're better off in quiet pursuits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't invite anyone to your house today unless you sincerely want their company. They'll take you up on it and a boring day will ensue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Surround yourself today with people who are highly creative and whose conversation is light and inspirational. Avoid those who favor heavy topics.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It will be time well spent if you take a few minutes to evaluate your goals for the coming week. Assign priorities. Stick to them.

For Monday, Sept. 22

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your judgment won't be working as effectively as your luck will today. Attempt to synchronize them.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Today will be materially profitable for you, if you don't gum things up. Don't make last-minute changes in your dealings.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) This will be a fun day. It could also be a rewarding one, if you use wisely some information that will be passed on to you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Goals of importance can be achieved today, but you must keep your impatience in check. Stay with the plan you've mapped out.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your imagination is very keen. Ideas you'll conceive will be good ones. Just be sure you don't overlook some small details.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to be pennywise and pound foolish today in your ventures. Holding out for a few extra

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll be lucky through your close associates, except in matters where money is involved. Don't mix business with pleasure.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a good worker today, provided you don't have people looking over your shoulder. Work alone if possible.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your judgment is better today than advice from a well-meaning friend. Listen to what he says, but don't discount your own insights.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't put off doing that which is important till the last minute. Your chances of success are best early in the day.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A prudent course for you to pursue today is to protect your interests before worrying about another's. You can do this without being selfish.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) There's no reason to share your good fortune at this time with one who had no hand in it. However, be generous with those who did.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Paul Cromelin shows todays hand as an example of what happens when beginners play hands that have not been specially prepared for them. South's jump to two spades was correct in expert standard American bidding, but most beginners would just bid one spade. However, four spades was the normal contract to reach.

Paul explains typical student's play by South cashing dummy's ace, king of diamonds and ace of clubs; leading a spade to the 10; ruffing a club; drawing trumps with a second finesse; ruffing a diamond with dummy's last trump; leading a heart to the queen; losing two hearts and a diamond and exulting, "I made it."

The principle of play he taught from the hand was that in general you should work on your longest side suit. It is hearts, so at trick two South should lead the nine of spades, let it ride, draw trumps and lead a heart toward dummy's king.

Then a heart back toward his hand with the low heart, not the queen being played. This is the so-called automatic finesse and succeeds since West must play the ace. After this start South makes six, not a mere four.

Ask the Jacobys

An Alberta reader wants to know what he should bid with: ♠K 9 7 ♥K J 3 ♦A Q 7 6 ♣K Q 10 after the player to his right dealt and opened three hearts.

The answer is that he should bid three notrump. No guarantee goes with this, but if partner can produce just a few cards the contract should wheel in. Of course, a business double would be nice, but in this case the double would be for takeout.

THE UNEXPLAINED
by Allen Spraggett

The Lost Planet

Copyright 1975, Toronto Sun Syndicate

We've all heard about lost children, lost ships, lost this or that.

But a lost planet?

Well, it's a fact that for a period of more than a century several astronomers reported sighting a planet which was closer to the sun than Mercury (considered in orthodox astronomy the sun's nearest neighbor). This newcomer was christened Vulcan.

Though sightings of this planetary johnny-come-lately were reported as far back as the early 18th century, the most impressive sighting was on March 26, 1959 by a French physicain and amateur astronomer named Marcel Lescarbault. He said that through his telescope he had observed an "intra-Mercurial' planet."

As an amateur, Lescarbault wouldn't have been taken too seriously except for the support of one of the world's most respected astronomers — Urbain J.J. Leverrier. Revered as co-discoverer of Neptune, he was then director of the Paris Observatory.

Leverrier already had become convinced on theoretical grounds that there was an undiscovered small planet revolving somewhere in the space between Mercury and the sun. He listened to Lescarbault's story with an open mind.

The physicain-astronomer described how he had seen a round black spot, apparently a planet, traversing the upper part of the sun's face on a path which slanted upwards. It had remained in view for about an hour and 15 minutes, during which time it crossed less than a quarter of the sun's diameter.

After examining Lescarbault's records the great Leverrier announced to the world that the expected new member of the solar system (expected by him, at any rate) had been discovered. On Leverrier's recommendation, the amateur, Lescarbault, was decorated with the Legion of Honor for his discovery.

Lescarbault also got to name the new planet. Since it was so clsoe to the sun's inferno he picked Vulcan, after the Roman fire-god.

Leverrier calculated the planet's average distance from the sun as 13 million miles (compared to Mercury's 36 million) and its orbital period (the time required to circle the sun) at 19 days and 17 hours.

Reported sightings of Vulcan can be traced back as far as March 27, 1720 when a French astronomer, Alischer, said he had seen a large body transiting the face of the sun. He reported sighting the same body almost a year later on March 15, 1721.

In 1784, on March 25, a German astronomer, Fritsch, said he had watched a huge mass move across the sun's blazing disk. He reported a second sighting on October 10. 1802.

On October, 8, 1819 another German astronomer at Augsburg, Stark by name, sighted a planet transiting the sun. In 1847, on October 11, still another German, named Schnidt, observed the new planet through his telescope.

Two English astronomers, Lowe and Sidebotham, independently sighted a planetary object crossing the sun on March 12, 1849. And a Dr. Ritter of Germany watched the same phenomenon through his telescope on June 11, 1855.

In 1859 came the already mentioned sighting by Lescarbault. Then in 1897, on February 16, astronomers at Stuttgart said they had observed Vulcan, as did astronomers at Weibaden, Germany on February the following year.

The most recent recorded sighting of the alleged new planet was by an American, a Capt. Isbister, from a ship called the Dalgonar about 250 miles off the north California coast. The date was June 25, 1907.

Isbister said that while taking the non navigational readings with his sextant he noticed 'a very large spot on the disk of the sun. The spot was of immense size and totally unlike the commoner sunspots" which the captain had seed frequently over the years.

The giant spot, said Isbister, "moved with easily noticeable speed and passed off the sun's face late in the afternoon."

The American's estimate of the time the planet took to cross the sun's disk — about four hours — tallied with that of other observers.

There was even published a Vulcan exphemeris (which is a catalogue of celestial longitudes for a given planet on any given date). According to this ephemeris on January 19, 1907 Vulcan was located at 29 degrees of the zodiacal sign Capricorn; on July 14 of that year at 21 degrees Cancer; and on December 18 at 26 degrees Sagittarius.

In July 1920 Prof. L.H. Weston of Washington, D.C. published a complete set of tables of Vulcan's positions in relation to the sun (called by astronomers, "heliocentric" longtitude). These tables are a very curious document, charting as they do the movements of a planet which today has vanished from the sky.

If it was ever there.

But if it wasn't there, what did those astronomers see? Were they all guilty of misobservation, hallucination or imbibing too freely of the grape before peering through their telescopes?

Or is it possible that a runaway planet, temporarily captured by the sun, has escaped its orbit and careened into the darkness of outer space?

Vulcan, the planet that disappeared, or perhaps never was, is definitely part of the unexplained.

Doors Computerized

PARIS (Reuter) — Hard times are on the way for hotel thieves with the introduction of a computerized system which unlocks doors by computer cards. To enter a room, a guest inserts the card into a slot which replaces the lock. Every guest will be issued a new card bearing a different code to open the door.

Auto Correct Art

Andre Dion, a Quebec inventor, has developed a new teaching aid, Auto Correct Art, and found along the way that success in marketing a new idea comes slowly. While he has met with some success — 100 copies sold to the Chomedy de Laval school commission, another 100 purchased by the Verdun commission in Montreal — he is still waiting for major purchasers. The inventor says it is easier to market an educational product in Ontario than in Quebec because of the speed with which the Ontario educational department processes new ideas. (CP Photo)

Life Under Water A Distant Dream

By VIVIAN BROWN
The Associated Press

If you've been thinking about that alternative to a polluted earth's surface—an aqua house in the deep, decorated perhaps with the latest in sea shells and where shrimp can be raked up for breakfast—you'd better forget it.

A more practical idea would be to take care of what you have outside your window, says Andy Pruna, 34, who has lived under water and doesn't think you would like it or adapt to it.

"Even though it is talked about, we are a long way from living under water. There are too many difficulties and it would be too expensive. Then, too, it would be psychologically and physiologically impossible for the majority to adapt. We know little about human behavior for extended periods in different environments.

"It would take many generations to develop the mental adaptability to live under water, which is much like living in a cave, although I don't think man is beyond the capability."

People living in New York or other crowded cities might be more adaptable than those who have been used to open spaces. But, who knows what would happen if they could build cities under water?"

Under water we are dependent on the surface for air, electricity and other things, he said, noting that we might set up generators but would really never get around to exploring those possibilities unless we had to.

A naturalist, oceanographer and photographer, Pruna suggested that people should worry about keeping the earth from more pollution. In fact, the ocean is "becoming polluted faster than anything else." In the Florida keys and other areas many fish had been fished out or had vanished.

"The imbalance occurring in the water is similar to what man is creating on the surface by destroying natural habitats," Pruna contended.

Financier Sues RCMP $10 Million for Raids

OTTAWA (CP) — Alleging unauthorized seizure of documents in a series of RCMP raids, financier John C. Doyle and Canadian Javelin Ltd. last year sued three Mounties in Newfoundland for $10 million.

The suit fizzled out but it indicates the kind of problems the RCMP commercial crime squad may face in complex investigations involving millions of dollars and influential figures

Sometimes the alleged offenders counter with criminal charges against a key witness.

"They haven't been getting very far but they do try to frighten the witnesses," says Supt. Henry Jensen, the cool 41-year-old who has developed the unit since 1967.

And politics often intrude. RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon spent two days last winter assuring the Commons justice committee that there had been no government interference in RCMP investigation of the Hamilton Harbor case, which has put a harbor commissioner and a bank consultant in prison on kickback charges and led to contract fraud charges against 12 prominent dredging executives and 12 dredging companies.

The Newfoundland Javelin case illustrates the scope and complexity of these cases, especially when politics are involved. That case came into the open in 1972 after Joseph Smallwood's Liberal government, in office since Newfoundland joined Confederation in 1949, was defeated.

The new Conservative government took over Canadian linerboard mill at Stephenville.

Javelin countered with a claim for $2 million it said it had paid a company in Liechtenstein, a European principality (population 22,000) that is home address for 18,000 corporations, for 10,300 square miles of timber rights in southern Labrador.

Late in 1972, RCMP raided Javelin offices and the homes of Mr. Smallwood and Oliver Vardy, deputy minister of development in the Smallwood government. Warrants authorizing the raids referred to the granting, without legislative authority, of the timber stands.

Charges were placed a year later against Mr. Doyle and Mr. Vardy. They involved $540,000 allegedly paid to Mr. Vardy while he was a government employee.

Mr. Vardy was arrested in Panama shortly after the charges were placed and returned to Miami, where he faces an extradition hearing in early October after two years of fighting the prospect in court.

The battle is one cited in Canada's recent call for smoother extradition procedures. The case can't go to court until Mr. Vardy returns. Mr. Doyle, free on bail, spent a weekend in a St. John's jail before being charged and at one point was confined by bail conditions to Newfoundland.

These are only the preliminaries of perhaps the most spectacular of the 2,600 cases the commercial crime section is investigating. Investigators say it reaches not only into Newfoundland's political and financial community but Montreal financial circles as well.

Mr. Smallwood, 75, came out of retirement this year to form the Liberal Reform Party of Newfoundland, with apparently strong financial backing.

The involvement of politics in the Javelin case had already been illustrated by Mr. Smallwood and Mr. Vardy when they suggested in 1972 that RCMP raids on their homes were part of a "witch-hunt" by the new provincial government.

This suggestion also points up the key role the attorney-general of a province plays in initiating or acting upon such investigations.

The RCMP may initiate an investigation if they have reasonable cause to believe a crime has been committed. This belief may be based on information supplied not only by an attorney-general but by any citizen.

However, it is the attorney-general who decides what charges, if any, will be placed. This is where politics really enters the picture.

"We're accountable to the attorneys-general," says Supt. Jensen, now on leave while studying at the National Defence College in Kingston, Ont.

"But no one can really stop an investigation. I don't think they would dare."

"They can," he concedes, "stop it at the prosecution stage, if the attorney-general feels this is in the public interest. The attorney-general is accountable to his parliament and the people."

This raises the question of what happens when a government finds it must prosecute itself. The question becomes more pressing as more and more investigations involve at worst corruption within politics and at best well-connected and influential corporate figures.

Supt. Jensen suggests that good reporting by newspapers, radio and television can help ensure that public pressure is brought to bear upon a government facing a tough or embarrassing decision on prosecution.

FBI Checks SLA Links

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Federal investigators are checking for possible links between the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) and terrorist bombings around this city in the last 20 months, in the wake of the capture of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst.

FBI agent Charles Bates said evidence — including explosives gathered found Thursday when Miss Hearst and three comrades were captured—is being compared with evidence on recent bombings.

Although Bates said no links have yet been established between the bombings and the SLA, responsibility for at least 15 of the bombings has been claimed by a group calling itself the New World Libertaion Front (NWLF). That group is believed to have been first mentioned in a "communique" from William Harris, arrested last Thursday.

Four pipe bombs were reported found in the apartment occupied by Harris and his wife Emily. The Harrises were taken into custody shortly before the arrests of Miss Hearst and fellow radical Wendy Yoshimura, sought on a charge of possessing explosives.

Harris, an SLA member believed to have travelled with Miss Hearst for much of the last 19 months, said in a taped communique in June, 1974, that the remnants of the SLA had become the NWLF.

Hunt Ordered to Kill Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post reports that Howard Hunt has told associates he was once ordered to assassinate columnist Jack Anderson, but the order was cancelled at the last minute.

In a story by Bob Woodward, quoting reliable sources, the Post says Hunt told associates that the order came in 1971 or 1972 from a senior official in the White House.

"I just didn't believe that it would be possible that the (former president Richard) Nixon administration, that even with some of the remarkable things that we've heard, some of the remarkable things that we didn't think would be possible, I didn't believe that anyone would seriously suggest murder," Anderson said Sunday.

The Post quotes Hunt's lawyer, William Snyder, as saying Hunt would have no comment on the story.

The "alleged plan involved the use of a poison to be obtained from a former CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) physician . . . who added that the poison was a variety that would leave no trace during a routine medical examination or autopsy," the Post quotes sources as saying.

Hunt, a former agent for the CIA, is serving a prison term in Florida after pleading guilty in 1973 to charges resulting from the Watergate break-in incident, in which he participated. He is reported to have disclosed the Anderson murder order to associates after the 1972 Watergate incident.

The newspaper says Hunt told the sources that Anderson was to be slain because he was publishing national security information in his column based on top secret documents Anderson had obtained.

Beirut Fighting Continues

Arab Mediators Fail

BEIRUT (AP) — Street fighting exploded again in Beirut's eastern suburbs today despite efforts of high-level Syrian mediators to make effective a weekend ceasefire in the communal Lebanese warfare.

Moslem leftists and right-wing Christians fought with machine-guns, mortars and grenades. Snipers fired at passers-by from rooftops.

Sunday had been a day of comparative calm following agreement on a ceasefire Saturday night. Officials toured the ravaged commercial area around Martyr's Square and residents ventured out of their homes for the first time in a week.

Security forces entered the worst combat zones and picked up dozens of bodies, raising the death toll to nearly 400 since the year's fifth round of communal warfare erupted in Tripoli Sept. 3 and spread to Beirut on Sept. 14.

In the commercial quarter Lebanese and Syrian firemen finally brought under control fires started Friday and Saturday by bazooka and mortar fire and rocket grenades. The Syrians brought about 50 firetrucks from Damascus, 60 miles away.

The downtown area, the Wall Street of the Middle East, was pockmarked with gutted, smouldering buildings. The offices of Pan American World Airways were shattered. Windows of the First National City Bank of New York had been riddled by bullets.

Authorities said four persons, including two security men, were killed in clashes between residents of the Naameh and Haret-Naameh districts on the Beirut-Sidon road.

Sniper fire was heard through Sunday in other parts of the city.

"Snipers are being hunted down one by one," Radio Beirut said.

A police spokesman said several snipers were cornered and shot.

Sunday night security forces clashed with a group of gunmen near the villages of Kfar Shima and Hadath in the hills above the Beirut airport, and a bullet from the fight pierced a glass door in the departure lounge. Passengers waiting for a flight to Cairo dove to the floor.

Syrian, Lebanese and Palestinian leaders continued their efforts to end the communal conflict that has killed more than 2,000 persons this year.

The Syrian foreign minister, Abdul Halim Khaddam, and chief of staff, Gen. Hikmat Chehabi, were meeting with Premier Rashid Karami, a Moslem; Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, a Christian, and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

Meanwhile, thousands of Lebanese took refuge in Damascus, the Syrian capital. Other thousands were crossing the border every day to buy food and gasoline because of shortages in Lebanon, and the Syrian authorities began restricting sales to prevent shortages and hoarding.

Seven-year-old Todd Binnie of R.R. 1, Corbyville receives assistance from his father, Belleville Lions president John Binnie, as he dries off following Saturday's Lions walkathon. Father John raised $138 as his club realized about $3,300 over-all.

Despite Rain, Tar, Lions Raise $3,300

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Despite pouring rain, sticky tar and a slip-up in a radio announcement, the Belleville Lions Club managed to raise about $3,300 in pledges during their 10-mile walkathon Saturday.

Gord Monk, Lion organizer, said Sunday 146 walkers left William R. Kirk School on Palmer Rd. in the morning on the route which was plagued by steady rain, including a half hour downpour at one point.

However, only a few walkers did not complete the jaunt which began at about 8.45 a.m. with a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the school's front entrance officiated by Belleville Mayor Ben Corke who did the cutting and George Zegouras, city alderman, who was the first walker through the line.

About 90 per cent of Lions Clubs across Canada either held walkathons Saturday or will hold them Oct. 4 in Olympathon '75 which sees half of the funds raised go towards Canadian athletes in training for the Canadian Olympic Team.

The other 50 per cent is earmarked for any charitable project individual clubs have in mind. Belleville has chosen the Canadian Special Olympics for Retarded Children as its project.

Mr. Monk explained an early-morning radio announcement which was supposed to pass on the Wellington Lions' decision to postpone their walkathon until Oct. 4 was misconstrued by some Belleville walkers who assumed it pertained locally.

As a result, the expected 1,000 walkers did not show up, probably also owing to the inclement weather, forcing the Belleville club to continue the walkathon Oct. 4, same time and place, he said. The club had distributed over 5,000 pledge sheets.

"Those who didn't make it can walk again then," he noted.

Mr. Monk said a segment of the route on Marshall Rd. created a problem with the rain combining with tar and gravel to coat shoes and cause a mess at the school.

He said club members and school custodian Garnet Cole worked until 6.30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday morning to clean up the tar. Front entrance rugs will have to be sent away for professional cleaning and failing that, might have to be replaced.

All walkers had their shoe soles coated with tar and gravel. Mr. Monk said the Marshall Rd. portion will be changed for Oct. 4 as a result.

Fluoride Program Expects Results

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit will begin a fluoride mouth-rinsing program Sept. 29 in elementary schools in the northern portion of Hastings County, says Dr. Dennis Warrick, director of dental services.

Dr. Warrick said in a recently-issued press release students will rinse their mouths every other week with a dilute fluoride solution.

He explained it will be done initially under the supervision of health unit dental staff "and then is taken over by the principals and teachers themselves."

"This is a new program — which can bring about a dramatic improvement in dental health," he commented.

Dr. Warrick elaborated that in the U.S., Europe and other parts of Canada "where this preventive program has been utilized for a number of years, tooth decay has been reduced an average of 30-40 per cent."

He said the objective is to achieve 100 per cent student participation which is free of charge and done with parental consent.

Two New Industries May Hire 115 Workers

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Two new industries with a hiring potential of 115 jobs will be in production within the next two months, said Mayor Ben Corke today.

The industries are Thermo Set Plastics which will locate in the vacant Ampliphone building on Dussek St. and an unnamed electrical firm which will take up quarters in the vacant National Grocers building on Pinnacle St.

Mayor Corke said Thermo Set Plastics will begin with approximately 40 to 50 staff "with the intention of growing to about 100," within the next year or so.

The firm manufactures moulded plastics parts for the electrical industry. Economic development commissioner Fred Bemis said the firm fits in well in Belleville — having Union Carbide as a major supplier and Northern Electric as a customer.

The second firm is expected to hire about 15 in the reconditioning of television tubes, said Mr. Bemis. The company as yet has no corporate name, said Mayor Corke.

"The Thermo Set company is awaiting equipment and it is hoped it will be in production within the next month or so," said Mayor Corke. The second company should be in production sooner, he said.

Plant spokesman could not be reached for comment today.

Mayor Corke said, "naturally, we're very pleased with the activity. It means that two buildings that have been sitting vacant will once more be productive—providing jobs and contributing business taxes to city coffers."

"The city will continue to encourage industrial growth — bringing more balance to the industrial-residential tax base," said the mayor.

Mr. Bemis said both companies will add to the diversity of the industrial picture in Belleville — each company drawing on local raw materials.

3 Pinch Hit for Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — Former finance minister John Turner's portfolio, empty since he resigned more than a week ago, is being shuffled between three acting ministers this week. Acting finance minister C. M. Drury arrived in Moscow Sunday for a 12-day official visit in his capacity as science minister. He leaves Moscow Oct. 2 for a 10-day tour through Japan, Hong Kong and Hawaii.

Tie Still Possible

TORONTO (CP) — The possibility that the race for leadership of the official opposition in the Ontario legislature could be thrown into a tie was enhanced slightly Saturday. The official count of votes in Toronto Downsview from Thursday's provincial election cut down the winning margin of New Democrat Odoardo di Santo to 77 votes from the 98 given him over Liberal Mike Spensieri on the election-night tally.

Liquor Prices Jump

TORONTO (CP) — Price increases on 55 of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario's 6,000 listings went into effect today.

Eloise Gains Momentum

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Eloise, which killed 42 persons as a hurricane last week, became a hurricane again today, aiming its 85-mile-an-hour winds and driving rain at the Florida-Alabama Gulf coast.

Damage May Be $500,000

POINT TUPPER, N.S. (CP) — Damage may reach $500,000 from an explosion and fire in a large storage tank at the Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) heavy water plant during the weekend. The explosion Sunday followed by half an hour a power and steam failure at the Nova Scotia Power Corp. generating station plant here.

Israel Postpones Test

Israel has postponed a test of Egypt's pledge to allow Israeli-bound cargo through the Suez canal in the hope that opposition by militant Arabs to the new Sinai peace pact will cool off. Israeli officials said a Greek freighter loaded with cement for Elat, Israeli's southern port, was ready to enter the canal. But instead it was ordered to put into Haifa, Israel's chief port on the Mediterranean.

Laurentian Hotel Burns

MONTREAL (CP) — A five-alarm fire at the downtown Laurentian Hotel was brought under control today about two hours after it had started. Firemen said they believe everybody was evacuated safely. Four persons were taken to hospital for treatment of smoke inhalation. The fire began in a retaurant adjacent to the hotel lobby and quickly filled the hotel with smoke.

Teachers Defy Court

BOSTON (AP) — Public school teachers seeking more money defied a court order today and went on strike against Boston's 76,000-pupil school system, which began its third week under court-ordered busing.

Rebels Hold Out For Supplies

PARIS (AP) — The chief of a rebel tribe in the north-central African country of Chad is reported holding out for supplies instead of cash to ransom French archeologist Francoise Claustre, captured with two other Europeans 17 months ago in a raid on a desert village.

Marc Combes, who escaped the rebel camp in a stolen vehicle some time ago, said in a French television interview Sunday he believes rebel chief Hissen Habre will carry out his threat to shoot Mrs. Claustre on Tuesday if the French government does not meet his terms.

Combes said Habre, a graduate of law and political science studies in Paris, is "not of the same tribe" as his Toubou tribe lieutenants and could not afford to lose face with them by modifying his demands.

Ali Threatens Frazier With Unloaded Gun

MANILA (Reuter) — Challenger Joe Frazier accused world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali today of pulling a gun on him.

Frazier, who will try to dethrone Ali in the Philippine Coliseum in nearby Quezon City on Oct. 1, said Ali "snapped" an unloaded revolver at him outside his Manila hotel.

The incident occurred, Frazier told a news conference, just before dusk Sunday night when Ali drove from his own hotel about three miles away to bait the challenger.

Ali "came in front of my hotel last evening and started making crazy remarks," Frazier said.

"I threw a pillow out of the window. . . . I thought he was tired."

Today's Chuckle

The government's attempt to halt inflation hasn't been too effective. If they really want to bring prices down why don't they ask the stock market how it's done?

16 Arrested in Drug Raid

TORONTO (CP) — A dawn raid Sunday on an abandoned farmhouse near Barry's Bay resulted in 16 arrests and seizure of a laboratory and chemicals capable of turning out 100-pound batches of methamphetamines with a street value of $13,620,000, police said.

Five persons at the farm, about 40 miles southwest of Pembroke, surrendered when a raiding party of Metropolitan Toronto police, provincial police and RCMP surrounded the house and a barn. Eleven arrests were made later.

Police said they seized four shotguns, 400 rounds of ammunition and 30 gallons of gasoline, apparently intended to be used to destroy the laboratory if it were discovered.

Also recovered were a radio tuned to the police band and a radar scanning device that was supposed to signal the approach of any vehicle on the only access road.

Police said the farm had been under observation since June when armed patrols were reported in the area.

All 16 were charged jointly with conspiracy to traffic in methamphetamines.

Toronto residents arrested are James Allen Herttrich, 32, Garnet Arthur Babcock, 34, Warren Allen Smith, 26, Murray Binnum Schfinman, 57, Alexander Spiroff, 52, Edward Hugo Hertrich, 19, Hans Conrad Sollinger, 45, Marjorie Loiuse Grew, 48, Charles Fraser Barton, 26, Georgina Roberta Wright, 20, Shirley Yvonne Zegil, 27, George Harvey Jackson, 31, and Ruby Louise Babcock, 28.

Also charged were Robert Kenneth Souray, 40, of Pembroke, Brian Howard King, 24, of Thornhill, Ont., and Thomas Andrew Rowan, 26, of Mississauga, Ont.

James Allen Hertrich, King, Smith, Garnet Arthur Babcock and Souray are also charged with possession of dangerous weapons and Grew with possession of a restricted weapon.

Manhunt Shifts To Kentucky

TORONTO (CP) — The manhunt for Roy Allan Embry, 28, of Louisville, Ky., charged with murder in connection with a hotel shooting in which one man was killed and two others wounded, continued Sunday with police suspecting Embry has made his way to the United States.

Kentucky state police and Louisville city police were on full-scale alert and placed a watch on the homes of Embry's mother and step-father and of a former girlfriend, said Det. Walter Chisholm of the state police.

Embry is wanted for questioning in Louisville in connection with a murder there last May.

A police spokesman said it is "highly probable" Embry fled Canada following the shooting by taking an 80-mile taxi ride from Toronto International Airport to Niagara Falls, Ont., and walking across the Rainbow Bridge over the Niagara River into the U.S.

A Toronto taxi driver called Niagara regional police to complain that a passenger had walked away from a $65 fare. Police said fingerprints identified the passenger as Embry.

On Friday, police recovered a car believed used by Embry to flee the Royal York Hotel Thursday in a parking lot at the airport and late Saturday found a car operated by the fugitive in the underground garage of the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Priyal De Silva, 22, the hotel's assistant credit manager, died of gunshot wounds after a hotel guest being questioned about his credit rating pulled a gun and opened fire.

JOHN W. TURNCLIFFE

The funeral for John W. Turncliffe was held in the chapel of the Weaver Funeral Home Sept. 19. Rev. J. Payton conducted the service with burial in White's cemetery. Bearers were Reg Coulthard, Charles Delong, Carl Webb, Dan Pretty, Jerry Casselman and Charles Bruyea.

A resident of RR 1 Trenton, he died in Belleville General Hospital Sept. 16 in his 84th year.

Born in Dungannon Township, he was the son Mr. and Mrs. George Turncliffe. He had been a resident of Murray Township for 46 years and before that had lived in Detlor.

He is survived by his wife, the former Louise Casselman and by his children Ernest and William and Mrs. Charles (Colleen) DeLong of Trenton, Mrs. Rush (Bessie) Waite of Brighton, Mrs. Ron (Leona) Sharpe of Trenton and David Wagar at home.

He is also survived by 11 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, one great-great-grandchild and by his sister Mrs. Mary Young of Cardiff. He was predeceased by three brothers and two sisters.

He was retired and was a member of the United Church

Calling Full-time Job For Former Trucker

When Ralph O'Hara of Belleville gives you a call you know he's had a lot of practice.

Mr. O'Hara was one of three callers Saturday at Quinte Twirlers annual Square dance jamboree held at Sir James Whitney School.

Tellings square dancers what to do is not just a week end thing with Mr O Hara. He does it five nights a week in clubs from Belleville to Brockville.

"It's a great satisfaction to stand on the platform and give instruction and know you're giving people satisfaction."

Mr. O'Hara, who used to be a transport truck driver turned to square dance calling about nine years ago after a back injury.

To become a caller one has to know all there is to know about square dancing then "lots of practice."

When he started out in his new career he went to United States to take callers' courses "They give you instruction on what to do and not to do."

Mr. O'Hara, Garnet May of Belleville and Norm Wilcox of Burlington took turns calling dances for more than 200 persons at Saturday's jamboree.

'Every caller is a bit different. I just kind of caution myself and feel out the floor and not break their dance."

Each "tip" called by a caller lasting about 15 minutes is made up of two sections: the challenge or "hash" made up of instructions individual to each caller and the standard singing call lasting about four minutes.

Mr. O'Hara said there are about 75 to 80 basic steps beginners learn in the first year. The caller gives instructions according to the experience of the dancers.

The caller chooses instructions out of about 2,000 basics with the hope of making the dance as uniform and smooth as possible.

Mr. O Hara said although he prefers calling square dances to ~~driving a~~ truck it can be tiring as they work up to four hours without a rest.

"But as soon as you get up on that platform and see the dancers having fun you forget about it."

Desert Lake Site Of TM Centre

DESERT LAKE — Eastern Ontario has been chosen for the site of a $1 million administrative facility to perpetuate the practice of transcendental meditation (TM) in Canada.

TM instructor Rick Cheesman of Belleville said in an interview Sunday the two-storey structure will be located on 200 acres of land at Desert Lake about 70 miles east of Belleville and 25 miles north of Kingston, east of Highway 38 at Hartington.

He outlined that the building will house offices for administrative personnel, have about 100 rooms for teacher training, seminars and university programs and be available for national and international conferences.

Mr. Cheeseman said opening ceremonies and celebrations commemorating the commencement of construction will occur next Friday at 1 p.m. on site and the general public is invited to attend.

Among the special guests to officiate, he said, will be Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, TM founder and world leader, Harvey Staseson, president of Maharishi International Academy in Canada, David L. Walker, Progressive Conservative member of the Canadian Senate and Douglas A. Alkenbrack, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington MP.

In addition, a specially designed cornerstone, built in Europe and air-lifted to Canada for the event, will be unveiled, Mr. Cheeseman said.

He said the money will come from a special projects fund of the Maharishi Internaland, a non-profit organization.

"We wanted to build this (facility) two years ago but now we desperately need it in Canada," Mr. Cheeseman commented. "There's a great demand here."

He noted the facility will be of direct benefit to eastern Ontario by holding weekend residents' courses for meditators.

And for non-meditators, national and international conferences will be held on TM and the Science of Creative Intelligence (SCI is the study of the application of TM) and how they apply to such segments of society as the business world, athletics and others, he added.

NEWSMAKERS

Helpers Thanked

Gord Monk, organizer for the Belleville Lions' 10-mile walkation Saturday, noted three organizations which assisted in the walk — Tri-County Radio which provided the airwave hookup along the route, Coca-Cola which supplied refreshments at both the halfway point and the finish and St. Johns Ambulance which stood by — just in case.

TM Deductible

Course fees to learn transcendental meditation (TM) are now tax-deductible, says TM teacher Rick Cheeseman of Belleville. He said the federal government announced in August it recognizes them as educational tuition fees.

Pledge Points

Pledge money raised from Saturday's walk-a-thon conducted by the Belleville Lions Club can be delivered to any Belleville branch of the Bank of Montreal or to ARC Industries, says organizer Gord Monk. Lions raised about $3,300 in pledges in the 10-mile walk.

Sole Buddies

Robert Hicks, 12 of 27 West Bridge St. in Belleville discovered the true meaning of friendship during the Belleville Lions walk-a-thon Saturday. His 10-year-old friend from Bath, Michael Sagriff, accompanied him in the steady rain on the 10-mile route merely to keep him company.

Firm Gets Job

Andreynolds Co. Ltd. of Belleville has been awarded a $59,800 federal public works contract to install perimeter security lighting around the Joyceville institution.

It was one of 38 contracts awarded by the public works department during the last two weeks of August. Total value of the contracts was $7,308,171.

Feeling Tarred

Jim Hartt, 15, of 14 Stanley Park Dr. in Belleville feels both tired and tarred after completing Belleville Lions 10 - mile walkathon Saturday. Jim was one of those victimized by the Marshall Rd. segment where tar-covered gravel coated soles of shoes and created caretaking problems at the command post—William R. Kirk School.

Jeans Uniform Of Today's Youth

The blue jean industry — producing what would appear to be today's school uniform — is one of the strongest industries in Canada.

"There's a lot of money to be made in blue jeans. It's one of our strongest markets," said Shaun Rafferty, manager of Elks Men's and Boys' Wear, Quinte Mall.

Mr. Rafferty said as far as he's concerned blue jeans have been popular for more than 20 years with an upsurge about five years ago.

Clean-cut faded, worn out or patched they are the craze.

Teen-agers used to be only ones buying jeans. Today their parents are also buying what some term as the most durable leisure-wear pant.

Barry Hayes, manager of Esquire Men's Wear, 258 Front St., says he hardly ever wears them, but "as far as business goes you have to have them."

He said he has about 1,000 pairs in stock at all times and they sell faster than anything else in the store. Stock turns over about ten times a year.

"They're functional. Today's housewives are wearing jeans. They're comfortable," said Gerry O'Shaughnessy of The Red Shark, 281 Front St.

"All you're selling is comfort," said a spokesman at Frontier Shop, 209 Front St.

But comfort or not, blue jeans are the fashion and people are paying up to $18. a pair.

There are about 10 manufacturers of jeans in Canada today. There used to used to be only two — mainly making jeans for work.

And the blue jean fashion keeps changing. Wide-legs are the latest thing.

"The style changed drastically in the past 18 months," said Mr. O'Shaughnessey.

Jeans with a fuller cut and higher waist line are now most popular, replacing the flared leg and straight — leg in popularity.

The wide — leg jeans give females a taller look — and females buy at least half the jeans sold in men's stores and speciality shops.

"They're a great hard wearing item but they're not dressy," said Mr. Rafferty: "There's nothing that looks untidy about them."

Acceptability seems to be one of the problems with jeans. What is appropriate to some may not be to others. Many restaurants and night spots draw the line of leisure at blue jeans. Others may allow jeans provided they are not patched or faded.

"I think the kids are being prejudiced against," said Mr. Rafferty.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 48-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Saturday, Sept. 20, 8:40 p.m. — malfunction of alarm system at Maple Haven Nursing Home on Avonlough Rd.

Vandals Damage Sign

The Blue Barn fried chicken takeout store on West College St., already victimized by window-breaking vandals several times this year, had its new pole sign damaged by an unknown person or person sometime late Friday or early Saturday.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today someone threw a rock through the sign causing $500 damage. He said the damage was not discovered until 6:21 p.m. Saturday when an attempt was made to turn the sign on.

In another weekend incident, thieves made off with some cash following a break-in at PM Industries at 240 Adam St. in Belleville sometime between 5 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today someone apparently slipped the rear door to gain entry and stole $15 in cash from a coffee cup in a refrigerator.

Sore and Soaked Lions Raise $3,300

There were several notable highlights in Saturday's 10-mile walkathon which saw Belleville Lions raise about $3,300 in pledges towards the Canadian Special Olympics for Retarded Children and Canadian athletes in training for the '76 Olympics.

The big money-raisers over $100 were Lion Jim Parkhurst ($260 — tops), Frank Wendling $157.15), Belleville Ald. George Zegouras $141), club president John Binnie $138) and Lion Al Hale ($119).

Pouring rain thoroughly soaked all walkers who carried their pledge sheets and waiver cards. "What we did was copied over a lot of them," said organizer Gord Monk. "The ink didn't run that bad."

On Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd., participants were surprised by a sign reading Walkers Welcome at the residence of Doreen Reid. She had volunteered her home as a rest stop and to provide refreshment at her own expense.

Lion Jim Stapley had a thick coating of tar and gravel covering his blistered ~~bare~~ feet due to the Marshall Rd. segment. His boot nails began to penetrate inside on the Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. and he had abandoned them.

Mr. Monk said the club requests that whoever took the rented table and chairs from checkpoint 4 on Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. when they were set up at 8 a.m. return them.

He said a club member observed a truck pulling away from the checkpoint at 8.10 a.m. and it wasn't until a half hour later that it was determined the articles were stolen. The club will have to pay for the missing items.

Some retarded adults from ARC Industries and students from William R. Kirk School (the starting point) also walked and several school teachers volunteered their services.

Some walkers started at 8.30 a.m. and the last one splashed in at about 3.30 p.m. Two runners went the distance in just over an hour.

Five Firms Robbed

FRANKFORD — Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville continue to investigate a series of break-ins in the Batawa — Frankford — Glen Miller area which occurred sometime late last Thursday or early Friday.

Police said during the weekend the establishments entered were Batawa community centre and Sidney Township Library in Batawa, the IGA food and Peterborough lumber stores in Frankford and the Glen Miller Market at RR 3, Trenton.

There were also attempted break-ins at Dafoe's Dry Goods at 5 North Trent St. and Rowe's old warehouse furniture store in Frankford, police added.

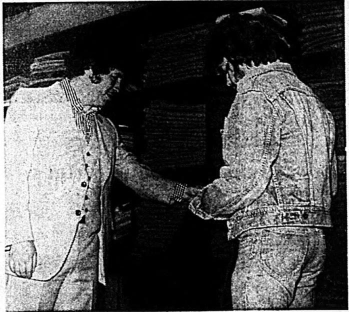
Only money was taken in all instances from cash registers and other locations in offices, police said, no safe-cracking involved.

A figure on the amount of money stolen has not yet been determined but it was reported Peterborough lumber was hit the hardest, losing about 1,000, police said.

Police said they believe two persons are involved, all attempted or successful break-ins are connected and a vehicle was probably used due to the distance.

Entry was gained in all successful cases either through doors or windows. There was no other damage except by that caused through entry, police said

Constables Bob Burkholder and Brian Skinner are investigating.



One of a Thousand

Barry Hayes, manager of Exquire Men's Wear, shows a pair of jeans to David Boulton. Mr. Hayes said blue jeans are one of his biggest sellers. He has at least one thousand in stock at all time. Stock he says turns over about ten times a year.

Swing Your Partner

Even the organizers get to enjoy their work. Roy Quance, with wife Eva, was president of the Quinte Twirlers jamboree committee for this year. Almost 500 persons showed up to square dance at Saturday's ninth annual jamboree.

Twirlers' 9th Jamboree Attracts 500 Dancers

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Almost 500 persons danced Saturday at Quinte Twirlers ninth annual square dance jamboree held at Sir James Whitney School.

"It's the biggest so far," said Roy Quance, president of the jamboree committee.

The jamboree started at 2 p.m. with dancers from across Ontario, New York State, with one couple from Alberta.

Saturday afternoon Mr. Quance said there were about 55 squares of eight persons each registered.

"There will be 60 by tonight," said Mr. Quance during the afternoon.

He said there were 50 squares at last year's jamboree and this is the first year callers have been all-Canadian and all with experience in Belleville.

Norm Wilcox, of Burlington, was guest caller. He used to live in Belleville and call for local clubs. Garnet May and Ralph O'Hara were the other callers.

Mr. Quance said it took a year to plan the jamboree. Three rooms prepared for dancing were going almost all day.

Organizers are already preparing for next year's jamboree.

Quinte Twirlers' is made up of members of four Belleville square dancing clubs: Dance-lots and Whirlaways, for those with about two years experience, the Beaunots, for singles and Hits and Mrs. for beginner and first year graduates.

As well as dancing — the annual jamboree helps attract persons interested in learning square dancing.

Twirlers' hold instructional classes Mondays at 8 p.m. at Queen Victoria School.

It's not an expensive hobby: "In most clubs it would cost you about $50 a year for once a week dancing all year," said Iris Downing, who with her husband Bill, is president of the Twirlers'.

It takes about a year to learn 75 to 80 basic square dance moves so one can dance at a jamboree.

Fast Thief Grabs $105

A fast thief took advantage of a Belleville home unattended for only 15 minutes Saturday between 2-2.15 p.m. and escaped with $105 in cash.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today Carol Parker of 175 Herchimer Ave. had left her house unlocked for the brief period so her two children could enter while she was absent and upon her return, discovered the money missing from her purse.

UN and A Needy World and the Affluent Nations Which Can Do With Less

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The United Nations has moved painlessly and quietly into its 30th general session literally hours after the end of its seventh special session—this one on the urgent problems of the developing world.

As such, it indicates the extent to which reason and dialogue have permeated conferences this fall on the economic and social future of the Third or developing world.

All year we had raised fears and alarms that these fall sessions in the UN, the World Bank and so-called non-aligned nation conferences in the developing world, would see major scenes of threats and confrontations.

In Canada we had a major spill-over from these fears in the stupid and unnecessary pressures on Ottawa to refuse to host a United Nations conference on crime because Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) representatives would be there.

The conference was held instead in Geneva. The PLO representatives who took part were mainly lawyers, as they would have been in Toronto, and they maintained a low-key approach.

There is now every reason to believe that this 30th regular session of the United Nations in the same number of years since the organization was formed in 1945, will proceed on a similar basis of discussion and fruitful disagreement.

The statement of Dr. Henry Kissinger read at the seventh special session last month by the new U.S. ambassador to the UN, Dr. Daniel Moynihan, defused possible attacks by Third World blocs against the U.S. because of his proposals for the extra aid and assistance instruments it offered.

It is true the 30th UN general session begins with South Africa refusing to attend and the possibility still around that the tough anti-Israeli bloc of Arab, African and some Latin American states will still try and oust Israel from the UN.

But even that seems unlikely now, because Egypt tied in with Dr. Kissinger's interim agreement on the Sinai with Israel will resist it.

Another reason is that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has warned the PLO against their strident operations from their Cairo base of activities with the possibility he will stop these entirely.

The climate for solving crushing Third World problems of starvation and survival, where the all-important world aid and development agencies are concerned, has never been better.

And while we suffer in the developed world from mounting inflation, high cost of the necessities of life, food and shelter being uppermost, we are still immensely well-off compared to most of our world.

Most of our globe needs very little above what they have to be guaranteed lives of some comfort and security. We who live in affluent nations have forgotten a time when we lived and prospered with much less.

One could remove about half the products offered in supermarkets and life would go on as it did before many of them were there.

If we don't learn to live with fewer material goods like most of our fellow humans on this earth, the time is inevitable when we will be forced to do so.

There is a gap left for us to contribute more as there is for them to sit around and wait. For both of us it is closing fast.

Diefenbaker Legend

When John Diefenbaker was in Picton a few weeks ago everyone was astonished at the vigor of the man. It is a common reaction of course to a personality who is virtually a legend in his own lifetime — and certainly where Canadian politics is concerned.

Now 80 years of age, an event that has been marked in style both in Ottawa and at the University of Saskatchewan — with Dief of course present at both ceremonies — the aura of fame he exudes is as universal as it is, in some respects, surprising.

Witty words for instance from Prime Minister Trudeau, confessing himself to feeling somewhat unnerved among all those Conservatives — any political animosity between them dispelled for the time being at least.

Words of high praise too from one Richard M. Nixon who sent a letter to The Chief noting: ". . . of the many world leaders I have met over the past 25 years, I have always considered you one of the most outstanding of all. . ." and going on to praise him as a man of high principle and courage.

Nixon, unable to attend, also sent to the sponsors of the Ottawa party, the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, a cheque for $20 to buy two tickets "for a couple who otherwise might not be able to afford to come." A gesture in the tradition of the ex-president who, whatever else might be thought of him, has always had a lot of practical concern for others.

And, perhaps most appropriate of all, a ballad penned by a mellowing radical and one half (the other is Marie-Lynn Hammond) of the folk duo, Stringband — Bob Bossin — and which is in this vein: "Dief is the chief, Dief is the chief, Dief will be the chief again."

"As a connoisseur of fine music, I'm simply delighted, "the former Prime Minister reportedly told an interviewer, and he also wrote Bossin a letter saying how much he liked it.

Bossin may be mellowing but says he is no Tory. Maybe he has a touch of the essential humanity which all of us need, whatever our politics, an appreciation of others and of their viewpoint. In any event he and Ms. Hammond have been described as "stoutly independent and determinedly Canadian." Which of course puts them in the same league as the old chief.

Saga of Patty Hearst

Patricia Hearst is in custody — at last. The event marks the end of one bizarre chapter in this extraordinary age, and the opening of another.

If and when the full story of what happened following the kidnapping of the newspaper heiress — from her standpoint — is ever revealed, there is relief that there has been no further bloodshed.

Had their been another shootout, or an attempt at suicide, it would have been as tragic as it would have been anti-climax. For Miss Hearst alive — and reportedly ready to go home to her parents — is a sociological phenomenon, in terms of what has happened to her, possibly without parallel.

Author Truman Capote has ascribed to Miss Hearst's personal history following the kidnapping the term, "Stockholm Syndrome," or identification with one's kidnappers as once occurred in a similar situation in the Swedish capital. Hence her apparent, temporary at least, conversion to activism — and who knows, release for a time from the predictable, often boring life of the university student, as she was at the time. There is the theory too that perhaps she had been in league with her captors beforehand.

Indeed there is a degree of ambivalence in her conduct since capture — pleasure at being reunited with her family, while at the same time identifying herself as an "urban guerrilla."

But now she faces serious charges, some of them relating to participation in a bank robbery. What ensues, with her days as a fugitive over, will be of absorbing public and sociological interest. Let's hope that from her own personal and family standpoint, she will come to some measure of peace and reconciliation.

Growing Political Influence in The Schools

Lubor Zink in
The Toronto Sun

OTTAWA — For generations schools have been regarded as the society's principle tools for moulding young minds and characters. Together with accumulated knowledge, they transmitted the society's basic spiritual and moral values parents and teachers held in common.

The school was thus an extension and reinforcement of family influences on the child, supplying the facilities and educational expertise the family in most instances could not provide.

This harmony of purpose, which tended to strengthen the social fabric in its generational process of renewal, was thrown out of kilter in the democracies during the great depression. It was then that some of the tone-setting educators and academics embraced Utopian socialism which seemed to offer a way out of the mess.

Since then the theoretical lure of the various social engineering doctrines of the political left "has virtually transformed the higher echelons of our education system into strongholds of neo-Marxism, despite all the clear and amply available evidence of the horrors even practical application of "real socialism" has produced.

In the 1960s this spiritual and moral blight started creeping from the universities to high schools. Now the process is gradually engulfing elementary schools as retiring old teachers are replaced by freshly graduated "revolutionaries."

This would be of little or no consequence if these teachers could and were able to keep their ideological befuddlement isolated from their professional task. But like all the self-styled "progressives" whose mind has been deformed by the Marxist poison, they regard themselves as missionaries of what they conceive to be higher justice and freedom. And so they turn classrooms into indoctrination and propaganda incubators.

The result is that the disciples of Marx's class war doctrine are steadily enlarging the scope of their destructive work by reaching younger and younger minds with their poison. And since many parents, scared by the pseudo-scientific mumblings of with-it sociologists and psychologists, have abdicated their responsibilities for shaping the spiritual and moral foundations of their children; elementary school teachers get almost entirely blank minds to work with.

The advantage is obvious. For while a university student, and to a lesser extent the high school teen-ager, might be able to put up some resistance to brainwashing, the grade school pupil is entirely at the mercy of an ideological zealot.

As in the mass media, missionary ideological work in the education system is done individually. Signs of attempts to co-ordinate and organize these solo efforts began appearing (particularly in militant teachers' unions and under the guise of new teaching methods) only quite recently.

One such sign was the introduction of the "commune experiment" to some Ontario schools last year. Based on a reader titled China's Way: The Commune as an Idea for Change, the experiment consists of elementary school children being led to believe, through "playing communes," that society should be structured that way.

Parents who haven't quite abdicated their responsibility for the future of their children were quite horrified, particularly when their protests to school authorities and the provincial department of education fell on deaf ears.

What's next? Class warfare in kindergarten?

Are we really so apathetic, confused or stupid to let democracy perish this way?

Canada's Growing Bureaucracy

United Church Observer

While most Canadians find their spending habits, lifestyles and future increasingly under restraint from the pressures of inflation and spiralling cost-of-living, no such restrictions are evident in our federal civil service.

Indeed, with a present list of more than 250,000 Canada's bureaucracy has increased 44 per cent since 1966 and between 1969 and 1975 the number earning $20,000-a-year jumped 1,300 per cent from 1,225 to 16,868. The days of dedicated men and women have rapidly been replaced with people who now know that the best place to make a good living is Ottawa.

Unless the control of Canadian decision-making, ranging from external affairs to fisheries, is returned to the Parliament of Canada and the civil service curbed and returned to implementing, rather than forming policies, the entire democratic process will be endangered by an enormous, secretive and usually unaccountable bureaucracy which exists for its own service and not that of the country.

Something has snapped in the machinery of government and most Members of Parliament will admit it but they also feel powerless to stop it in the face of such faceless numbers, combined with a nagging fear that the civil servants may be right — perhaps government is too complex for mere mortals and only mandarins have the insight to rule.

This may be, but until Canadians are prepared to abrogate democracy for bureaucracy, then we suggest that Parliament spend some of its next sessions, both in committee and in the house of Commons, examining the role of its servants.

The role is still to serve and not to rule.

Sports Are Better Than Vandalism

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

It was with great interest I read your editorial with regard to signing letters. I would like to congratulate you on getting your reader's opinions across even though he wasn't intelligent enough to know that letters have to be signed.

He also wasn't intelligent enough to know that living "in the better part of west Belleville" as he put it is a statement open to debate. Does he mean that the people in one of the better parts of west Belleville shouldn't have to put up with vandalism?

Does he mean that living beyond one's means in a brand new home on a brand new street with tremendous mortgages makes one person more socially acceptable and to be more protected than the other person living on a perfectly respectable older street in west Belleville with no mortgage living within his means?

I have lived in Belleville all my life and I don't believe that any part of west Belleville can be called a slum area or that any of the people in west Belleville are second class citizens.

Now I wish to call upon the mothers and fathers of Belleville who lived through the time a few years ago when a hippie movement was so strong that they lost sons and daughters to the streets of Belleville, Toronto, Vancouver, or wherever, because the teen-agers were going through a stage hanging around downtown, harassing people on the streets, harassing the police, openly smoking and taking dope, insisting on public places to hang out, and hiding each other from parents and police and openly defy all authority.

I am asking these mothers and fathers to tell how happy they would be if their 15, 14 or 16 even 13 year-olds had only been playing hockey, baseball or golf. Today we are so lucky. I know personally of 13-year-old children who were admitted to mental hospitals and lost from their parents for up to a year at a time and I think today we are very fortunate that we don't have to see our friends, relatives and others go through the heartache of that time.

Again talking about common sense or intelligence, any person who has teen-agers playing games on his property knows that all he has to do is call the police or talk with the kids or insist that they quit and they will. Kids who are interested in playing sports as a group are generally easy to talk with. Playing hockey, baseball or golf cannot be considered vandalism and a far greater evil is parents allowing their children to bring home other people's property.

Employers Are Facing Big Increases in Private Pension Plan Costs

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs

Analyst

Thomson News Service

If you participate in a pension plan at work, you're lucky.

Three out of five Candian workers don't belong to those pension plans that are organized, and partly paid for, by the employer.

But even the 40 per cent who are covered may not be as well protected as they think. A pension crisis has been creeping up silently ignored by most workers who find pension-plan provisions too obscure or subtle.

In a nutshell, employers are facing huge increases in private-pension costs because of such factors as these:

—The deterioration of pension-fund assets because of the slump in securities markets during the past half-dozen years.

—The need to make up for the inflationary loss in purchasing power of fixed-dollar pensions.

—Worker demands for bigger and earlier pension payments.

—The trend to relate pension benefits more directly to final pay rather than the last 10 years of employment.

Most people might agree with the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) official who said, "Someone, somewhere, has a duty to provide decent retirement incomes to workers."

But disagreement immediately arises on the question of how much a "decent" retirement income would cost, and who would pay for it.

The CLC has suggested that government pension programs be changed to pay 75 per cent of wages commencing at age 60.

(At present, the average Canadian wage-earner is entitled to nearly 40 per cent at age 65, through the Canada (CPP) or Quebec Pension Plan (QPP) and Old Age Security (OAS).

Marc Lalonde, Canada's minister of national health and welfare—and newest TV critic—told a recent Toronto pension conference, sponsored by the Financial Post, that he has asked his officials to "sit down with the CLC to make sure we are talking about the same figures."

Under his cost calculations, the CLC plan would require the individual employee to contribute 10.16 per cent of his pay to the pension plan by 1985, with the contribution rising steadily to 31.25 per cent 50 years from now, when it would be fully operative.

Just to maintain Canada's existing universal pension scheme—without trying to finance anything more grandiose—is going to cost more as pension recipients become more numerous in relation to working contributors.

Mr. Lalonde hopes to persuade the provinces to pay higher interest on the CPP funds they borrow. That would help Ottawa meet the inevitable pension-cost increases.

The current formula, which is related to the borrowing rate on long-term federal obligations, gives the provinces relatively cheap use of the public's CPP contributions.

If the provinces dig in their heels and refuse to pay a more realistic rate of interest, Mr. Lalonde implied, payroll contributions on CPP and OAS will have to be increased.

That may be distasteful, but it's essential in an inflationary age.

The financial squeeze will be all the greater if private pension plans are somehow prevented from growing and providing reasonable anti-inflation protection to participants.

Fortunately, Canadians have unique opportunities to defer a substantial part of their earnings until retirement age, through Registered Retirement Savings Plans.

If inflation continues unchecked, Canadians will have to combine their universal pension plans with a liberal dose of individual responsibility, to ensure a comfortable retirement.

Rare Swan Eludes Captors

EAST LAKE — Efforts this weekend to live trap a rare mute swan here near Outlet Provincial Park continue today. Heading the hunt is Bruce Stratton, an employee of the ministry of natural resources.

The swan is being sought because area residents fear it will be shot by uninformed hunters when duck hunting season opens next weekend.

Particularly concerned are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cumming who operate a store on the East Lake shore. They have observed the swan since it first arrived in May and during that time, "Grace" as they have dubbed the large, white bird, has become almost a household pet.

The trap, obtained from Presqu'ile Park, was set early Sunday morning, but at last reports, Grace had not cooperated.

New Park Policy Helps Save Natural Resources

OUTLET PARK — Park superintendent here, Robert Davison, said this weekend that a new garbage disposal system and wood rationing, introduced this year at Sandbanks and Outlet Provincial Parks was well received.

The new system was introduced to lessen maintenance costs at the parks, said Mr. Davison. Garbage this summer had to be deposited by campers in a fenced disposal site located at the entrance to each of the camping areas. In past years it had been picked up at each of the sites by park personnel.

Similarly, firewood was rationed this year in an effort to reduce maintenance costs. Firewood stacks in camping sites were removed and campers had to obtain their rationed quantities from a central wood area. Mr. Davison said many campers in past years were wasting wood by piling unnecessary amounts on their campfires.

Picton Flying Club Stages Aerobatic Event

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Pilots in Decathalon, Citabria and Pitts Special aircraft from across Ontario and Quebec were on hand this weekend at the Prince Edward Flying Club for this year's National Aerobatic Competition.

Contest chairman for Aerobatics Canada, Linda Campbell, stressed the event was not flying show but precise sport flying, the competitors being required to fly a specific flight and perform the same manoever, in an effort to win the coveted Ken Gamble Trophy, the Canadian National Championship.

"The Picton Airport is a good site for the competition," said Mrs. Campbell. "The officials here at the Flying club have been most co-operative".

"From this competition, we hope to pick a team to compete in the World Areobatic Competition, to be held in the Soviet Union next year," said Mrs. Campbell.

Doug Trumble, president of the Prince Edward Flying Club, said the two-day competition was hampered by rainy and overcast conditions and the event did not get under way until Saturday evening. This was the first time the Picton club has been hosts for the event.

Aerobatics Canada is a relatively new organization, having been formed only three years ago. Mrs. Campbell noted that none of the members performed areobatics professionally and that it was just sport flying.

Winner of the Ken Gamble Trophy this year was Gerry Younger of Guelph, making this five years in a row in which he has won the award.

Calf Killed In Mishap

SPRINGBROOK — About 200 damage was done in a car-calf collision about 5:15 p.m. Friday about 1½ miles east of here.

William Edmund Beach, 21, of Tweed, was not injured after the car he was driving was in collision with a calf owned by Lorne McInroy of RR 1 Springbrook.

Value of the calf, which was killed is not available. No charges were laid.

Two Hurt In Crash

TRENTON — A 23-year-old Trenton man has been charged with careless driving in connection with a one-car accident early Sunday on County Rd. 21 just north of Highway 2 near here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville have identified the man as Lloyd V. Goyetche of 137 Reid St.

Police said today a 1968-model car was northbound on the county road when it left the roadway and collided with a utility pole. Damage was estimated at $250.

The driver of the vehicle and a passenger, Deborah S Paine, 19, of 9 Parkside Dr. in Trenton, were treated and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital for minor injuries.

Draping the Drums

Ceremony commemorating the Battle of Britain was held Canadian Forces Bace, Trenton, Sunday with more than 500 people in attendance. Base Commander Col. Jack Henry watches as Maj. Herb Yeagar completes the construction of the drum alter. Maj. John Liss, middle, looks on.

Finest Hour Recalled

CFB TRENTON — More than 500 service members retired corp members and civilians took part in an hour-long parade and church ceremony Sunday commemmorating the memory of the people who helped stave off the German attempt to conquer England during the Second World War.

The Battle of Britian was England's finest hour during which the Royal Air Force, bolstered by Canadian Flyers held the Germans at bay while the country prepared for combat.

Return Lt.-Gen. Chester Hall reviewed the parade and spoke to the audience about the men, ground personnel and pilots who held back the German forces.

The CFB Pipe and Drum and Wind and Reed Bands provided the music for the parade and review.

Driver Charged

SULPHIDE — Damage is estimated at about $600 following a single-car accident on County Road 39 about 8:15 p.m. Friday.

Marvin Joseph Mahoney, 20, was charged with careless driving and failing to report an accident after a car struck a rockcut and a group of trees.

Car Clips Veranda

PICTON — A Toronto man was charged with impaired driving Friday afternoon following a single-car accident on Main St. West near the Whattam Funeral Home.

Town police say Frank Laronde, 59, of 61 Condor Ave., Toronto was westbound on Main St. when his car went out of control shearing off a fire hydrant. The vehicle then went over the sidewalk, crossed a lawn and tore off three veranda posts on a Main St. West residence.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,000 while property damage was estimated at $1,500.

Foot Stops Bullet

MARMORA — A 28-year-old Marmora man is in hospital in Peterborough following a gun accident Sunday about 1½ miles west of here.

Kenneth Gordon Bonter of RR 2 Marmora was accidently shot in the foot when his rifle discharged as he was walking along Crowe Lake Road, said Madoc OPP.

Ready for Tak eoff

Gerry Younger of Guelph, Canadian Aerobatic champion for five consecutive years prepares to take off in his Pitts Special aircraft, valued at $25,000. The plane was one of several competing in the National Aerobatic Competition this weekend in Picton.

Hunter Wounded

BRIGHTON — A Brighton man was a victim of a shotgun wound Saturday while hunting with his two brothers.

Kenneth Wayne Moffatt, 18, of Brighton Township, was fushing out game when he was shot by a younger brother.

Moffatt was taken to Trenton hospital and later transferred to Kingston General Hospital with head and neck injuries.

A Kingston hospital spokesman reported Moffatt is in fair condition.

Store Target Of Thieves

PICTON — Town police this week are investigating a weekend break-in at a Dixie Lee outlet here.

Det. George Wright of the Picton Police Department said the thief or thieves entered the store through a screen window early Sunday morning and took approx. $150 in cash.

Books By And About Women

YOU CAN GET THERE FROM HERE

By Shirley MacLaine

This chatty autobiographical sequel to the widely known "Don't Fall Off the Mountain" details the life of actress Shirley MacLaine from 1970 to the present

From her decision to enter television with the disastrous series "Shirley's World" to her work for the McGovern presidential campaign in 1972 to her leadership of a women's delegation to China, the book explains in detail the life of Shirley MacLaine.

What it doesn't do is give insight into the character of this dynamic woman.

Don't read You Can Get There From Here if you're looking for a genuine autobiography. But if you enjoy the titillation of an inside peek at television, movies, politics and life in Communist China, borrow the book from Corby Library.

Cathy Thibeau on the phone to a prospective babysitter

Babysitting Bureau Begins

By ISABEL HUGGAN

You know what it's like to get invited out to dinner, and then not be able to go because you can't find a sitter. You know how frustrating it is to feel that you can't get out in the afternoon because you just couldn't manage both children and shopping at once.

You know how you wish you could just pick up the phone and book someone guaranteed to be reliable, trustworthy and good with kids.

Cathy Thibeau, mother of two-year-old Ronald and six-year-old John Paul, knows all about how you feel. And she's decided to do something about it.

Her Babysitting Bureau will open October 6. And from that point on, parents who need to go out will be able to call Mrs. Thibeau who will dispatch a babysitter. She'll be open for calls between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.. Although she won't promise to fill last-minute demands, given sufficient notice she'll be able to send the type of babysitter required.

Mrs. Thibeau got the idea for her venture from the Kingston Babysitting Bureau that she and her husband Ray depended on while he was attending Queen's University.

"The Kingston bureau has given me some good advice about how to operate the service," says Mrs. Thibeau, "and my lawyer is helping me with the legal aspects such as bonding the babysitters and settling on amount of payment."

The hourly rate will be $1, with a minimum charge of $2.50, since Mrs. Thibeau feels it isn't worth a sitter's while to go out for less than that. For every 10 visits that any of her babysitters make, Mrs. Thibeau will take $5.50 as payment for her services.

So far, she has 30 potential babysitters registered, but is hoping to have as many as 100 individuals on hand. Mrs. Thibeau is personally interviewing all those who have answered her newspaper advertisement, and she says one of her criteria is asking herself whether or not she'd hire the person as her sitter.

"I'm looking for experienced people," she says, "and am especially interested in getting more senior citizens. Older women, who've had families themselves, and who would enjoy making a little extra money as well as spending time with children, are the ones I'm hoping will be part of the bureau."

However, teen-agers over 16, Loyalist College students, and young mothers whose children are in school are also on the list, as well as a small number of men. In this way, Mrs. Thibeau intends to have just the kind of babysitter for the job. She's making color-coded cards that will help her keep track of each sitter's age, experience, and preference.

"If someone only likes caring for infants, then I won't send her to a home where there are seven-year-olds. I'll try to match up as much as I can," she says.

"And if somebody calls for a dog-sitter, I'll try to accomodate them too!"

Mrs. Thibeau will review babysitting conduct with her sitters so that they are all aware of proper procedures and able to cope with anything that might arise. She says she'll stress, especially with younger applicants, that visitors or telephone conversations are forbidden while minding children.

"If I receive complaints about a sitter's behavior, I'll give a warning, and if it happens again, then that person won't stay on my list," she says.

The persons who use the service will have an obligation to provide transportation for the sitters, says Mrs. Thibeau, unless they have specifically requested a sitter who has a car. "And if they've been to a party and have been drinking, they will be required to send the sitter home by cab," she adds.

Mrs. Thibeau will keep track of exactly where people live, and where they go when they hire the sitter. She'll also note any complaints she receives from sitters about the treatment they receive.

"If the Babysitting Bureau expands and functions as I hope it will, families like ours will be able to go out more, and mothers will feel a little more independent if they know they can get a sitter," she says.

Mrs. Thibeau can presently be reached at 962-8325, but will soon have a new business telephone number.

ST. ANDREW'S WOMEN

Earlier this month St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Group met at the home of Jessie Dorricott for their regular meeting.

Vivian Butterill, president, was in charge.

After singing Hymn 291, the 100th Psalm was read by Mary Wilson. An illustrated message was given by Edith Griffin on the value of nutritious food and water according to the Bible, applied to our daily Christian living.

A bale of good used clothing is being sent to Kenora Fellowship Centre. Donations nan be left at the church hall or at a member's home.

MADOC CWL

At the September 17 meeting of the executive of Sacred Heart Catholic Women's League at the home of president, Helen Murphy, it was decided that the Euchre parties for the 1975-76 season would begin on October 6 and be continued through the winter every second Monday thereafter.

Other business brought up at the meeting included discussion on a letter from "Luncheon is Served" of Canada and one from the Madoc and District Minor Sports Association. It was decided that a donation of $25 would be sent to the Minor Sports Association for uniforms for the ball teams and the hockey teams.

Treasurer Monica Tobin, reported that a cheque for $40 had been sent to Father Lambert, the missionary being sponsored by the C.W.L.

NSA MEETS

The National Secretaries Association, Bay of Quinte Chapter, launched another year by holding their first meeting on September 16 at the Skyline Tavern in Trenton.

The guest speaker for this occasion was Nick Mika of Mika Publishing Company in Belleville.

In keeping with International Women's Year, Mr. Mika spoke on "Life and Experiences" basing this on the part women had played in his life. Mr. Mika, born in the Ukraine, spent the Second World War - years in Germany before emigrating to Canada in 1948.

Dorothy Aitchison, president, brought the business meeting to order.

The remaining portion of the meeting was given to the discussion of the various committees and plans for the coming year. The main NSA project at this time is a workshop to be held at Centennial Secondary School on October 22 in conjunction with International Women's Year.

MARMORA W.I.

Marmora Women's Institute met recently at the home of Mary Hickey for their monthly business meeting.

Roll call was answered by members giving a brief sketch of an industry they had visited. A two-minute silence was observed in memory of Eva Post.

President Ethel Nobes was appointed to be a delegate to the Trent Valley Area Convention in Campbellford, October 28 and 29, Marie O'Neill was appointed as an alternate.

The members decided to send a donation for the Save the Sight Fund.

Grace Warren announced plans for a trip to visit Hastings County Museum Glanmore House in October.

Verna Neal presented Aletha Colden with a cup and saucer for her 50th wedding anniversary which she and her husband observed in August and a similar gift to Ella Potts who is moving to Manitoulin Island soon.

It was suggested that members wear their Centennial costumes for the next meeting which has been designated as Grandmothers' Night.

Ann Landers

Adolescence Hard on Everyone

[redacted]

Dear Ann Landers: I am just an average 16-year-old girl, but my parents bug me. They keep saying, "It's so hard to be parents these days." Why don't they realize it's hard to be a teen-ager, too?

This is a crazy, mixed-up world. There are times when I don't know the difference between normal horsing around and what is actually wrong to do. I can't tell some truths from lies. I'm confused about being square or hip.

I want to make my parents proud of me but it's impossible to agree with them all the time and never express an idea of my own. I find myself trying to be the perfect child. But it's impossible to please others all the time. The best I can do is try to be decent and hope I don't let them down.

So, Mom and Dad, if I wear the wrong clothes, or say the wrong thing, or bring home a guy who looks a little freaky, please remember you raised me and basically I'm a pretty good kid. I'm a part of you both so I can't be all bad.

I realize you worked and sweated a lot to bring me up right and one day I'll be doing the same for my children. I just want you to know I think you are really great parents and I love you very much. Please trust me a little and have faith. — Your Stumbling Child

Dear Child: Your letter, straight from the heart of a 16-year-old, could have been written by any of a million kids. Thanks for expressing so honestly your fears, hopes, dreams—and your deep appreciation of your parents love.

I'll bet your mom and dad are very proud of you, in spite of your doubts, and it's my hunch that you'll do just fine.

Dear Ann Landers: This morning we received in the mail a fancy engraved wedding invitation (out-of-town) from former neighbors we have not seen in three years. We have had no contact with these people by letter or phone since they left town. They are not and never were business acquaintances. I wouldn't know their kids if I passed them on the street.

To receive this mailing is such a shameless pitch for a gift that it made me furious. Am I over-reacting, as my husband says? What would you do if you were in my shoes? — Boiling in LaGrange

Dear Boiling: I'd drop a line and say, "Thank you for letting us know your son (or daughter) is being married. So sorry we are unable to attend the wedding but we send our best wishes to you all."

The stamp will cost 10 cents. You will have acknowledged the invitation in a lady-like manner and you can stop boiling already.

CONFIDENTIAL to Did You See It?: Yes, I did, and the results are worth repeating. The study by Dr. Chester Schmidt and others at John Hopkins showed that while alcohol was a factor in 50 per cent of all fatal auto accidents, the drivers followed a distinct personality pattern. They were belligerent, loudmouthed, and aggressive. Nearly one-third had had their licenses suspended at least once. One out of five had been convicted of drunken driving.

CONFIDENTIAL to There's No Fool Like An Old Fool: Sorry, I don't agree. There are more young fools than old fools—and they are the worst. Nature has a way of getting rid of old fools. Young fools just hang around becoming more foolish.

Dear Ann Landers: Please explain why Mr. and Mrs. America must put up with any piece of garbage some fifth-rate company wants to stuff into their mail boxes.

Some of the advertisements that come to our home are a disgrace. I'd be horrified if our children got to the mail first and thought we sent for the junk. I refer not only to sales pitches for pornographic books, pictures, and stag films, but bargains at "ridiculously low prices," as well as high-pressure letters from phoney charities.

Is there some way to get this trash stopped completely? Please, Ann, check at the highest level and let us know.—Victims

Dear V: To rid yourself of unwanted mail, write to Direct Mail Marketing Assn., Inc., 6 East 43rd Street, New York, New York 10017. They will be happy to take your name off their members' lists. Every letter they send out costs them approximately 15 cents for postage and handling. If you don't like their "offers" you are not a potential customer and they'd rather not bother you.

As for pornography and sex-oriented "literature," the U.S. postal authorities can shut that garbage off and will be pleasd to do so if asked.

Your postman can provide you with an anti-pornography application. Fill it out and mail it. After 30 days, if the companies you complained about send you any more junk, criminal action can be taken against them.

Son's Senseless Death Changes Father's Life

DALLAS (AP) — Phil Schilt is a mathematician, and for him there was no logic, nothing a man could wrap his hands around and say "this killed my son."

But something did kill his son—Sudden Infant Death Syndrome—a phenomenon that physicians have been unable to find a reason for.

It just happens. And it happened to Schilt and his wife, Lynne, when the couple lived in New Jersey where Schilt was employed as a computer specialist for Columbia Broadcasting Systems.

Schilt, 32, is a father in a society which often expects a John Wayne toughness from fathers who have lost sons. But Schilt agonizes over the death of four-months-old Philip to this day — three years later.

He refuses to look at the baby's pictures.

"The baby was still up and I asked Lynne to put him to bed before I came home. That evening I thought I heard Lynne call me. As I turned around to face the crib, I sensed there was no life in our baby.'

Schilt clutched at the lifeless form and told his wife to summon police. She saw the baby's arm hanging limp, screamed and raced for the telephone.

Schilt's frantic efforts to revive the child were useless.

"I am in the field of computers and my son's death held no logic for me. I was in a state of solitude. I choked on my words."

Mechanically, Schilt made all the arrangements for the infant's funeral and the couple began the trip to Schilt's hometown, Watertown, N.Y.

Though it was March, New York State was still deep in winter, the ground tough and unyielding, the sky a hardened grey.

"I recall drinking a hell of a lot of Scotch," he said. "The day of the funeral was awful. We had the coffin sealed and it looked like an oversized egg basket. It was so hard to believe my son was in there, and even today I sometimes ask myslf, 'Was the baby really buried?' "

Months later, Schilt still couldn't handle his memories of Philip. "I didn't like the apartment any more after the baby died. The afghan I laid him on that night stayed in mothballs 10 months. There was a picture, a plaque sort of thing, on the wall behind the couch that would make the baby be all smiles. I couldn't stand to look at it."

The Schilts now have another son, a two-year-old. And true to his vow, Schilt has named him Philip James II.

"I don't think there is a day I look at this one and don't think of the other one. I always think he would be this old, or he would be this high. I just can't help but think of the other one."

Mother and Son Run Uniform Specialty Stores

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — when Merv Sieber and his mother Vi viist each other, they talk about business and cooking.

For Mr. Sieber opened the first uniform specialty shop in Halifax about 10 years ago while his mother, Vi Morris, opened the first such store in Kitchener a few years later.

The family's attention was directed to opening a specialty shop when Mr. Sieber and his wife Shirley, a nurse, stopped at a uniform store in Buffalo, N.Y., since no such stores were in Halifax.

While she tried on various styles, Mr. Sieber chatted with the store's owner and learned of its operations.

A short time later, he started his business in Halifax.

Mrs. Morris, who had separated from her second husband, joined her son in Halifax to help the new business get on its feet.

She did all the alterations without charge. "This was a great drawing card."

When a delivery of nurses' capes meant a wait of six months, Mrs. Morris would unroll some flannel and make them herself.

During a two-year expansion to Sydney and Cape Breton, N.S., Mrs. Morris ran the main store until she moved back to Ontario to start her own business.

For the first two years in Kitchener, she did everything herself—working in the store 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., doing her own bookkeeping and alterations.

"I had a lot of faith in myself," she said. "I knew I could do it.

"I trust people and I've never lost."

To prove this, Mrs. Morris sends uniforms to outlying areas on approval.

The store involves most of her time. She never reads or watches television but sews late into the night.

In addition to being business colleagues, mother and son share an interest in baking and cooking.

Over the years, Mrs. Morris has won prizes at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto for canning and baking, including two first place awards for sponge cake and jelly roll.

Raisin pies are among her specialties.

Instead of lemon juice, she uses vinegar from pickles while her magic ingredient is cold water added to every mixture before placing in the oven.

Her son noted that a cook must have an imagination.

"You have got to be able to picture in your mind as you go along," he said.

He also adheres to strict cooking rules such as that all meat should be cooked with onions, all soup and gravy with wine, no measuring and two readings for every recipe.

Cooks should never hesitate to experiment and start with a taste they like and build from there, he said.

He does not consider himself a gourmet cook.

"I don't do bumble bees or anything like that. I like the basics done well."

'Government Funds Not Adequate For Children with Special Needs'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario government is not taking care of the needs of children with learning disabilities says the president of an association formed to fight for the rights of these children.

Ruth Rowlatt said Tuesday the provincial government is not giving schools enough money to hire special teachers or pay them competitive wages and many children with learning disabilities are losing out.

"The schools are doing a noble job and the staff are good but the services are not adequate. It is very serious that these kids in trouble cannot get help," said Mrs. Rowlatt, president of the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

She said many children have to go to the United States for training but in the past Ontario has not given financial assistance to any students under 18 years of age.

Sheila Morrison, a spokesman for the Parent Action League in Toronto, said there are 6,000 children with learning disabilities in Ontario and estimated it cost $7,000 to $12,000 a year for their tuition.

A spokesman for the Carleton board of education said the number of special teachers has increased by 25 per cent over last year, bringing the total number of specialized teachers at the elementary level to 63 out of 1,200 and 13 out of 700 teachers at the secondary level.

Now Fort McMurray Locks Liquor Store

FORT McMURRAY, Alta (CP) — Everyone calls Peter and Lavina Tolen Ma and Pa.

Peter is almost 87, Lavina 82. They came to Fort McMurray 37 years ago, long before the town began to reel before the impact of development in northeastern Alberta's oil sands. They don't like what's happening.

Nels Leirdal, 69, came to Fort McMurray 39 years ago when the only highways were the rivers he travelled as a steamboat hand.

"I used to love it here," he said. "When I first came, nobody locked their doors. Not even the liquor store locked at night. Nobody bothered any-paid for it. It was really a nice place."

Mr. Leirdal and the Tolens live in Waterways, the oldest part of the town. It is quiet and serene, with large, old trees and old houses.

The Tolens live in the same log house Mr. Tolen built in the winter of 1938.

Mr. Leirdal and the Tolens sat together recently in the wooden Legion Hall in Waterways at the public meeting held to discuss whether Waterways should be rezoned from residential to commercial or industrial use.

A realty company said their planned condominium development would fit in with the community. A developer who proposes a small shopping centre said the same.

"I'd rather be a kid in Waterways than anywhere else, except maybe on a farm," wrote nine young children in a brief opposing the rezoning idea. "Give us a break. We need our swimming holes and our parks."

Another brief said that anyone who would "attack an area such as Waterways with commercial industrial development permits and bulldozers would have to have rocks in his head."

"That's a darn good letter," Mr. Tolen said.

The next day, Mrs. Tolen said she felt somewhat comforted by the meeting.

"I guess a lot of people thought it would be all commercial and they were really out to fight, believe me. But I guess it's not so bad. They said the developments would fit in and not be too big. I wouldn't want to go against progress, but I don't know, it's just not the friendly, sociable town it used to be."

Billy Bird, who was born in Fort McMurray in 1907 and guided riverboats along the waterways of the area all his life, agreed.

"McMurray was better when there was just a thousand people and you knew everybody. I wouldn't go saying mother (his wife, Ethel) and I would stay if it got to 50,000 (people), but we've got our roots here."

Melrose Keeps SHBL Playoff Hopes Alive

It was a case of do or die for Melrose in their South Hastings Baseball League final contest Sunday in Latta.

The Melrose squad, fifth place finishers in the regular season, had ost 2-1 Saturday and faced elimination in the best-of-seven series Sunday.

Being the underdogs in the series, since Latta had finished in first place in the regular season, and playing on foreign ground didn't effect the output of Melrose creew though, as they scored three times in first inning and hung on for a 3-0 victory. The final now stands at 3-2 for Latta with the sixth game scheduled for Sunday in Melrose at 2 p.m.

Experience paid off for the winners as veteran Ted Abrams hurled the full nine innings giving up just five hits. He fanned five and issued four free bases.

Strong pitching wasn't the only contribution Abrams made. He drove in a pair of runs in Melrose first inning rally and scored the third.

Scott McLaren collected two singles for the winners and Rick Meagher, Bruce Pascoe and Hugh Brennan each had one.

Melrose was the victim of circumstances beyond their reach Saturday as they dropped the 2-1 decision. They outhit Latta 9-3, but lost due to errors.

Dale Bamber threw the victory striking out six and walking four. John Pepper was the loser. He fanned six and walqed one.

The contest went 10 innings before Wayne Harrison crossed the plate with his second run of the game. Harrison scored in the second inning on a walk, a stolen base and an error. In the tenth he led off with a double, then with two out, scored on another Melrose miscue.

Ron Harrison was the only other Latta player to reach Pepper. He had two singles.

Glen McMechan and Bruce Pascoe were the big guns for the losers. They both had two singles apiece.

Cats Make It 3 in a Row

The Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B League won their third straight exhibition game on Sunday night as the Kinston Township Voyageurs bowed to the visiting Cats by a score of 5-3.

Five Cats shared in the scoring duties for the winners as the Belleville squad appear to have a winning combination for this season. Gary Thompson had the only goal for Belleville in the opening period which ended in a 1-1 tie. Mike Dawson responded for Kingston.

Each club scored a pair of goals in the middle frame. For the winers it was defenceman Tom Belch and Grant Goegan. Goegan picked up two assists as well. Carl Reid and Tom Carroll responded for the Voyageurs.

In the final frame Belleville outscored the oppostion by a 2-0 margin. Mike Crawford, playing in his second game with the locals, netted the winning goal midway through the third. Scott Samis rounded out the scoring for the Cats with his single.

Each team was assessed a total of 24 minutes in penalties, all minors. Belleville has three remaining games left in their exhibition schedule including a return match with Whitby on Tuesday and a home game this Friday against the Oshawa Legionaires.

FIRST PERIOD SCORING

Trenton Ball Meeting Flops

TRENTON — Efforts to elect a Trenton Minor Baseball Association executive and plan for the 1976 season failed miserably here Sunday night.

In response to a well advertised meeting which was to have included an election of officers, only four members of the 1974 executive; a representative from Middleton Park Community Council and one interested parent turned out.

"This is our last official act," vowed Gord Webb, TMBA commissioner for 1974.

His statement was echoed by vice-commissioner Don Cole, treasurer Ray Dicresceno and publicity chairman Chris Verheyen.

"There are about 500 young people involved in the program and next spring 1,000 parents will complain because nothing is being done but where are these people tonight?" Webb wondered out loud.

Answering his own question, Webb offered the opinion that "no one wants to be on the executive."

"That's the problem," he said.

"If anyone wants to take over next year, they'll be told where to pick up the equipment," Webb continued.

"We've got plenty of good equipment and the association will have a bank balance."

"When the books have been audited, we'll advertise for someone to take over. After that, I'm washing my hands of it," he said.

Minor baseball in Trenton, now berefit of leadership, may be revived between now and May 1976. But it will take the emergence of some enthusiastic workers to accomplish the task.

Whether Eastern Ontario Baseball Association teams representing Trenton at the tyke, peewee and bantam levels will be adversely affected by the turn of events remains a question mark.

Rob Scully of the Centennial Chargers had one step on defender, Gary McNamara which enabled him to grab this pass in Saturday's benefit game for Frank Hubble. The game was between the Centennial senior football squad and the Centennial Alumni made up of graduates of Centennial. The Alumni showed that they hadn't lost the touch as they downed the opposition by a 12-6 margin.

Kinsmen Bow Out

SCARBOROUGH (Special)— — Belleville Kinsmen scored early but it was Scarborough Cedar Hill coming on in the late innings to post a 5-4 win and capture the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Squirt A semi-final series 2-1 in games, here, Sunday.

The Belleville team owned a 4-1 lead after two innings but Cedar Hill kept whittling away at the deficit, counting single runs in each of the fourth and fifth frames and salting it away with a two-run rally in the sixth.

Winning pitcher Greg Clarke allowed only three singles while striking out six and walking one. Allan Thompson took the loss, giving up five hits, fanning seven and walking seven.

Clarke helped his own cause with a triple and Kevin Young poked two Cedar hill singles.

Looking after the bulk of the Belleville hitting was Peter Wood with a pair of safeties. David Phillips had the other Kinsmen safety.

Charlie Nesterovsky of the Olympics had his work cut out for him as the Kingston performer scored all three goals in his team's 5-3 loss to the Olympics. Nesterovsky also played a good game for Belleville on the defence, stopping several breaks by the Kingston forwards.

Softball Closes 1975 Season

The Belleville Minor Softball Association held their annual closing day on Sunday recognizing the winning teams and the most valuable players in each of the four divisions.

This year in the tyke division, the AOCO team took the pennant for finishing first in the regular season and also clinched the City Championship. The Bob Blaind Trophy and the Reginald L. McGee Memorial trophy will now be in the AOCO trophy case. Plaques and individual trophies were also presented.

Brian Clarey of the Town and Country Restaurant team was voted the Most Valuable Player for the East Hill and received the Booth TV Trophy. Carl Derusha of AOCO picked up the MVP award for the West Hill and was presented with the Doug Jackson Trophy.

In the Squirt division, Ernie Tuck Appliance Service clinched the pennant for finishing on top of the league in regular season play. They were presented with the Ray's Signs Trophy. The A division playoff champion this season was Complete Rent-Alls and received individual trophies. The B division champion was Colonial Real Estate.

Complete Rent-Alls wound up City Champions and received the G. B. Hugh Sutherland trophy for the achievement.

MVP for the East Hill was Barry Fraser of the Belleville Plaza who was presented with the G. E. Bucky Ethier Memorial Trophy. In the West Hill it was Jody Millar of Ernie Tuck Appliance who was presented with the Stephen Licence Trophy.

The Kinsmen Squirts dominated the Pee Wee Division clinching both the pennant and the City Championships as well as sporting the MVP winner. The O'Connor Jewel Box trophy was presented for finishing on top of league standings and the Nick Golka Memorial trophy went to the team for winning the City Championship:

Allan Thompson was presented with the Freddie Clarke Memorial Trophy for being voted the MVP for the Peewee division.

In the Bantam-Midget division, the Red Shark club were pennant winners as well as taking the City title. Chiasson Trophies Trophy and the Don Bell Sport shop Trophy went to the winners for their respective wins. The Most Valuable Midget in the league was Michael O'Shaughnessy of the Belleville Police Association. Tim McWilliams also of the Belleville Police Association took the award in the Bantam section of the league. The players received the Jim Tebworth and Ernie Tuck Appliance trophies respectively.

In the special awards section of the program, John Jianopoulos captured the Midget Batting championship with an overall average of .577 including six home runs and 37 runs batted in.

David Gee took the same honor in the Bantam division with an average of .446 including two home runs and 14 runs batted in. The outstanding pitcher in the Midget section was Randy Smith who posted an earned run average of 3.91 a game and finished up the season with five wins and no losses, striking out 71 batters in 46 innings.

Named most valuable player in the bantam division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association, Tim McWilliams receives trophy from Ernie Tuck. McWilliams did his softball playing for Police Association team.

Thurlow Squares OBA Semi-final

Thurlow Chisholm's of Roslin Bantams evened their Ontario Baseball Association C semi-final with Merriton at Cannifton, Sunday, taking advantage of an error to score the winning run in the 12th inning. Final score was 7-6.

The third and deciding game in the series is scheduled for Saturday, in Merriton, at 2 p.m.

Winning pitcher Gary Badgley scattered nine hits while going the distance. He struck out 19 and walked two.

Brad Haine and Jim Kimple shared the pitching for Merriton, allowing 11 hits. They chalked up nine strikeouts and walked five.

Loyalist Third In Golf Tourney

CFB Trenton Golf Course was the site of the third annual Loyalist College Invitational Golf Tournament on Friday. In the team results, Loyalist placed third overall with a total score of 350 behind Durham College with 325 and, the winners, St. Lawrence of Kingston who had the low score of 323.

In the individual results Bill Crow of Kingston took top honors with a 73, Layton Baumgart of Loyalist placed second with a 77 and third spot went to Daryl Bolashefsky of Durham. He edged out Dwight Leeder of Kingston by one stroke with his 80.

A total of 40 golfers with six teams took part including Sir Sanford Fleming of Peterborough, Sir Sanford Fleming of Lindsay and Algonquin College.

Bardon; Strathroy Tied Up

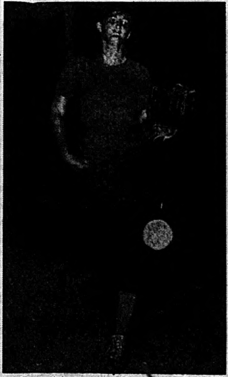
STRATHROY (Special) - Scoring all its runs in the bottom of the third inning, Strathroy knotted its Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate B semi-final playoff with Bardon Supplies of Picton at 1-1 here, Saturday. A five-run burst erased a 2-0 Bardon lead and all the visitors could manage after that was a single run in the fourth.

Third and final game in the series will be played here, Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Lefty Clarke drove home two of the Strathroy runs with one of two hits he supplied to spark the winners. Catcher Bob Whitelaw slammed a solo homer.

Ken DeMille tripled to drive in two Bardon runs while Ted and Rob Wallwork each connected for a pair of safeties for the Picton squad.

Ivan Harrington got the win, allowing nine base hits while striking out nine. DeMille started for Bardon with Earl Foster coming on in the fourth to turn in an effective relief effort.



Sue Morton – Key to Title

Olympics Down Italo

The Belleville Olympics of the Premier Soccer League, shoeing excellent ball contol and some very accurate apssing in the sedond half, scored an exciting 5-3 win over the Kingston Italo Canadians Sunday in Belleville.

Belleville could have possibly doubled the score on their opponents if all the missed chances had resulted in goals. The Olympics were forced to play catch up ball for most of the game, but never gave up the fight. Especially noticeable was the passing plays of Bob Watson and Zdravko Fundic. Zdravko picked up a pair of goals or the winners while Watson tallied a single.

Kingston early in the first half opened the coring and by the end of the half had built up a 2-1 lead holding a slight edge in play. Tom Martin of the visitors showed good form during the course of the contest as he responded with all three of the losers goals.

Zdravko started the second half rally for the local squad counting two goals and one assist in the last three scoring plays. Watson picked up two assists and the final goal of the game. Ernie Brown and Kevin Kirby scored once each in the first half to round out the scoring for Belleville.

In an earlier contest at Sir James Whitney, the Kingston Portuguese and the Peterborough Vi-Mars battled to a 2-2 tie.

MADOC (Special) — Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund edged Madoc Purinaettes 7-6 here, Thursday, to win their fourth Belleville and District Ladies Softball League championship in five years. The Yardmen took the best-of-seven series in four straight games.

Six runs in the fifth inning sparked the Belleville drive behind the winning pitching of Sue Morton. Morton, besides earning her fourth victory in the series, pounded a home run and drove in another three. Sheila Smith also had a good game for the winners with her homerun, triple and three RBIs.

Madoc at the end of the first inning had a 4-0 lead as a result of two errors with the beres Madoc at the end of t inning had a 4-0 lead as a result of two errors with the bases loaded by the Belleville team. Belleville scored a run in the third inning setting the stage for the big fifth. Roseanne Chapman led the losing Madoc team with a double, triple and five runs batted in. Jane and Joan Bailey each had a double and single for the losers.

Red Sox Lose Rice As the Race Tightens

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles are a September club and if Boston Red Sox are going to be an October club, they'll have to do it without Jim Rice.

Rice, the rookie who ranks second in the American League with 102 runs batted in, suffered a broken left hand Sunday in Boston's 6-5 victory over Detroit Tigers. He will be out for the rest of the baseball season.

Whether that season lasts beyond the regular schedule and then beyond the American League playoffs is up to other Red Sox players.

And whether Baltimore's September surge will lead to October glory is also up to the Red Sox.

"We should have been playing like this all year," said Brooks Robinson after the Orioles blanked Milwaukee 3-0 as Mike Torrez notched his 20th victory with a two-hitter. "The guys seem to get turned on in September.

"But it might be too late this year."

In Sunday's other American League games, California Angels beat Minnesota Twins 5-2, Texas Rangers crushed Chicago White Sox 8-2, Kansas City Royals nipped Oakland A's 2-1, and Cleveland Indians beat New York Yankees 3-2 before losing the second game 11-5.

BROOKS ROBINSON

On Saturday, Detroit beat Boston 5-1, Baltimore edged Milwaukee 5-4, Minnesota shaded California 3-2, Texas downed Chicago 5-3, Oakland walloped Kansas City 16-4 and New York dropped Cleveland 4-1.

Today, the Red Sox are 3½ games up on the Orioles, needing any combination of Boston victories and Baltimore losses totaling five to win the East title.

But capturing the title will be more difficult wihout Rice, a poised, 22-year-old with a .309 batting average and 22 home runs.

The young outfielder was injured by a Vern Ruhle pitch in the second inning. He stayed in the game, batting twice before the pain got to him.

He was then taken to hospital, where a spokesman said he had a broken fourth metacarpal. His hand was placed in a cast.

"I'm not going to worry about it unless they tell me it's something bad," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson before learning the extent of the injury. "The only thing I ever worry about when I go home at night is whether one of my guys is hurt."

With Rice out, the Red Sox, who rallied for Sunday's victory on Denny Doyle's bases-loaded, two-run double in the ninth inning, were quick to locate some additional batting help. They acquired journeyman Deron Johnson from Chicago White Sox.

Meanwhile, the Orioles continued applying pressure to the Red Sox, winning their 14th game in their last 17.

Ellie Hendricks knocked in two runs to back Torrez, who issued two walks and didn't permit a runner past second. Torrez, part of Baltimore's bounty—along with Ken Singleton—in an of-season trade with Montreal Expos, has lost eight times.

He joined Jim Palmer, Catfish Hunter, Vida Blue, Jim Kaat and Tom Seaver in this season's 20-win club.

Tonight could be the night when Oakland officially wins its fifth successive West crown.

The A's, ahead by seven games, need only one victory or one Kansas City loss to clinch the title. Kansas City plays host to Texas and Oakland is home to Minnesota.

Bobby Bonds of the Yankees hit homers in both games of their doubleheader to become the first player to hit 30 homers and steal 30 bases in three successive seasons.

Roy White drove in four runs with a home run and a pair of doubles in the second-game victory. The Indians won the first game 3-2 on the pitching of rookie Rick Waits and reliever Dave LaRoche.

Wilbur Wood became a 20-game loser, giving up four hits—home runs to Jeff Burroughs, Jim Fregosi, Dave Nelson and Mike Hargrove. Gaylord Perry, 17-17, pitched a six-hitter.

Lee Stanton had four hits, drove in three runs and scored one run to raise his RBI total to 80. Ed Figueroa, who posted his fourth successive victory and 16th of the year, was removed from the game after six innings when his arm stiffened.

Heavyweight Title Is Declared Vacant

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Professional Boxing Federation has declared vacant the Canadian heavyweight boxing title because of the long inactivity of George Chuvalo of Toronto.

The federation, at its annual meeting, was told Saturday that Chuvalo has not fought for nearly two years and is believed retired from the ring.

The federation also has ordered Canadian lightweight champion Johnny Summerhays of Brantford, Ont., to defend his title within 60 days against Allan Ford of Edmonton.

Ford, a former holder of the title, scored two impressive victories since starting a comeback last April.

Joe Borden of New Glasgow, N.S., has been named top contender for the Canadian light-heavyweight title held by Gary Summerhays of Brantford.

The federation also decided licensed professional boxers engaging in bouts against karate experts, wrestlers and kick boxers will face an automatic 30-day suspension for the first offence, three months for a second and six months for a third offence.

The federation, which represents athletic commissions and boxing and wrestling commissions across Canada, also decided that professional boxers will not be permitted to take part in a fight within seven days of their last bout.

Dr. Jean LaRoche of Montreal was re-elected president for a fifth successive one-year term.

Mr. Hayter was elected first vice-president, Donald Kerr of Halifax second vice-president, Harry Lampert of Moncton, N.B., third vice-president, Ed Sweeney of Vancouver fourth vice-president, Olivier Routhier of Sherbrooke, Que. fifth vice-president and Frank Allnutt of Don Mills, Ont., secretary treasurer.

No Takers — Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto boxer George Chuvalo said he is "thoroughly irritated" with reports from Vancouver that the Canadian Professional Boxing Federation has declared vacant his Canadian heavyweight title because of inactivity.

"No one ever wanted to fight me," said Chuvalo, the reigning British Commonwealth champion. "I've got the title, so they should come looking for me."

Chuvalo said his manager, Irving Ungerman, has been in contact with the association on numerous occasions in an attempt to line up a fight, but nothing ever came of the efforts.

The association was told at its annual meeting Saturday that Chuvalo has not fought for nearly two years and was believed to have retired from the ring.

Bucs Can Clinch Pennant

It's All Up to Phils

By THE ASSOCIAED PRESS

Even a confirmed optimist like reliever Tug McGraw admits things look bleak for Philadelphia Phillies in baseball's National League East pennant race.

It boils down to this: Pittsburgh plays Philadelphia on the next three nights. All the Pirates have to do is win one of those games and they win the East title.

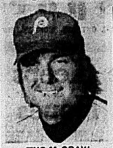
"We'll go out and play and hope to make it interesting," said McGraw. "But we'll be fortunate if we win."

The Pirates turned in a come-from-behind 5-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals on Sunday while the Phillies beat New York Mets 4-2. That left the Pirates six games ahead with seven to play.

In Sunday's other National League games, Cincinnati Reds blanked Atlanta Braves 3-0, Houston Astros defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1, San Francisco Giants edged San Diego Padres 2-1 and Montreal Expos shaded Chicago Cubs 5-4.

On Saturday, St. Louis trimmed Pittsburgh 8-2, New York downed Philadelphia 9-7, Cincinnati trounced Atlanta 9-2, Los Angeles nipped Houston 5-4, San Francisco defeated San Diego 4-2 and Montreal topped Chicago 3-1.

St. Louis right-hander Bob Forsch took a two-hitter and a 3-1 lead into the bottom of the eighth but left in favor of Mike Wallace after Manny Sanguillen led off with a single. Wallace walked Bob Robertson and gave way to Mike Garman.



TUG McGRAW

Pinch-hitter Willie Randolph singled for one run, Garman threw Stennett's bunt away for another, Richie Hebner hit a sacrifice fly for a third and Al Oliver capped the rally with a run-scoring single.

The Phillies won their game with less drama, building a 4-0 lead on a two-run double by Dick Allen and a run-scoring double and sacrifice fly by Mike Anderson.

Dick Ruthven, 2-2, checked the Mets until the seventh when McGraw came on to earn his 14th save, but not before giving up a two-run homer to Ron Hodges in the ninth.

Rookie Tom Underwood, 14-12, gets the assignment of holding the fort for the Phillies tonight while Bruce Kison, 11-11, is scheduled to pitch for Pittsburgh.

Left-hander Don Gullett, 14-4, and Rawley Eastwick combined on a two-hitter and Ken Griffey hit a two-run homer in the first for Cincinnati.

J.R. Richard held Los Angeles to eight hits and contributed a two-run single for Houston.

John Montefusco pitched a five-hitter to improve his record to 14-9, the most victories for a Giant rookie since Larry Jansen won 21 games in 1947.

Jim Lytle's run-scoring with one out in the ninth won it for Montreal. Jerry White homered for the Expos and Manny Trillo hit one for Chicago.

Old and New Argos Put Together a Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts were like a nervous hostess suddenly faced with a houseful of unexpected guests and no food in the fridge.

But, thanks to some crunching tackles served up by a tough defence and a last-minute desert dished out by quarterback Bill Bynum, the party turned out to be a smashing success.

The outcome was a 23-17 victory over Calgary Stampeders, ending Toronto's five-game Canadian Football League losing streak which had prompted the Argos to start wholesale lineup changes that caught them without an experienced running back going into Sunday's contest.

The win left the Argos alone in third place in the Eastern Football Conference, one point ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who managed a 28-28 tie against Saskatchewan Roughriders in Sunday's other CFL interlocking match.

Still leading the EFC are Montreal Alouettes who pulled two points clear of Ottawa Rough Riders with their 20-17 victory over British Columbia Lions Saturday.

The Argos' massive roster overhaul started last week included the firing of running back Ed Shuttlesworth and slotback Eric Allen. On Friday night, the backfield cupboard became bare when halfback Doyle Orange, the leading rusher in the East, suffered a broken hand.

The Argos then tried to bring Shuttlesworth back off waivers to replace Orange, but the Stampeders objected and the Argos were forced to insert Canadian rookie Dave Hadden at fullback along with newcomer running back Dickie Morton, a late cut from Pittsburgh Steelers in the National Football League.

Adding to the confusion was the shuffling of defensive back L. J. Clayton to wide receiver and tight end Larry Simpson to slotback.

In the end, it was Hadden who plunged over for the winning touchdown in the last minute after Bynum rallied the team with four long passes—two each to Clayton and Morton.

While the Argo defence, led by end Jim Corrigall, stifled the running of Calgary speedster Willie Burden in the first half, the makeshift Argos built a 16-1 lead on touchdowns by Morton, on a two-yard plunge, and by Mike Eben on a 19-pard pass from Bynum.

Calgary quarterback Joe Pisarcik went to the air in the second half and mounted two big drives; one ending with a touchdown by Tom Forzani on a seven-yard pass and the other ending with Pisarcik's own touchdown plunge from one yard out.

Pisarcik's score came with less than two minutes remaining, putting Calgary in front 17-16 and apparently snuffing out the Argos' hopes. But Bynum threw four and 13 yards to Morton and then found Clayton open for gains of 16 and 38 yards to move the Argos from their own 37 to the Calgary two where Hadden made his scoring play.

Argo kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn added three converts and two singles and Calgary's Cyril McFall kicked one convert and two singles. Calgary also was awarded a two-point convert on Forzani's touchdown after Toronto was called for pass interference on the throw by Pisarcik to Henry Sovio.

At Regina, the Tiger-Cats appeared headed for a victory, holding a 28-17 lead with just four minutes remaining.

But then Saskatchewan's Ted Dushinski recovered a Hamilton fumble and returned it 52 yards for a touchdown and quarterback Ron Lancaster threw to Steve Molnar for a two-point convert, leaving the Roughies just three points behind.

Saskatchewan got the ball back again with less than two minutes remaining and moved close enough for Jack Abendschan to kick the tying points with a 38-yard field goal.

A 25-yard run by Angelo Santucci and a 17-yard pass reception by Terry Evanshen provided Hamilton touchdowns while Ian Sunter kicked four field goals, two singles and two converts.

Abendschan had two field goals in all, and converts on touchdowns by George Reed and Rhett Dawson, but he missed on three other field goal attempts.

"The kicking game beat us," complained Saskatchewan coach John Payne.

Saturday night's game at Vancouver also featured a late rally with quarterback Sonny Wade coming off the bench to direct the Alouettes in two second-quarter touchdown drives.

The first Als touchdown came on a 47-yard pass from Wade to Larry Smith and fullback Steve Ferguhelli bulled over from the three for the winning touchdown in the last minute of the game.

Fullback Lou Harris, on a one-yard run, and Jim Young, on a 69-yard pass from Pete Liske, scored the B.C. touchdowns.

Don Sweet kicked two converts and two field goals for the Als while Eric Guthrie booted two converts and one field goal for the Lions.

Starting quarterback Jimmy Jones came under constant pressure from the Lions defence, led by end Bill Baker, and Wadetook over in the second half to complete 11 of 15 passes for 134 yards in the Montreal comeback.

Montreal defensive back Ward Smith was the goat on Young's touchdown pass reception but he redeemed himself by intercepting a Liske pass to set up the Al's winning drive.

It was the first loss in four games for B.C. coach Cal Murphy who took over in mid-season from Eagle Keys. The loss left B.C., Calgary and Winnipeg tied for third in the Western Conference.

Wolverines Can't Shake Stanford

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michigan had the audacity to beat Stanford 49-0 in the very first Rose Bowl football game, and the Cardinals have spent the last 70 years or so getting even.

Stanford extracted another measure of revenge Saturday by holding the heavily-favored, second-ranked Wolverines to a 19-19 standoff on Mike Langford's 33-yard field goal with nine seconds left and the passing of Mike Cordova, who completed 24 of 44 for 285 yards and two touchdowns.

In other key games, No. 1-ranked Oklahoma walloped No. 15 Pitt 46-10, third-ranked Ohio State held off No. 7 Penn State 17-9, fifth-ranked Missouri overtook Illinois 30-20, No. 6 Nebraska crushed Indiana 45-0, No. 8 Texas trimmed Washington 28-10, No. 9 Notre Dame blanked Purdue 17-0 and No. 10 Tennessee lost to No. 12 UCLA

National Football League

Hey There, Patriots, The Strike Is Over

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New England Patriots opened the National Football League season with an offence that looked as if it was still on strike.

The Pats' strike a week ago precipitated a week of division in the NFL and resulted in four other club walkouts, round-the-clock contract negotiations and the near-cancellation of the first weekend of games.

The walkouts ended and New England played Sunday. They played—but they didn't score.

Neither did Houston's offence—but the Oilers, thanks to safety Willie Germany's 48-yard sprint with a Mack Herron fumble in the first period, beat New England 7-0.

The only other team that played but didn't score was San Diego Chargers. But the Chargers could be forgiven. They had the unenviable task of opening the season against Pittsburgh Steelers, the defending Super Bowl champion.

The Steelers started the 1975 season with the kind of defence that resulted in the 1974 title, silencing San Diego 37-0.

Three of the other striking teams fared better than the Patriots. Washington Redskins beat New Orleans Saints 41-3, Detroit Lions defeated Green Bay Packers 30-16 and New York Giants defeated Philadelphia Eagles 23-14. The fourth striking club, New York Jets, lost to Buffalo Bills 42-14.

In Sunday's other games, Dallas Cowboys beat Los Angeles Rams 18-7, Denver Broncos outlasted Kansas City Chiefs 37-33, Cincinnati Bengals held off Cleveland Browns 24-17, Chicago Bears beat Baltimore Colts 35-7, Minnesota Vikings beat San Francisco '49ers 27-17 and St. Louis Cardinals fought off Atlanta Falcons 23-20.

In tonight's game, Oakland is at Miami.

What might have happened if the Pats had quarterback Jim Plunkett is a matter for conjecture. With Plunkett sidelined by a shoulder separation, young Neil Graff had to try and do the job. He didn't succeed, passing for only 95 yards and repeatedly failing to connect on the long tosses.

"Our defence played well, exceptionally well when it had to in the clutch," Houston coach Bum Phillips said. "I'm proud of our defence, but New England sure missed Plunkett. It's a lot easier to play without a Plunkett in there at quarterback."

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw completed 21 of 28 passes for 219 yards. Among them were a 40-yard bomb to Frank Lewis and a 38-yarder to John Stallworth, both for touchdowns. "I had a good game," he understated. "I just hope I have 13 more like it." Roy Gerela kicked in with three field goals.

Quarterback Billy Kilmer, one of the most vocal supporters of Washington's walkout, unleashed four touchdown passes, two to Charley Taylor and one each to Jerry Smith and Ralph Nelson.

"Breaking into pro football this way is kind of tough," said Green Bay's rookie punter, Steve Broussard, who had three of his punts blocked and turned into Detroit touchdowns that ruined Bart Starr's debut as the Packers' head coach.

Levi Johnson blocked two, recovering one in the end one and enabling Larry Ball to pick up the second and run 34 yards for a touchdown.

The Giants beat the Eagles on two short second-quarter touchdown sweeps by running back Ron Johnson and George Hunt's 41-yard field goal with 4:45 left in the game. Philadelphia got two touchdown passes, one apiece by Mike Boryla and Roman Gabriel.

Buffalo's O. J. Simpson scored two touchdowns and rushed for 173 yards against the Jets. He also had 73 rushing yards wiped out by penalties against his team-mates.

Bill's quarterback Joe Ferguson passed for two touchdowns and ran for a third on a busted play. New York's Joe Namath also passed for two scores but was intercepted four times.

Dallas intercepted Rams' quarterback James Harris three times and held Los Angeles to only 20 yards passing. Toni Fritsch kicked four field goals in the lopsided game.

Billy Van Heusen grabbed a Charley Johnson touchdown pass with 1:49 left, capping a two-touchdown burst that pushed Denver past Kansas City and spoiled the debut of Chiefs' coach Paul Wiggin.

Ken Anderson completed 17 of 27 passes for 287 yards, including 16 yards to Isaac Curtis for a touchdown, and Boobie Clark and Lenvil Elliott rushed for scores as the Bengals beat Cleveland.

Bert Jones hit Glenn Doughty with a pair of scoring passes and Don McCauley scored two touchdowns in the Colts' rout of Chicago.

Running backs Brent McClanahan and Chuck Foreman scored fourth-quarter touchdowns to lead the defending NFC champion Vikings past San Francisco.

St. Louis' Jim Bakken kicked a 25-yard field goal at the final gun to wreck the Falcons' upset hopes.

Walton and Reed Get the Job Done

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnnie Walton did it by air, Matthew Reed did it on the ground—but both World Football League quarterbacks got the job done.

Walton of San Antonio Wings passed for 250 yards, including a pair of long touchdown bombs, to lead the Wings to a 30-11 victory over the Hawaiians Sunday, giving San Antonio a 1½-game lead in the WFL's Western Division.

Meanwhile, Reed, of Birmingham Vulcans, found his receivers covered late in the fourth quarter so he tucked the ball under his arm and barreled 32 yards for a touchdown, capping a comeback that gave the Vulcans a 22-16 victory over Charlotte Hornets.

In the other WFL game Sunday, Memphis Grizzlies beat Portland Thunder 16-3 to remain one-half game ahead of Birmingham in the WFL East.

On Saturday, Shreveport Steamer beat Southern California Sun 38-29 and Jacksonville Express defeated Philadelphia Bell 16-10.

Announced attendance at the five WFL games played on the first weekend of competition with the National Football League's regular season averaged 14,653. Crowds ranged from 10,296 at Jacksonville to 18,777 at Shreveport.

Jets Win Again

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Bobby Hull, Norm Beaudin and Anders Hedberg scored two goals each Sunday to lead Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association to an 8-2 win over Leksand of the Swedish Major Hockey League. The Jets, which beat the Swedish Ntaionals 6-2 and Stockholm All-Stars 7-3 in earlier games, completely outplayed the Swedish champions Sunday in recording their third consecutive win. Defenceman Ted Green and Ulf Nilsson were the other Winnipeg scorers.

WHA Will Grow

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association is planning to expand by four teams, possibly in time for the 1976-77 season, league chairman Ben Hatskin said Sunday.

Hatskin said the league is attempting to place franchises in New York, Seattle, Miami and Hamilton.

"We are attempting to place franchises in those four cities. We ar looking at an 18-team league with three divisions of six teams each."

A group headed by Toronto businessman Ted Tobias has already received verbal approval for a Hamilton franchise and is planning to build a new arena there.

The WHA has a lease on the Seattle Coliseum and has scheduled some exhibition games there this season.

A New York franchise would be the second WHA attempt at that major market area which already has two National Hockey League teams. The WHA New York Golden Blades franchise was shifted after the league's first season in 1972.

"I'm confident you can sell anything in New York," said Hatskin. "It's just a matter of finding the right people to buy the team and promote the game. A lot of possible buyers of a franchise have shown an interest and it's just a matter of screening them."

Fight Night In the NHL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pre-season hockey games are supposed to be used by players to hone their playing skills and get in shape for the regular season but players on four National Hockey League clubs used the exhibition games Sunday night to sharpen their fighting skills.

In Chicago, referee Andy van Hellemond called 208 minutes in penalties as the Black Hawks downed Boston Bruins 6-2. Meanwhile in Philadelphia, referee Bruce Hood called the game with 1:45 remaining in the third period with Montreal Canadiens holding a 6-2 lead over the Flyers.

In other games, Buffalo Sabres topped Washington Capitals 4-1, Minnesota North Stars and Detroit Red Wings battled to a 3-3 tie and Vancouver Canucks edged Los Angeles Kings 2-1.

Saturday night, Philadelphia edged the Canadiens 5-4 in Montreal, Detroit blanked Minnesota 4-0, St. Louis Blues and Pittsburgh Penguins played to a 1-1 draw, Kansas City Scouts defeated Washington 4-2, Chicago topped Dallas Black Hawks of the Central Hockey League 9-6 and California Seals and Salt Lake of the CHL played to a 5-5 tie.

In Chicago, Referee van Hellemond cleared the ice late in the second period Sunday after a 17-minute melee between the Bruins and the Black Hawks.

A total of 11 penalties in the first period and 38 more in the second period were called, including eight game misconduct penalties and several for fighting.

Defenceman Dick Redmond scored three power-play goals to lead the Chicago attack.

With 4:27 left in the second period, Boston's Carol Vadnais and Chicago's Phil Russell started fighting after crashing into the boards near the Boston net.

Hank Nowak, who had just served a five-minute penalty for fighting, then went to his teammate's aid. At that point Randy Holt, who earlier was involved in a fight with Andre Savard, went after Nowak and knocked him to the ice.

Boston's Bobby Schmaut left the bench to rush to Nowak's aid and then Boston's Terry O'Reilly and Chicago's Grant Mulvey started fighting.

An unidentified Boston player then left the bench and both benches emptied. Then van Hellemond cleared the ice.

Given game misconducts for the fight were Boston's Mike Milbury, Vadnais, O'Reilly and Schmautz and Chicago's Holt, Mulvey and Russell. Savard was ejected earlier in the game for his part in a fight.

Referee Hood called the game in Philadelphia after a bench-clearing brawl lasted more than 10 minutes.

Left winger Steve Shutt scored twice for Montreal as the visitors took advantage of 19 penalties against the defending Stanley Cup champions in the first two periods to build a 5-2 edge.

Two of Montreal's goals came with the Flyers two players short.

At St. Catharines, Ont., Jerry Korab, Rick Martin, Lee Fogolin and Gary MacAdam scored for the Sabres.

Buffalo coach Floyd Smith used Martin on a line with Gilbert Perreault and Michel Deziel, moving Rene Robert, a regular on the French Connection line last season to a spot on a trio with Jim Lorentz and Craig Ramsay. Martin also was used with centre Peter McNab and winger Danny Gare.

In Kalamazoo, Mich., Detroit's Phil Roberto scored with 44 seconds left in the game to enable the Red Wings to salvage the tie with Minnesota.

In Los Angeles, defenceman Tracy Pratt rifled home a 45-foot shot in the second period as Vancouver defeated the Kings.

Earlier in the day, Los Angeles backup goalie Gary Edwards suffered a broken finger and will be lost to the Kings for an indefinite period.

Meanwhile, Bobby Orr of the Bruins underwent surgery Saturday to remove bony formations impinging on his left knee joints. Orr will not be back in the Boston lineup for at least eight weeks.

Manchester United Makes Critics Eat Their Words

LONDON (Reuter) — Manchester United finally beat a good soccer team Saturday and improved its position on top of the English League First Division.

United, newly promoted from the Second Division, has led the league since the season began, but its critics had been pointing out that the five previous victories had come at the expense of the bottom five clubs in the standings.

Ipswich is only slightly higher, but it's one of the strongest young sides in the country and, after a slow start, had been showing the form that made it a contender for the league championship last season.

United, however, was too strong for Ipswich at Old Trafford Saturday. Defender Stewart Houston got the goal that gave United a 1-0 victory midway through the opening half, and United came close to scoring on several other occasions.

West Ham United kept pace, however, beating Sheffield United 2-0 at home to maintain its undefeated record through eight matches. Manchester United retains the leadership on goal average.

Now, however, there is daylight between them and the rest of the division. Queen's Park Rangers, held to a scoreless draw at Middlesbrough, are still third and also undefeated, but their 11 points from eight matches leaves them two points behind the leaders.

Liverpool, Everton, Leeds United and defending champion Derby County are tied on 10 points, ready to move up if the clubs above them falter.

Liverpool was held scoreless for a half at home by Aston Villa, then scored three goals in the second half. Derby County beat Manchester City 1-0 as City maintained its dismal road record. It was the worst team in the division last season and this year has yet to score a point—or a goal—away from home in four matches.

The heaviest scoring in the division came from two clubs well back in the standings. Birmingham City sacked manager Freddie Goodwin during the week after failing to win in seven matches. Saturday, the club scored four goals in the second half to swamp Burnley 4-0.

Newcastle United played for the third consecutive game without ace striker Malcolm MacDonald but Alan Gowling scored three goals and John Tudor and Tom Cassidy added one each in a 5-1 romp over Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Once-powerful London clubs Arsenal and Tottenham Hotspur each got a point. Arsenal rallied for a 2-2 draw against Everton and Spurs came from behind for a 1-1 draw against Leeds.

In the second division, Notts County stayed on top while Sunderland took over second. But the story of the day in the division came from Chelsea where the home club, demoted from the First Division, had four players booked in a 1-1 draw against Bristol City.

Brothers Are Winners

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — Mike and Bob Staniforth of Montreal won the Ontario Fireball sailing championship organized by Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

The Staniforth brothers won two of the five races and placed second in two more in the two-day, five-race championship held this weekend.

They scored six penalty points in the first four races and did not have to sail the last race to win the championship.

Don and Martha Carr of Toronto finished second with two wins and two third place finishes for 11.4 penalty points.

Terry Moss and Brian Kelly of Toronto finished third with 34 penalty points.

Tony's Make Final

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Oshawa Tony's defeated Newmarket Ray's 2-1 Sunday to advance to the final round of Ontario Fastball League playoffs.

Oshawa is to meet Hamilton Waxman Scrappers tonight in the first game of a best-of-five series for the league championship.

Tony's scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth inning when Bob Smith doubled to score Bob Burke from first base on a close call at home plate.

The home club threatened to tie the game in the bottom of the ninth inning but Oshawa infielder Paul Gibbons made a spectacular catch of a line drive with a runner in scoring position to kill the rally.

Oshawa scored its first run in the opening inning when Phil Solomon singled home Smith. Stu Aiken scored Newmarket's lone run in the third inning.

Winning pitcher Wayne Colley struck out five batters while loser Bill Lunney fanned nine.

Oshawa rebounded to win the last two games of the semi-final series after league officials upheld a protest and stripped the Newmarket club of two wins last week for using an ineligible player.

Quebec Two Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Caribous outscored Montreal 5-1 in the third period to defeat the Quebecois 11-9 Sunday night and take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Lacrosse League final series.

The Quebecois held an 8-6 lead entering the final session after outscoring Quebec 4-2 in the middle session. They led 9-7 with 13 minutes gone in the final session but the Caribous rallied with four goals in the final six minutes of regulation time.

Murray Cawker tied the game at 9-9 at 17:44 and Brian Evans fired his second goal of the night just seven seconds later. Jim Higgs added an insurance goal at 18:20.

Travis Cook, Pat Differ and Glen Mueller each had two goals for the Caribous with Jim Miller getting the other.

Ron Pinder and John Davis scored twice for Montreal with Ross Jones, Dave Tasker, Bruce Roundpoint, Billie Nunn and Gord Floyd notching the others.

U.S. Too Good In Ryder Cup

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The United States' near-record triumph over the hopelessly outmanned British-Irish team has prompted renewed speculation that the Ryder Cup format may be changed to provide the British with some much-needed help in the biennial golf matches.

"They simply have to do something to extend their area of selection," said Arnold Palmer, the non-playing captain of the talented U.S. team that ran up a 21-11 triumph over the best from Great Britain and Ireland in the matches that ended Sunday at the Laurel Valley Golf Club.

It was the 13th victory for the U.S. against one loss and one tie in the decades since the Second World War and the overwhelming margin accented Britain's need to bolster her forces.

"We'd be delighted with any change that would make the matches better and more competitive," said Henry Poe, president of the U.S. PGA.

He suggested the British initiate any discussion about change.

"Maybe they could just delete the requirement that players be native born. That would open it up to the players from the Commonwealth nations and others."

Such a change would allow the British to choose its team from such nations as South Africa (Gary Player, Bobby Cole, Dale Hayes), Australia (Bruce Crampton, Bruce Devlin, David Graham, Graham Marsh), New Zealand (Bob Charles) and Canada (George Knudson).

Under the current format, the British team is restricted to players native to the British Isles. They didn't have a chance against a U.S. team that may have been the strongest ever assembled.

The U.S. team clinched it Sunday morning with Tom Weiskopf's 5-and-3 blitz of little Guy Hunt in singles competition.

The British rallied to win four of the afternoon matches, but it really didn't matter. Six of their 11 points came after the U.S. team had clinched it.

Two of those points came on upset victories by Brian Barnes over U.S. ace Jack Nicklaus. Barnes beat him 4 and 2 in the morning, 2 and 1 in the afternoon.

Sweden's Big Move A First

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Sweden was vaulted into the Davis Cup final for the first time in history Sunday when Birger Andersson, who became a full-time tennis pro six months ago, clinched the best-of-five series with a 6-3, 14-12, 6-1 win over Chilean veteran Patricio Cornejo.

Sweden was leading the semi-final series 2-1 going into Sunday's final two singles matches. Andersson, 24, then gave his country an unbeatable 3-1 lead.

Bjorn Borg, 19, wrapped it up with a 6-1, 6-2, 6-1 triumph over Chile's No. 1 player, Jaime Fillol.

It was Borg's 17th consecutive singles triumph in Davis Cup play and Sweden's firt semi-final victory in eight attempts.

Sweden will go into the final sometime later this year against next week's winner of the semi-final series in Prague between Australia and Czechoslovakia.

Power, O'Hara Champs

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto tennis players Dale Power and Jane O'Hara won the singles championships Saturday in the final rounds of the Grand Prix tennis tournament.

In the tense men's final, Power defeated Rejean Genois of Quebec City 7-5, 3-6, 6-2 to win the $2, first prize0.

O'Hara defeated Vera Kromer of Cambridge, Ont., 7-5, 6-2 win the $2,000 first prize.

The men's doubles championship went to Genois and Richard Legendre, also of Quebec City.

Canada Picks Up 3 Silver

ROME (CP) — Canada picked up three more silver medals Sunday on the final day of competiton at the world university track and field games.

Robert Martin of Paris, Ont., won Canada's third silver medal of the games, finishing second in the men's 200-metre event, and the men's 400-metre relay team finished second behind the Soviet Union.

Rick Cuttell of Vancouver won a silver medal when he finished tied for second in the final of the men's high jump.

Martin finished behind Pietro Mennea of Italy, who completed the race in 20.28 seconds, a games record.

The relay team, composed of Marvin Nash of Toronto, Albin Dukowski of Vancouver, Martin and Brian Saunders of Toronto, finished in 40.06 after winning its qualifying heat Saturday. The Soviet Union's winning time Sunday was 39.80.

Cuttell jumped the same height as winner Enzo Del Forno in the high jump, but the Italian took the gold on the basis of fewer jumps at 2.13 metres.

In the women's 800 metres final Sunday, Natlie Morgumova of the Soviet Union was first in 2:01.94. Maureen Crowley of Vancouver placed fifth in the event with a time of 2:05.59.

In the women's 200 metres, Patty Loverock of Vancouver finished fifth in 23.97.

On Saturday, Bruce Simpson of Ottawa won a silver medal in the pole vault as West Germany dominated most of the events.

Simpson finished second with a vault of 16½ feet, the same as the winner, Francois Trancanelli of France, but had more misses.

Canada also picked up one gold medal and two bronze in the four-day competition. The gold medal was won Thursday by Bishop Dolegiewicz of Laval, Que., in the shot put.

Thelma Wright of Vancouver, winner of a silver medal Thursday in the women's 3,000-metre race, was fourth Saturday in the 1,500-metre event. In the men's 400-metre hurdles, Dave Jarvis of Grimbsy, Ont., was fourth in 51.29 seconds.

In the finals of the women's high jump Saturday, Louise Walker of Toronto was seventh with a jump of 1.79 metres and Debbie Brill of Victoria was eighth at 1.79 but with more misses.

May Use Bombs

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Terrorists may soon turn to weapons of mass destruction such as atomic bombs, a senior U.S. state department official says in an interview published Sunday. Assistant State Secretary Robert Fearey, co-ordinator for federal agencies working to combat terrorism, says new weapons being constantly added to terrorists' arsenals will make them increasingly dangerous.

Astronauts Visit

MOSCOW (AP) — The three Apollo astronauts returned Sunday to the Soviet cosmonaut training centre—known as Star City—near Moscow where they put in many hours of work before the Apollo-Soyuz flight and thanked the Soviet space community for their labor. Gen. Thomas Stafford, Donald Slayton and Vance Brand were joined by Soviet cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valery Kubasov and all he spacemen's families for the astronauts' fourth trip back to training centre. The Americans arrived Saurday for a wo-week goodwill trip throughout the Soviet Union.

Zodiac Disaster

Life Preservers Were Not Standard

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Life preservers worn by two of the three Zodiac raft victims do not meet United States Coast Guard specifications for use on passenger - carrying vessels, says a Coast Guard official.

The two life preservers and others issued to an undisclosed number of passengers on the ill-fated white-water run on the Niagara River were of a type restricted for use in recreational vessels only, Lt.-Cmdr. J. P. Foley said Saturday.

Foley heads a coast guard investigation of the Aug. 29 accident in which an inflated raft with 29 persons aboard capsized in the lower rapids ~~of the river.~~ Three of the passengers drowned and 20 others were treated for injuries.

Foley said the tags on the lighter U.S.-made jackets read: "approved for use on uninspected vessels less than 40 feet in length and not carrying passengers for hire."

"I think it could be significant that two of the people who drowned were wearing this type of preserver," he said.

"When we approve this type of jacket, it's assumed we're not talking about the middle of the Atlantic Ocean. The current in the Niagara River rapids is unlike anything else anywhere.

"I wouldn't like to have to make a personal test of any jacket down there," Foley said.

Frank Edwards, manager of Niagara Helicopters of Niagara Falls, Ont., participated in the rescue operation in which some survivors were actually plucked from the river by small helicopters.

Edwards said he saw one man wearing a lifejacket go under in the whirlpool. Later that night Edwards located the body.

"It was David Ross. The life preserver looked small for the man," Edwards said.

The type of jacket worn by Ross was made from bright red or yellow nylon filled with kapok. They were made to U.S. non-commercial specifications by Kent Sporting Co. of New London, Ohio.

Most passengers were issued small-craft jackets made of heavy cotton drill and filled with kapok. They are bulky and fit around the head like a keyhole, photographs taken Aug. 29 show. They were manufactured to stricter Canadian non-commercial standards by the John Leckie Marine Supply Co. of Toronto.

Drops 1.5 Cents Imported Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of a gallon of imported fuel oil will drop 1.5 cents as the result of the Ford administration's decision to remove the 60-cents-a-barrel import fee on refined petroleum products, officials say.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb announced the move Sunday and said President Ford will decide soon whether or not to remove a $2-a-barrel fee on crude oil imports.

Dropping the 60-cent fee came as a response to the abrupt lapse in price controls on most domestically produced oil, which might result in higher prices and spur inflation.

The fee on refined imports was first imposed in April, 1973.

In the absence of price controls, refiners and importers are not legally bound to pass on the saving to consumers, but Zarb said he believes they will pass the benefits along because of current market resistance to higher prices.

The 60-cent fee covered refined fuel oil, gasoline and jet fuel.

The expected 1.5-cent reduction in prices will primarily affect the New England and middle Atlantic states where most refined imports are used.

U.S. consumption during midwinter of last year ran to about 2.4 million barrels a day of imported refined products, the great bulk of it for fuel oil. Refined imports made up about 14 per cent of the national total of refined petroleum products consumed last year.

If Ford also decides to drop the $2-a-barrel fee on imported crude, the price of petroleum products in the U.S. is expected to drop by about three cents a gallon.

But if oil companies raise the price of the domestically produced oil that became free of price controls Sept. 1, the retail price is expected to show a net increase of about three cents a gallon, say administration estimates. Oil producers thus far have generally refrained from raising prices in view of the move under way in Congress to reimpose price controls.

Zarb warned that removal of the fees could be only temporary and they could be reimposed to discourage increasing dependence on foreign oil.

Russia and U.S. Plan Arms Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko have completed another round of nuclear arms talks and plan to meet again in Europe next month after the Kremlin reaches a decision on key unresolved issues.

Kissinger is staying in New York through Wednesday for a speech today to the UN General Assembly outlining United States foreign policy and meetings with foreign ministers attending the assembly session.

Among his scheduled meetings was one with Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina to discuss the negotiations for renewal of the treaty covering U.S. bases in Spain.

During their 11½ hours of meetings, Kissinger and Gromyko agreed that another round, probably in Geneva, is necessary before Kissinger can fly to Moscow to prepare for Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's visit to the U.S.

U.S. officials said Kissinger and Gromyko had made steady progress. They acknowledged, however, that the planned 10-year arms limitation treaty might not be completed before the end of the year. This would postpone Brezhnev's visit to Washington, originally planned for last July, until 1976.

Ever since last November, when President Ford and Brezhnev agreed that each country would be limited to 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles and that 1,320 of these would be missiles with multiple warheads, the two superpowers have been trying to decide how to verify the number of missiles on warheads.

Frenchmen Live Fewer Years

MONTREAL (CP) — French-speaking males in Quebec live an average 4.12 years less than men of other ethnic origin in the province and an average 3.08 years less than French-speaking Quebec women, a study prepared for the social affairs department reveals.

The results were obtained in an 18-month study by demographer Laurent Roy, an employee of the department.

ATTENTION MR. DEVELOPER

The forthcoming boom at Bancroft rates attention. The uranium mines are scheduled to re-open August 1976 with 300-350 jobs and no surplus housing. For that purpose and anything else you have in mind we are offering 250 acres of serviced land within the village boundary. For details call Al.

MAKE AN EFFORT

It will pay off. $24,500. for a four room frame bungalow with two bedrooms, 4 pce bath, full basement. All in excellent condition. Oil furnace (1973) and an attractive mortgage. Al says "This one won't be around for very long".

LOOKING FOR A BUSINESS?

Follow us on that urge to do your own thing. Call me about an out-of-town restaurant with pumps and some cabins. It is a going concern and one of the better opportunities to come our way. Yes, generous living quarters are included. Al.

INCOME PROPERTIES

Since Day One income properties have been the "IN" thing. Ask anyone who has one or some. And ask Al about the centrally located sixplex if you feel like joining the club.

CBC Plans New Series of Musicals

TORONTO (CP) — Being new in the hierarchy of the CBC, Jack McAndrew, head of TV music and variety programming, finds it still is easy for him to ask pointed questions. Such as: Why?

This seems to be the question he is asking most frequently about CBC-TV shows that have long been on the air but haven't given the English network the same sparkle and Canadian identity that CBC-TV French network variety shows have.

The new CBC-TV season will include, in the variety department, Tommy Ambrose in a new gospel music series, Celebration; a situation comedy series starting in February called Oooh, Canada!', starring British comedian Frankie Howerd, and The Bob McLean Show, succeeding Elwood Glover's Luncheon Date.

It will also include Celebrity Cooks, with Bruno Gerussi as host, featuring celebrities with their favorite kitchen recipes, and the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's non-Christmasy version of Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker, choreographed by John Neumeier and produced and directed by award-winning Norman Campbell.

McAndrew, until a few months ago producer of the Charlottetown Festival, was hired by former CBC president Laurent Picard to inject new life into CBC variety shows. He is giving himself three years to produce tangible results.

His imprint won't be seen much in the 1975-76 fall and winter programs which for the most part were set before he was hired. Once he gets the feel of his new job, results should be seen on TV screens in the second year of his tenure.

At the end of the third year, he said in an interview, he will assess for himself what he has done and what remains to be done.

"My marching orders are to make the variety department work within 24 months with the personnel and the money now committed to it."

To make its mark, he said, a variety show must grab and hold an audience.

"Every program has to have a point or a purpose, built around a personality or a concept. In this field, we are head-to-head with the popular American programs.

"And so I have to ask why this show is on the air, or why this other show should go on the air.

"We have got to establish a pattern, with some degree of predictability, so that audiences will know they can depend on us."

McAndrew said he will employ the big stars—the Ann Murrays and Gordon Lightfoots—as well as encourage newer talent to reach stardom.

He isn't afraid of the star system as some producers in other fields of theatre and entertainment are. If one of his performers becomes a star, demands star salary, or goes off to the international entertainment market—all well and good. That is a measure of success in this business.

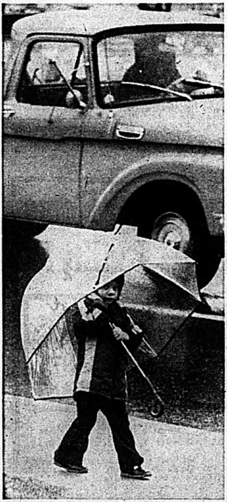
Quebec has developed its own popular culture and pop heroes because of its language. English Canada has to compete with U.S. variety shows and so it will always be a formidable task to provide distinctive entertainment for 22 million Canadians in competition with the American TV industry, which plays to 10 times that number.

The hardest audience to reach, McAndrew said, is the people now aged 18 to 35. They've been raised in the milieu of the 1960s and early 1970s, and their attitudes are changing.

Besides, the times are changing. It used to be possible to poke fun at institutions. Those old institutions now are proving to be funny enough in themselves.

"How can you poke fun at politics after Watergate? How can you be entertained by war stories after Vietnam ?It seems to me that entertainment is moving towards the zany, the outlandish, like Monty Python's Flying Circus.

"The world itself is absurd. We are entering an age of turning back to pure escapism. The cops-and-robbers shows have run their course."



More Brolly Than Boy

Networks Keep Watch On Family Show Scenes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When television comedy minds meet nowadays, the No. 1 topic is the Family Hour.

"What have you lost lately?" they ask each other.

The losses are words, scenes and whole episodes which have been excised in the largest wave of censorship since the Hays Office ruled movie morality.

So far television networks have not achieved the absurdities of the movie censors—kisses were limited to three seconds and married couples slept in twin beds. But the TV comedy makers fear that such an era may be returning.

The cause for new restraints on TV creators is the Family Hour, an agreement between the networks and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to limit entertainment before 9 p.m. EDT to shows suitable for the entire family.

This meant moving the bloodletting police shows to later in the evening. Most of the 8 p.m.-to-9 p.m. series for the new season are situation comedies.

The situations—and the language—now must be antiseptic enough to avoid contaminating 10-year-olds, the comedy makers claim.

Producer Danny Arnold reports ABC refused to schedule a Barney Miller show because it contained the line: "You got a helluva lot of nerve." Arnold was told he could either eliminate the entire episode at his own cost or excise the "hell." He chose the latter.

Lee Grant, starring in NBC's Fay, says an exclamation in the show was changed from "Oh God" to "Dear God," the latter apparently considered less profane.

In the first show of the season, she as a divorced woman, has a fling with a suitor. But the word "affair" was not allowed.

Says Cloris Leachman of Phyllis: 'We had to eliminate the word 'virgin,' changing it to 'totally innocent.' What kind of reasoning is that? If virginity is innocence, then non-virginity means guilt.

"At Christmas time will they have to sing 'Round yon virgin mother and child' after the Family Hour?"

Bill Persky, co-executive producer of The Montefuscos, said the former show ran into trouble with NBC on a plot about one of the sons getting a vasectomy.

"We were told it was OK but 'make sure it doesn't get clinical,' " said Persky. "We did the show in what I thought was good taste, but then the network said we can't use the word vasectomy at all. We're waiting for a meeting on it."

Norman Lear, the poo-bah of situation comedy, has been a leader in the fight against the Family Hour, even though his shows have been scarcely censored.

Lear said he asked CBS to review last season's All in the Family shows to determine which could fit into the Family Hour. The result: two would be prohibited, 21 would require changes, one could pass unaltered.

Significantly, All in the Family has been moved to Monday at 9 p.m., out of the family watching zone.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, Sept. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19) You'll be fortunate today where financial interests are concerned. Attend to business matters you've been putting off.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You're at your best today in situations that permit you to act independently. Do your own things and do them your way.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You're not likely to rush yourself too much today, yet you will get a surprising amount accomplished. You'll do it well.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your approach to something you're hoping for is very practical and, if you continue along this line, it may soon become a reality.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Be firm regarding your position on an issue of importance today. If you believe your view is right, don't let others elbow you aside.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't deviate from methods that have proven successful when you tackle a problem similar to one you've solved before.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're very good today at helping others sort out their affairs. A friend with some business complications would be wise to follow your advice.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Let your mate look out for your interests today. Her perspective is keener. She can see around some corners where you can't.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll find you have greater patience with tasks today than usual. Catch up now on tough jobs you temporarily shelved.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This will be a pleasant day if you pursue a social interest. Don't wait for an invitation. Make a few calls yourself.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a great deal of inner strength to draw upon. Don't let minor adversities ruffle you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) A good day to take a short trip, just for the fun of it. Getting away for a bit will sharpen your outlook considerably.

Burglar Interviewed By One Victim

VANCOUVER (CP) — The strangest situation he encountered as a burglar says Phil Wicks, (a pseudonym) was the time he and one of his victims actually discussed his profession.

He was prowling through the woman's apartment suite when the victim sat up in bed and said: "Hi".

"She'd been through the whole trip," said Wicks. "We went out to an all-night place for coffee and talked about it."

That was a while ago. The confessed burglar spent 23 of his 39 years in jail before going straight.

Wicks said he first began housebreaking in Vancouver when he was a gang-member at the age of 15.

"We used to go up to houses, knock on the door ask them for a nearby address," said Wicks. "If there was nobody home, we'd break in through a window or a door.

"There were a couple of close calls. Sometimes somebody hadn't answered the door because they were sleeping or something. It gives you quite a jolt when you startle them and they chase after you."

Wicks said that although "the average burglar isn't violent," the best piece of advice he can offer homeowners is not to try apprehending one. He should get a description of the intruder for the police.

"If the guy is facing five or 10 years he might do anything if you try to stop him," said Wicks.

The former burglar said his colleagues will not necessarily leave if they discover someone is at home.

"When the person is at home, so are his wallet, his cash and his credit cards. The burglar has the person at a disadvantage because, even if he wakes up, he's still going to be half asleep with no clothes on or just a pair of shorts, while you're wide awake and fully dressed. He's going to stop at the front door out of modesty."

Wicks said he can think of at least 15 different ways of breaking into a house or apartment while making little noise.

One of the easiest ways, he said is to lift up and swing out virtually any sliding glass door or sliding window.

"That's how the windows are installed and all it takes is a couple of suction cups to get them out the same way."

The police also have some anti-burglary tips. Since Vancouver burglaries have increased more than 38 per cent within the last five years and last year netted about $2 million in 6,018 incidents, the police have a lot of experience in this area as well.

S.Sgt. Phil Moores, former head of Vancouver's 12-man burglary squad, agreed that the average burglar is not violent, but "sneaky".

S.Sgt. Meeres said most break-ins take place after dark and occur with greater frequency during winter, possibly because more people are out of work at that time. Daylight break-ins, however, are becoming more frequent.

Sgt. John Lucy of the burglary squad said there are many obvious precautions homeowners can take against burglars, such as leaving lights on or having the radio set at a moderate volume. All these measures give the impression that someone is home.

S.Sgt. Meeres said few burglars enter through the front door and basement doors are the most frequent point of entry.

He said anchoring brackets on each side of the door and placing a piece of two-by-four-inch wood between is highly effective.

Locking patio doors, even in apartments above ground level, is also important and the deadbolt variety of lock seems to be one of the most effective.

Burglar alarms, both the ringing and silent variety, against burglars and police say the sale of alarm systems has increased substantially in the last few years.

Dogs are also effective in thwarting burglars. Police say burglars generally prefer going elsewhere to confronting even a small but vocal poodle.

Those who attempt to confront the burglar physically should be aware that they may only exercise reasonable force in apprehending the intruder. Excessive force against an unarmed burglar might result in a prison term for the burglar's victim.

Police say the burglar's prime target is cash and it is not uncommon for some people to leave as much as $1,000 in their dwelling. Jewelry, stereos, radios and TVs, especially color portables, are also high on the burglar's list of priority items.

Police say that unless the items stolen are clearly marked, identifiable burglary cases are difficult to solve.

Last year only 704 of the city's residential break-ins resulted in convictions and few of the victims recovered their belongings.

Police say one of the most obvious precautions is to inscribe some identifying mark on valuable belongings—even scratching the mark on with a nail can be effective.

Mafia Control Being Reduced

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The power of the Mafia over multi-million dollar gambling, loan-sharking and drug-peddling operations spreads through the major cities of the United States but administration officials say they are steadily cutting it down.

Almost all officials who keep a close watch on organized crime in Washington stress that the Mafia is not the only crime syndicate and point to American Jews and Irishmen who are also involved.

But there is no doubt that the deeply-entrenched Sicilian network is by far the most influential and powerful system of organized crime in the country.

It is so extensive that when the mother of an alleged Mafia leader died in Boston, police provided a motorcycle escort to the cortege and a local police commander personally directed traffic.

Experts in Washington estimate the illegal gambling operation in the U.S. grosses around $50 billion a year and is by far the Mafia's biggest money-earner.

They believe the estimate of the chieftains of Mafia families—estimated at about two dozen—operate with funds totalling between $30 million and $50 million each.

In all, there are about 3,000 Mafia gangsters now operating in the country's main cities, this expert says and they constitute a "national menace."

But director Clarence Kelley of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) said "the war against organized crime not only can be won but is being won."

Kelley does not underestimate the power of the Mafia.

"Quietly and unobtrusively for the most part, the silent societies have built and operated their illicit enterprises—gambling, loan-sharking, concocting stock swindles, peddling stolen goods, pandering women," he said.

"They have insidiously infested and drained the life's blood from many legitimate businesses. They have succeeded at times in corrupting elements of labor, industry and government."

But experts here claim that the grip of the Mafia is being weakened—by legal cases against the chieftains and by protection of people who are brave enough to testify in court against the Mafia.

"Cases against the chieftains are diluting hte leadership," one of these experts asserted recently. "The successors are not among the smartest and some of them are second-rate."

Jim: "As we have pointed out many times, if you want to overbid you should be able to get the most out of your dummy play."

Oswald: "South really got a lot of mileage out of his 15 high-card points. His reverse to two hearts had to represent his full strength and then some. Yet after West tried two spades and North passed, South refused to give up and tried three diamonds."

Jim: "This caused North to come out of his shell and in spite of the fact that he was sure his partner held only four hearts, North jumped to the heart game."

Oswald: "There wasn't too much to the play. Just one very good play by South at trick three. The defence had started with three rounds of spades and South quickly discarded a club from his hand instead of ruffing. West shifted to the king of clubs, but the boat had sailed without him. South won, drew trumps and discarded his last two losing clubs on dummy's long diamonds."

Top Administrator Defies Suspension

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The top administrator of Sudbury's regional government, suspended Friday by regional chairman Donald Collins, says he will defy the suspension and report to work today.

Louis Sage, informed of the suspension Friday in a letter presented to him personally by Mr. Collins, said Sunday that "he (Mr. Collins) has no right to do this."

"It's like my going next door and firing the air-conditioning salesman," Mr. Sage said.

Mr. Collins said he suspended Mr. Sage for "failure to carry out instructions."

The regional chairman, a former deputy minister of the treasury, said that as deputy minister on leave, he has authority to suspend Mr. Sage under the Public Service Act.

Mr. Sage is suspended with pay pending an investigation by provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough, Mr. Collins said.

The suspension follows allegations by both men that the other had excluded him from staff meetings.

Differences between the two men surfaced in June but the dispute was thought to have been resolved in July when regional council passed a bylaw outlining the responsibilities of both officils.

Montreal Transit Strike Continues After Union Rejects Wage Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's second transit strike in less than a month entered its fifth day today following union leaders' rejection Sunday of the latest transit commission wage offer.

Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission (MUCTC) chairman Lawrence Hanigan proposed at a news conference Saturday a 12-per-cent increase retroactive to July 12 providing the workers returned to their jobs today.

He had proposed that all other items under negotiation, including future wage increases, be subject to mediation or binding arbitration.

Jacques Beaudoin, president of the common front of striking maintenance workers, cashiers and clerical staff, said the offer was "unacceptable."

He told a news conference union leaders would meet with their membership today to report on the wage offer.

He criticized MUCTC chairman Lawrence Hanigan for announcing the proposal Saturday to reporters rather than the union.

"If there's any proposal to be made, it should be made at the negotiating table, not on the radio," he said.

Mr. Hanigan said at the Saturday news conference that "the proposal would ensure an immediate wage increase for the employees while they wait for mediation or binding arbitration."

If such arbitration gave the workers a increase larger than 12 per cent, Mr. Hanigan said, "the employees would get the difference."

The workers, who walked off the job Wednesday afternoon, have asked for an average 40-per-cent wage increase in a one-year contract and improved working conditions.

Traffic clogged city streets last week as thousands of Montrealers who ordinarily take buses or the subway drove their cars to work instead.

Several schools reported absentee rates as high as 50 per cent, especially in areas where chartered MUCTC vehicles normally take children to school.

Meanwhile, the union representing 3,400 MUCTC bus and metro drivers, which staged its own 12-day strike last month, decided during the weekend to report to work Tuesday whether or not the current strike is resolved.

The drivers, off the job without pay since Thursday, gave their union executive a mandate to use "any means of pressure" to obtain their salaries during the strike.

Mr. Hanigan has said he will not pay the drivers or allow them to return to work until the strike ends because of safety considerations and the danger of a confrontation between the drivers and strikers on picket lines.

Normand Hamelin, president of the drivers' brotherhood, said he wants to discuss the pay issue with MUCTC officials before taking such possible action as suing the MUCTC.

Pot Smoker Resigns

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The head of a police academy here who openly stated earlier this month that he smokes marijuana and would like it legalized for home use has resigned, heading off a move to fire him. Bob Phillips, co-ordinator for Santa Fe Community College in charge of training recruits for police departments in 14 north Florida counties, asked the school's law enforcement advisory board Tuesday to defer any action against him until he could hire a lawyer. His resignation was unanimously accepted by the 15-member board.

Commerce Head Claims Business Unjustly Blamed for Problems

SASKATOON (CP) — E. R. Olson, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, told 400 delegates Sunday that "business continues to be a convenient scapegoat for those who seek to explain away the problems of modern and complex society."

At the chamber's annual convention this week, strategy is being planned to reconvert the public to the philosophies of business.

"Businessmen and women are still viewed by many as callous and uncaring potentites motivated by greed alone," Mr. Olson said. "Businesses are characteried as impersonal mechanisms insensitive to human values; profit is still an expletive to many."

Such attitudes, Mr. Olson said, leave business "suspected, inspected, rejected and presumed guilty of conspiring, ripping off and gouging."

One outcome of these attitudes has been the federal government's proposed inquiry into the concentration of corporate power.

The chamber plans to make extensive representation to Ottawa concerning this inquiry and has circulated a questionnaire at the convention to poll businessmens' views of themselves.

The chamber also plans to accelerate its public-information programs to explain the mechanics of big business.

Although the theme of the four-day convention is "Canada's critical choices," most emphasis will be placed on the critical choices facing Canada's businessmen in the face of growing public mistrust and a shaky economy.

Mr. Olson said that labor demands are also causing concern.

Canada's businessmen have reacted in horror as double-digit wage demands have outpaced those of the United States and eroded the competitiveness of Canadian goods on foreign markets.

The convention's keynote address, by Robert Bonner, a Vancouver lawyer and former British Columbia attorney-general, warned that the current trend of high wage settlements spells economic doom.

Mr. Bonner also directed harsh words at the federal government for its expenditure policies and suggested Ottawa start rethinking its policies on inflation and housing.

During Mr. Bonner's address, John Turner, who recently resigned as federal finance minister, was checking out of a hotel across the street, dodging reporters' questions with the answer: "I can't answer that, I am no longer the minister of finance."

Mr. Turner was here to attend birthday celebrations for former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Heritage Canada Can't Give It Away

CALGARY (CP) — Heritage Canada is having trouble giving money away, says a financial report presented Saturday at the national foundation's second annual meeting.

The organization still has $1.6 million to give away, despite two years of trying to promote preservation of historical structures. The sum is the interest on a $12-million federal endowment to Heritage Canada when it was formed in April, 1973.

Hartland MacDougall, foundation chairman, said the situation is caused by slowness of approval for projects.

"Our largest project in Alberta has been stalled at the municipal level," he said, "because the city and local foundation can't decide how to deal with it."

That project would save the historic Edmonton district of Strathcona, made Heritage Canada's first beneficiary 14 months ago with a pledge of $5,000.

The foundation's annual report, also presented Saturday, says the problems "arise through the involvement of a range of interests at the voluntary, private and governmental levels.

"Despite the problems, Heritage Canada intends to proceed with its established area conservation principles," involving partnership with a local foundation and joint plans for getting government financial and legal support.

Recession Affects Farming Markets

ROME (AP) — Economic recession in industrialized countries shook up world agriculture markets last year as consumers turned their backs on high-priced food, a United Nations report says.

The report says that in industrialized countries—including Canada, the United States and Japan—housewives passed up high-priced food and demand dropped for those items particularly sensitive to changes in income—namely meat, fruits, wine and dairy and fishery products.

The effect of recession was particularly pronounced for agricultural raw materials used in the automobile and home building industries, both hard hit by the economic crisis.

While inflation pushed the value of world agricultural exports to a record high, the actual volume of trade in 1974 dropped by about four per cent from 1973.

And prospects for 1975 are not much better, the report says, predicting low rates of economic growth accompanied by high unemployment until a recovery expected in 1976.

The assessment is in the Commodity Review and Outlook, 1974-75, published by the UN Food and Agriculture Organization.

The 257-page report says the value of world exports of primary agricultural commodities rose by 19 per cent from 1973 to a record $106.5 billion in 1974, but mainly due to inflated prices.

The prices of rice and sugar were more than three times their level in March, 1972, while those of wheat, coarse grains, beef, bananas, coffee, wine, jute, hard fibres and cotton were more than twice as high.

Among raw materials, demand shrank noticeably for cotton, rubber, jute and forest products because of the recession in the automobile industry and housing construction.

Right-wing Army Takes Responsibility

LISBON (Reuter) — An anonymous telephone caller purporting to speak on behalf of the right-wing, self-styled Portuguese Liberation Army claimed responsibility today for a bomb which exploded outside the weekend retreat of the Portuguese prime minister.

The caller told foreign reporters here that the organization placed the bomb outside the Cascais Palace where the prime minister, Admiral Jose Pinheiro de Aevedo, was sleeping Sunday morning.

It smashed the front door, broke windows and damaged furniture, but there were no casualties.

"This bomb was of small force. For the moment we are not claiming victims. Our actions are limited to showing our capacity for penetrating the highest military organs," the caller said.

The admiral heads a government dominated by Socialists, Centrists and Moderate officers. It replaced the pro-Communist administration of Gen. Vasco Goncalves last Friday.

The Communist party itself is participating in the government for fear of letting in another administration leaning further to the right.

CIA Taped Oswald

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) tape-recorded two telephone conversations in 1963 involving Lee Harvey Oswald less than two months before the assassination of president John F. Kennedy, informed source said Saturday.

The two conversations, which took place on Sept. 7 and 28, were picked up in the course of the agency's routine monitoring of phone calls to and from the Soviet Union and Cuban embassies in Mexico City, the sources said.

Oswald—identified later by a the Warren Commission as Kennedy's slayer—was in Mexico City at the time attempting to obtain a visa to travel to the Soviet Union via Cuba.

The tapes were routinely processed and filed without any further action until after the Nov. 22, 1963, shooting of Kennedy, when either the actual recordings or transcripts of the recordings were flown to Washington, one source said.

Warren Commission documents indicate the Sept. 27 recording involved a conversation between officials of the Cuban and Soviet embassies concerning Oswald's visa request.

The Sept. 28 conversation was similar in content, except that Oswald himself, who was then in the Cuban Embassy, got on the phone and spoke in broken Russian to the officil at the Soviet Embassy, the same documents show.

TOKYO (AP) — A meteorological yearbook, based on the analysis of 50 years of weather statistics, has gone on sale here predicting weather and earthquake possibilities in Japan for 1976.

Shriver Maintains Political Identity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sargent Shriver said Sunday he will not dissociate himself from Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, his 1972 presidential running mate, in his own quest for the Democratic party's presidential nomination in 1976.

Shriver also said Democrats should accept the word of brother-in-law, Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, that Kennedy will not be a candidate.

Shriver said he has a political identity which remains separate from that of the Kennedy family even though his ties to the Kennedys remain strong.

I'm not a stalking horse, he doesn't need one," Shriver said of Kennedy. I'm in the campaign to go the distance and to win and to be a successful president of the United States for everybody on my own facts and my own career."

Some people believe, I think, that I was born the day that I married my wife," he said. But I did exist before then." His wife, Eunice, is a Kennedy sister.

Families of Victims Unaware of Causes

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — The families of at least two of three employees who were killed by diseases contracted while working in the Biological Warfare Laboratory at Fort Detrick say they were not told the cause of death until years later.

The United States Army acknowledged last week that microbiologist William Boyles, electrician Joel Eugene Willard and animal caretaker Albert Nickel died of diseases contracted at the laboratory.

Gladys Nickel apparently first learned of the cause of her husband's death during a weekend interview with the Frederick News-Post.

Mrs. Nickel said: After 11¾ years, you learn to live with it. It really doesn't matter any more. Nothing will bring him back."

She added: "They promised to tell me what he died from but they never did. I watched him die through a little window to his quarantine room at the Detrick infirmary. When I asked officials why he died, they told me they didn't know, but would tell me when they found out."

Nickel fell ill Jan. 26, 1964, and reported to an outpatient clinic the next day, said an army memo made public Friday. The doctor prescribed some medicine which helped, the memo said, and it was several days before his illness was believed to be job related.

Nickel died five days later. The cause of his death was listed as Bolivian hemorrhagic fever.

Willard died July 5, 1958, leading two of his former co-workers in the supersecret, maintenance section to quit their jobs. Robert Englar quit the next day and Robert Bare two weeks later when he found a new job.

Mercury Victims Make Little Impact

WHITEDOG, Ont. (CP) — Three Japanese victims of mercury poisoning made their first visit to this northwestern Ontario Indian reserve Thursday, but it generated little interest among the reserve's 650 residents.

Only eight were on hand to greet them when they arrived for a three-day visit, designed to show the Indians the effects of mercury poisoning on humans.

An hour after their arrival, when the Japanese talked of their experiences and showed films of contamination and its effects in Japan, fewer than 60 residents turned out—more than half of them children too young to understand.

"This isn't very good, but maybe more will come out later," said Anthony Henry, a classroom assistant at the Whitedog reserve school. "I guess some of the people just don't care any more."

However, one woman who attended with her six children said: "We have heard so much about it, but never seen it like this. I guess its going to do something for us."

Mercury levels in fish and humans in this area about 150 miles east of Winnipeg have been found to be as high or higher than those in Minamata Bay, where hundreds of Japanese have died from its effects.

"We have come from the other side of the earth," said Teruo Kawamoto, 44, to Whitedog chief Roy MacDonald on his arrival Thursday. "But I don't feel at all too far away from home here . . . I feel I am with relatives."

Mr. Henry said there is a large group at Whitedog which will probably continue eating mercury-poisoned fish, even though the possible effects may be evident.

"For them, there isn't any choice. They have to eat it to get by. There are families of seven getting $200 on welfare . . They need the fish or they'll starve."

Mr. Henry said he himself still eats some fish from the nearby contaminated waterways and feeds it to his wife and five children.

Juvenile Law Reform Will Give Further Protection to Youths

OTTAWA (CP) — A draft bill unveiled by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand today would double the age of criminal responsibility to 14 and make it impossible to charge anyone under 18 without consent of an attorney-general.

The bill would replace the 67-year-old Juvenile Delinquents Act, which applies to children over six and can put them in the lock-up not only for Criminal Code, provincial and municipal offences, but for "sexual immorality or any similar form of vice."

Only Criminal Code and related federal offences would be included under the proposed law, which leaves the rest to the provinces.

The report proposes youth courts, but emphasizes that any alternative to court is preferable.

It notes that its proposed system will mean a heavy public outlay for trained manpower and proper facilities.

Mr. Allmand said in a statement that Ottawa is ready to discuss cost-sharing with the provinces.

He said the proposals will be discussed with MPs, the provinces, interest groups and the public before legislation is introduced in Parliament.

The report was produced by a departmental committee under Deputy Solicitor-General Roger Tasse after two years of work.

It follows a two-year attempt to get through Parliament the young offenders bill, which was criticized as "Criminal Code for children" because of emphasis on courtroom procedure.

It also was slammed by the provinces which said they didn't have the money to implement facilities called for by the Juvenile Delinquents Act, let alone by the proposed law.

By restricting application to federal offences, the new bill would avert entanglement with varying provincial definitions of juvenile age. The age is 16 in the three Maritime Provinces, Ontario, Saskatchewan and the two territories; 17 in British Columbia; 18 in Quebec and Manitoba; and 16 for boys and 18 for girls in Alberta. The Juvenile Delinquents Act doesn't apply in Newfoundland, where the juvenile age is 17.

The proposed law would apply to youths over 13 and under 18. Only an attorney-general or his designate could authorize charges and they would be empowered to send a youth to a screening agency first.

The youth would have to agree to be screened and would have other rights including representation by an adult or lawyer at any stage of the process, including initial questioning by police.

No one under 17 would be transferred to trial in adult court. Current practice is to try serious charges in adult court because of the lack of judicial protection in juvenile court.

Youths locked up would have to be kept separate from adults. Lack of facilities means many youths now are held in municipal jails.

Youths and children often admit an offence in juvenile court, but the new youth courts may only accept such an admission after explaining the situation to the accused youth.

The proposals also include guides for judges, a requirement for written judgments, and records safeguards. Maximum sentence, or time on probation, would be three years.

Ford Escapes Assassin's Shot

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Sara Moore, a divorced mother linked with various radical groups, has admitted that she tried to kill President Ford and felt she would have done the job with a better weapon, police said today.

"She said she fired and realized she had aimed high," said police Sgt. William Taylor after Mrs. Moore was charged with shooting at Ford outside a downtown hotel Monday.

"She said she didn't get a chance for a second shot because she was immediately set upon," Taylor told reporters. "She said if she had a .44-calibre gun, she would have hit him."

Mrs. Moore was to attend a hearing today to determine whether her sanity is to be tested.

Taylor said Mrs. Moore also told officers "she was driving fast on the freeway to get here and loading the gun at the same time and hoping she would be stopped.

"She said it was kind of a silly thing to do because she was going to be late picking up her boy at school."

As the blast echoed over the crowd, Ford, shaken but unhurt, ducked behind his car. The bullet ricocheted and injured another spectator, 41-year-old cab driver John Ludwing. He was treated in hospital for a supperficial groin injury and released.

The shooting came 17 days after Lynette (Squeaky) Fromme, a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, pulled a .45-calibre pistol on Ford as he shook hands in a crowd in Sacramento, Calif. No shot was fired. Miss Fromme now faces an attempted murder charge.

In both cases, bail has been set at $500,000.

Mrs. Moore, a 45-year-old bookkeeper, was employed by Miss Hearst's father in a food giveaway program last year organized in attempt to free Miss Hearst after she was kidnapped.

Mrs. Moore, who says she is one-time paid FBI informer, aimed a .38-calibre pistol at the president while a stunned crowd gasped.

A gun was found in Mrs. Moore's possession last Sunday but security agents cleared her, figuring she was harmless.

Later, they discovered that she had provided information to the FBI on activities of radical groups though she was removed from the tipsters' list because she spoke openly of her informer's role.

Those who worked with Mrs. Moore on the Hearst food giveaway described her as a strange woman who had to be fired because she caused dissension among workers. Others suggested she had ties with the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) which kidnapped Miss Hearst and later recruited her to their ranks.

"Apparently she's on the fringe of a number of radical groups," said police Lieut. William Jordan. "I have no doubt she was personally involved with some of them."

News Briefs

Secret Service under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A second attempt on President Ford's life has prompted congressional demands for an investigation of the Secret Service. Senator Ernest Hollings (Dem.—S.C.) said there should be an inquiry because of what he called evidence of a security breakdown in the Fromme and Moore episodes.

Nixon Sticks to Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon's lawyer said Monday the former president has denied under oath any "personal responsibility" for the 18½-minute gap in one of the White House tapes, one of the few remaining mysteries in the Watergate scandals.

Kay Manderville Before Council

Parking Fees May Rise Here

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A study will be commissioned to define Belleville's parking needs for the next decade.

Meantime, there are plans to raise meter fees on three city parking areas.

Both moves are among plans of the Belleville Parking Authority (BPA) outlined Monday as it sought city council approval of a $100,000 debenture issue.

The debentures, BPA chairman Kay Manderville told council, will finance:

—A preliminary study of parking demands in the next ten years and pinpoint what type of expansion is required. The survey will cost $10,000.

—Necessary follow-up procedure of drafting engineering plans and specifications — costing $35,000 — for the needed facilities.

—Changing meter mechanisms to equalize parking charges on Pinnacle St., Market Square, and Moira riverbank parking lots with parking costs on Front St. It now costs 10 cents an hour to park on the lots, compared with 20 cents on Front. Bill for the changeover is estimated at $30,000.

—Opening up of a new 18-car lot between Pinnacle and Front Streets this summer with removal and rehabilitation of property which formerly housed public utilities operations. The project gives shoppers access to Front St., and cost $25,000.

Councillors balked at approving the debenture issue two weeks ago until they'd received an outline of how the money was being spent.

Mrs. Manderville reminded council the debentures would be paid for by BPA income from parking fees.

Equalizing meters fees was found necessary in order to increase such income she said.

One reflection of such need was that meter attendants were among the lowest paid city employees, with a starting rate of $5,000 a year, said Mrs. Manderville. In fact, the BPA had difficulty recently replacing two attendants and the salaries were now being increased. Mrs. Manderville said later the increase would cost the BPA about $7,000.

Strike Continues

Transit Workers Reject New Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — While drivers cursed, laid on their horns or sat back and listened to the bad word from local radio station traffic helicopters circling overhead, striking transit workers voted to reject the latest offer from the city's transit commission Monday.

In the fifth day of Montreal's transit strike, the second in a month, the city experienced one of its worst traffic jams ever.

"It's been like this for more than two hours," said one harried policeman struggling to instill some order into a massive snarl-up at an intersection on busy Sherbrooke St. just after 5 p.m.

"I think a lot of people thought they'd beat it all and leave work a little early.

"But when a million people all try the same thing....."

Cars which overflowed parking lots were parked along many streets, adding to the jam.

Many cyclists found the only way they could make time was to ride on the sidewalks, adding to the problems of pedestrians, whose numbers were swelled as a result of the strike by 2,250 maintenance and office workers and subway cashiers.

The problem was made worse Monday morning when a five-alarm fire at the downtown Laurentian Hotel forced police the close off the busy Dorchester-Peel intersection to enable firemen to fight it.

Some schools reported a 60 per cent absentee rate.

Negotiating parties reported little progress in talks with mediator Roger Pilote, who will make his final report to a parliamentary committee in Quebec City later today.

Lewis Wants to Revise Operation of Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democrats, said Monday he wants to meet soon with Premier William Davis to discuss improving the operation of the legislature.

The NDP leader, whose party won 38 seats in last week's election to emerge as the possible official opposition leader, said if he does not hear from the premier regarding the matter, he will initiate discussion.

"But I'm hoping or expecting at some point, the premier will give me a call, maybe give Mr. (Liberal Leader Robert) Nixon a call and we cen talk amicably about the future," he added.

A royal commission studying the operation of the legislature issued its latest in a series of reports during the election campaign.

Mr. Lewis said he would like to see committess of the legislature strengthened and a more-orderly question period instituted.

The royal commission, headed by Progressive Conservative Dalton Camp, recommended the number of days allowed for election campaigning be shortened to 30 days from 37 days.

Mr. Lewis said he has "no love" for extended election campaigns and that this might be one topic he and Mr. Davis will discuss.

He said he will meet with his caucus Wednesday to discuss assignments to various portfolios and over-all strategy. The caucus also will discuss what issues the minority government is likely to deal with when the legislature reconvenes Oct. 21.

Mr. Lewis said the government will have to deal with issues such as housing, energy costs and rent matters.

He added the preservation of farmland and farm income will also be pressed by his New Democrats.

Hotel Space Here Key To Acquiring Sport Events

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hotel space may decide if Belleville is to have an Ontario-wide sports highlight for its 1978 centennial-year program.

A survey is now underway to determine if the the Belleville area can accommodate the array of athletes who participate in the annual Ontario winter and summer games.

What's needed is assurance that accommodation will be available for 2,000 athletes, city council was told Monday.

The results of the study will be known next month, said Ald. George Zegouras, chairman of the recreation-arena committee.

That's when recreation director Clifford Belch will present his findings — along with a recommendation — to the committee.

The possibility of Belleville being host city to the games — either winter or summer — has been under scrutiny all year.

But accommodation for participants was stressed as a clinching factor when Mr. Belch met recently with provincial games co-ordinator Bob Farrow, of the culture and recreation ministry in Toronto, said Ald. Zegouras.

He said Mr. Belch was told "quite clearly" that unless accommodation was assured for 2,000 athletes there "was no point in having the games here."

Otherwise, the indication is that ministry officials would like to see the games staged in eastern Ontario.

Murder Charges May Be Involved

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Law enforcement officials are taking a new look at an April bank robbery-murder for possible links with some of the revolutionary comrades of Patricia Hearst.

Sources told The Associated Press that evidence seized in connection with the arrests of Miss Hearst and four of her associates in San Francisco last week was considered at a meeting Monday of three top officials in the state capital.

If prosecutors were to decide a link exists between the bank robbery and terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), it would raise the possibility that some members of the terrorist group might be charged with murder, the most serious accusation yet.

On April 21, three men and a woman—wearing ski masks—robbed a branch of the Crocker Bank in suburban Carmichael of $13,000.

Gunfire Subdues

BEIRUT (AP) — Gunfire dropped off considerably Monday night and today in Beirut as Syria's foreign minister postponed his return to Damascus and continued attempts to reconcile Lebanon's warring leftist Moslems and right-wing Christians.

Leaders of the opposing factions reiterated their intention to enforce the ceasefire agreed to Saturday night. After a day of persisting clashes and rising tension, Beirut had its quietest night in a week.

There was only sporadic firing today. But thousands of armed men from both sides manned barricades across the hard-hit eastern suburbs and in several other sections of the city.

Neither the Christians in the Phalangist party's 6,000-man militia nor the Moslems in half a dozen political armies considered the battle over.

Traffic picked up slightly in some quarters, but business and government offices remained closed.

Bootleg Speed Laboratories Flourish in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Some of tht best illicit amphetamines—commonly known as speed—being distributed in the United States come from bootleg laboratories in Ontario, say Metropolitan Toronto police.

And although use of speed and publicity about it appears to have dropped sharply in the province since the 1960s, about nine out of 10 purse snatches and minor thefts in Toronto are by "kids who use speed," Sgt. Robert Scathdee of the Metro police said Monday.

He and 11 other Metro officers teamed with 12 RCMP policemen on a weekend raid of an isolated farm at Barry's Bay, Ont., and collected enough chemicals to make 100 pounds of methamphetamine, worth about $13.6 million on the street.

Four men were arrested at the farm and 11 others elsewhere.

However, speed is rare now as a problem drug compared with the number of emergency admissions for alcohol abuse at the Addiction Research Foundation Clinic, said Dr. Paul Iversen, clinic director.

"We no longer see the really abused," he said. "Now it's usually just the bad trip and possibly cardiac problems."

Insp. Robert Sterling of the Metro police said that although police still fear the strung-out speed freak, "things are in a lower key" now. He said there are fewer guns around today compared with two or three years ago when there was fear within the drug community of being robbed.

But police who raided the Barry's Bay farmhouse seized four loaded shotguns and 400 rounds of ammunition. They said men armed with shotguns were seen patrolling the property during months of secret surveillance.

Police would not say how they were able to surprise the men at the farm, which was equipped with a police radio and radar equipment.

The raid followed a similar one last month by RCMP, provincial and Metro police at Oba Lake, about 170 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in which they seized similar chemicals worth about $10 million on the street, Insp. Stering said.

Builder's Plan Not Sufficient

City council Monday denied one developer's plan for a subdivision and marked time on the request of second involving an apartment project.

The plan of subdivision — from developer Stanley Park Ltd. — called for construction of 22 homes off Elvins Gdns., west of East Moira St., a project that first was proposed in February, 1974.

Planning officials were dissatisfied that the new subdivision was serviced by a road ending in a cul-de-sac without a second access. Adjoining lands would be sterilized of development by the layout, they felt.

A redesigned plan permitting an emergency access to Moira St. also proved unsatisfactory. Council agreed with the Quinte Planning Board (QPB) that the plan of subdivision be denied.

Meantime, council has asked QPB officials for comments on a request from Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. to permit minor variances involving an 11-plex building planned for Elgin St. Council also suggested the committee of adjustment — which examines such requests — wait two weeks until the planners are heard from.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Monday, Sept. 22, 8:15 p.m. — overheated oil stove, at East Moira St., No damage.

Recital Planned

Noted organist Rosa Rio of Westport, Conn. will perform a recital at the Picton United Church Saturday, Oct. 18. Two Belleville artists, Hazelanne and Robert Reid will sing during the program.

Bearers were Russell Blacker, George Swoffer, Maurice Jones, Robert Gurr, Kelvin Lidster and Leslie Gurr.

A resident of RR 3 Frankford, he died in Belleville General Hospital Sept. 18 in his 70th year. Born in Scotland, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Logan.

He is survived by his wife, the former Edna McCoy, by his daughters Mrs. Leslie (Lillian) Gurr of Stirling, Mrs. Arthur (Mary) Reynolds of Thorncliffe, Mrs. Maurice (Norma) Jones of Scarborough, Mrs. Russell (Noreen) Blacker of Belleville, 20 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and his sisters Mrs. Margaret Duesberry of Hamilton and Mrs. Elizabeth Loucks of Kingston.

Popular U.S. Organist Plans Picton Recital

PICTON — The sound of music will fill Picton United Church on Saturday, Oct. 18 when noted organist Rosa Rio of Westport, Conn. displays her talent in a recital of popular tunes.

Miss Rio has been a prominent performer for many years and as staff organist of NBC and ABC networks once claimed a listing of more than 13 coast-to-coast daily radio and television shows.

Among the programs highlighted by her music were The Shadow, When a Girl Marries, My True Story and Rosa Rio Rhythms.

Miss Rio's career in theatre work began when she decided as a child to learn to play the pipe organ. She studied at Oberlin Conservatory, then enrolled at Rochester's Eastern School of Music, majoring in the pipe organ.

Later, she studied privately in the mathematical approach to music with Joseph Schillinger and Jesse Crawford and the famed piano artist Earl Wild.

Today, Miss Rio is active in concert work, recordings, arranging and composing as well as teaching. She has given concerts throughout the world and once played a command performance before a United Nations Assembly.

"The pipe organ is known as the king of instruments and with this renowned artist at the console you will enjoy a varied program of all the music you love," states a release from organizers of the Picton performance planned by Miss Rio.

Two Belleville artists Hazelanne and Robert Reid will sing during the program adding an extra highlight to the night of music.

Tickets for Miss Rio's performance are available in Belleville at Leslie's Shoe Store, the Fish and Dove Book Store, Quinte Mall, Shopette, Plaza Branch and from Cecil Brown at Victoria and Grey Trust.

In Picton, tickets may be ordered from the Lockyer Flower Shoppe.

Water Color Works Show Artist's Skill

A timely display of water color paintings can now be seen in the lower lobby of Corby Library.

The paintings, by award-winning artist, Philippa Faulkner, a native of Belleville, alive with the vibrant colors of the fall season show the versatility and imagination of the artist in scenes such as the beach at Playa San Pedro in Malaga, Spain, compared to a couple women hangling over prices at St. Lawrence Market. Portraits of shadowy women, a man selling popcorn, a mexican barber chair and ocean scenery with whirling cascades of color are examples of her scope and versatility.

Ms. Faulkner, a graduate of the Parsons School, New York, in advertising and design has a long list of credits. She was awarded a three-year scholarship at the Institute of Allenede, Mexico; awarded first prize in the annual exhibition in Mexico; and has shown her work with the National Academy, New York. She is also a member of the Ontario Society of Artists, the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Colors, Society of Canadian Artists and the Color and Form Society.

Some of her work will be on display in the annual exhibition of the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Colors in the London Ontario Gallery next month.

The display at Corby Library will continue until early October.

New Benches One Suggestion

TRENTON — The master plan for the municipal system in Trenton calls for the installation of new design benches and garbage recepticles and the end of the old style facilities to establish a more aesthetically pleasing area.

The plan calls for construction of informal play areas in all the parks which would emphasize the creative outlets of the children using the facilities. Aomg the recommendations are the placement of large sand boxes, immovable logs, large boulders and concrete culverts with the sharp edges removed.

The establishment of ornamental and buffer plantings and the creation of pruning and spraying and turf management programs is recommended in the four-part study.

Park Plan Study Shows Need for Financial Aid

TRENTON — The inability of the municipality to keep its agreement with the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority (LTRCA) by withholding funds "must be questioned," a master plan for the development of the Town's parks recommends.

The plan, a four-part study of the municipal park system completed this summer, says because it is not allowing the town to develop the tourist potential of the Trent River, restricting the "desperate need for public open space in this area,". and limiting the size of provincial grants.

The report states Trenton is the only municipality at the ends of the two Ontario canal systems, The Rideau and the Trent-Severn, which has not recognized the tourist potential of these waterways and capitalized on them.

The completion of the acquisition of lands by the LTRAC, along the west bank of the Trent River from Lock No. 1 to Elgin St., can not be done until the town pays 20 per cent of the cost, as per the agreement with the province. Funds for development are with held until all the land is purchased.

The report recommends the board of parks have jusisdiction over all open space within the town including Centennial Park and the marina.

The report notes the difference between the Trenton parks and recreation department, which has the responsibility of maintaining and developing more than 192 acres of land on a budget of $82,000 as compared to Belleville which has 375 acres of land and a budget of $500,000.

The report calls for the establishment of a committee empowered to conduct negotiations with other levels of government concerning open space development and the acquisition of funds for the projects.

It further recommends that some method of borrowing money for immediate development should be sought.

The study, completed by a landscape and archetecture student at a cost of $3,500, is the first comprehensive list of Trenton's open space area, the use of the parks and mapping of the land areas ever done in the town.

The report examines the existing plans affecting the open space development, including studies done by the Quinte Planning Board, Neighborhood Improvement proposals, the Major Entrance Road studies and the Trenton parks studies.

The report recommends the adoption of the major road studies which would develop entrances to Trenton and create a forest image which would be aestheically pleasing and practical.

It condemns the Trenton Parks Study, completed in 1967, as outdated, statistacally invalid and said it provides no basis for further development.

Study 'Invaluable' Says Commissioner

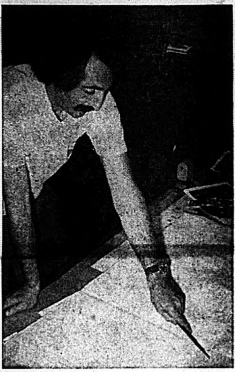
TRENTON — The master plan for the municipal parks system, just presented to the board of parks, will be an invaluable aid in the development of the open space areas in town said, Dino Geddas, commissioner of the department.

The survey, completed this summer by a student at the cost of $3,500, was worth the price considering the $8,500 fee paid to consultants working on the Bain Park redevelopment project, Mr. Geddas said.

The reports was the first complete inventory of open space in Trenton including provincial, federal and school board lands with recommendations on the development of the discussed area.

A section of the physical properties of the land including the boundaries, ground contours and trees growing on the sites was included in the report.

It recommended a method of communications be developed giving the parks board some input into the use and disposition of the lands.



Open Development

Dino Gettas, Trenton recreation director, examines display maps while explaining the new master plan for the town's park system. The plan has been submitted to the board of management for analysis. It will be about three months before a final decision is reached.

Ameliasburg Tax Rate Up About 30 Per Cent

AMELIASBURG — Property owners in this township should prepare themselves for a 30 per cent increase in their 1975 tax bill.

The better than 5½ mill increase from last year was approved by council as a result of additional requisition by the Prince Edward County School Board and an increase in the cost of the government's operation at the county level, township clerk William Nightingale said Monday.

Ameliasburg's contribution to the county is the revenue from a total assessment of $24 million (mostly residential) on a 25.18 mill rate or approximately $600,000. In 1974 the township's mill rate was 19.3 and the total assessment $22 million.

Mr. Nightingale also said housing minister Arnold Irving had endorsed final approval to amendments to the townships official plan as requested by council.

Hereafter the frontage requirement for a lot in residential areas will have to measure 150 feet wide instead of 100 feet as laid down in the original plan. Depth of the lot remains at 200 feet as set down by the official planners.

Oil Truck Overturns

PICTON — Town councillor Charles Hepburn escaped injury Monday afternoon when the fuel truck he was driving overturned on Union Street.

Town police said Mr. Hepburn was braking when the truck, owned by Hepburn Brothers Ltd., dropped over a curb into a hole and rolled.

Mr. Hepburn climbed to safety from a window of the vehicle.

Picto firefighters were called to the scene but the truck was uprighted without incident.

Trustees In Driver's Seat

PICTON — Prince Edward school trustees Monday night found themselves in the driver's seat during a demonstration of student driving equipment at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Trustees were tested with the psycho-physical driver education equipment donated to the school three years ago by Branch 78, Royal Canadian Legion.

An instructor with the driver education program, John Thompson, told board members PECI is one of the few schools in Ontario to have this type of testing equipment available on a full-time basis.

The equipment measures peripheral vision and reaction times.

Mr. Thompson also showed a film, Buckle Up, that is used as part of the driver training course at PECI.

He observed that an effort is made to give students an "over-all exposure".

Films depicting gruesome accidents sometimes are shown depending on the age of the student audience and other factors, he said.

Mr. Thompson said education films such as Buckle Up are shown only to students enrolled in driver training courses, not to all pupils at PECI.

At the close of the presentation by members of the driver training staff chairman of the board of education Douglas Caley noted, "I feel we could show the films in all of our schools including elementary schools.

Well Done

A member of the Pine Ridge Rertriever Club rewards his animal with a friendly gesture during the competitions held at Presq'ile Park last weekend. More than 35 dogs competed in the trials, the last of the year before the national championships.

Field Trials Supreme Test For Retriever's Ability

BRIGHTON — If your family dog wears eyeglasses and has just completed a memory course he might have a chance to win one of the more than 35 Canadian Kennel Club's licensed field trials for retrivers. That's if the judges allow a mongrel to enter.

Thousands of sportsmen spend hours and money training various breeds of retrievers, beginning when the puppy is about six weeks old, hoping they may be lucky enough to develop their dream dog.

"It is very unlikely a mongrel would have a chance because ever since field trials were begun in the early 1900s, people have been selectively breeding the animals to develop their memories and the eyesight'' said Thomas Maracle, a dog handler, breeder and kennel owner from Deseronto.

Mr. Maracle, owner of Gabonk's Kennels said he became interested in retrievers when he owned a mongrel, he trained for hunting.

"A mongrel may be good enough for hunting purposes, when most retrieves are between 15-45 yards but in field trails the animal is required to fetch at distances up to 200 yards and remember the location of three fallen ducks at the same time and it would be unusual for a family dog to be that capable," he said.

The field trial circut runs from early May until late in September with a different site every weekend. The owners and handlers travel to the trials, paying the $15 entry fee in the hope of winning one of the ribbons presented or finally accumulating enough points to have their dogs become eligible for the annual national championships held in mid-October.

The animals are trained to develop the memory and marking abilities, as well as to increase the handless control.

During trails the dog must be capable of sighting and pinpointing a fallen target, and in the more senior divisions retrieve more than one prey at a time. They are also trained to retrieve from behind blinds.

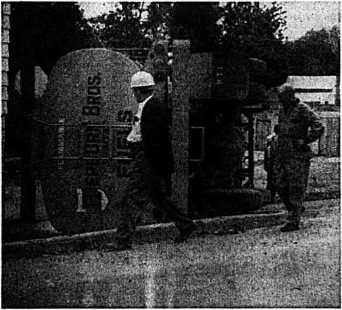
The handler gives the dog a sighting by the line of his hand and the dog is rated on how directly he follows the sight. The animals are also taught to respond to whistles, and when they hear one they turn to the handler and move in the direction he points them.

The dog handler looks for desire and memory when he is working with or choosing the animal he will train, Mr. Maracle said, but sometimes a special dog is found under the strangest circumstances.

The high point dogs for the trials so far this year is owned by a Cobourg man, David Watts who is a members of the Pine Ridge Retriever Club in Brighton.

"Some people go through many dogs and are not lucky enough or skilled enough to have a great retriever," said Mr. Maracle. "And then there are people who get more than one in a lifetime."

"The dog must have super ability but just as important he must have a terrific handler with a lot of common sense who wants to put in long hours and a lot of work," Mr. Maracle said.



Truck Tips

Picton firefighters were called to Union Street Monday afternoon when an oil truck owned by Hepburn Brothers Ltd. overturned on a street corner near a house. The truck was righted without incident.

Woman Dies of Injuries

BRIGHTON — A 43-year-old Brighton woman died in Kingston General Hospital Monday night of respiratory failure due to brain damage a week after she was in a car accident in Trenton, police said.

Lucille Gauthier, 10 Maple Wood Dr., was transferred to KGH from Trenton Memorial Hospital after she was in an accident at Highway 2 and 40 on Sept. 16. Police have charged Sam Scarletta, of Trenton, with careless driving.

Home Fire Extinguishers

Ed. McKinney Realty Ltd.
J. E. McKinney

Fires strike hundreds of thousands of homes every year. One way to keep your home from becoming part of these grim statistics is to equip it with portable fire extinguishers that will douse small fires before they become large ones.

Half of all home fires start in the living room or bedroom so its a good idea to have extinguishers close at hand there. Also, you can expect flamable grease or oil fires to start in the kitchen and garage, so make sure you have the special type that fights grease and oil fires there.

Any unit you buy should be light enough to be easily handled by most members of the family. When shopping be sure that there is the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) or Factory Mutual seal on any portable extinguisher you buy. They mean the unit meets certain minimum standards.

U.S. Concern at Canada Dragging Its Feet and Waffling on Defence

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The same old division of priorities unresolved since 1969 still affect the present and future of our armed forces. Do we emphasize a reduced NATO role, or do we increase the North American continental one?

The NATO role was downgraded of course by Prime Minister Trudeau's foreign policy re-directions in early 1969. And to a large degree our NATO components function six years later very much along the lines laid down that year.

If anything, they function even less effectively since the equipment they had then, they largely have now, tired-out, 25-year-old tanks and obsolescent, dangerous-to-fly CF-104 Starfighters whose nuclear support role was also downgraded three years ago.

The same foreign policy shifts of the Prime Minister emphasized an increase in our hemispheric security role. It has escalated more in importance than the NATO one because of concerns of the early 70s over pollution controls in the north and a clear difference of view between Canada and the U.S. about sovereignty over the Northwest Passage.

And in the interval the growing inflationary tendencies affecting big weapons as much as food on the table, housing and cost-of-living, now makes it virtually impossible for the Canadian Government to buy all the new equipment needed for both NATO and the North.

The chronic indecision of the Trudeau Government in defence matters came to the fore a few days ago with the visit of the tough-minded James Schlesinger, U.S. Secretary of Defence, a hawkish member of the Ford cabinet who you can visualize is worried about Canada.

Mr. Schlesinger said quite plainly he thinks we are dragging our feet in our NATO role and should not do so.

And he comes at a time when the Canadian cabinet is hemming and hawing about two new kinds of expensive aircraft.

These are replacements for the Voodoo fighters possibly by the very costly and very new American F-15s and either a British or American aircraft to replace the very, very old Argus Long Range Patrol Aircraft which have been in constant service since 1958.

Mr. Schlesinger comes from the hard military venue of Washington which looks at the Soviet world in a way the Canadian Prime Minister and much of the Canadian people do not.

To the U.S. secretary of defence, the Russians in all their ways are still the potential enemy. He has plenty of recent events to justify the only way a U.S. secretary of defence is supposed to react.

He is justifiably worried about Russian penetration into NATO through the political swing to the left of Portugal, still a NATO member state.

He is worried about Canada's solid Cuban connection, since the Cubans (still in the Soviet bloc) have had a military mission, guess where?—in Lisbon and senior Portuguese military officers have been, guess where?—in Havana.

He is worried I am sure, about our general head-in-the-sand view of the immense Soviet nuclear firepower at sea in the North Atlantic against which we have minimal naval retaliatory forces.

What doesn't probably concern him is the way in which we should be defending our Arctic not only against possible Soviet naval penetration, but an American commercial one as well.

Wt are officially more worried about environmental destruction from big U.S. tankers at a future date than mysterious ice flow research teams landed by the sneaky Russians.

Even the prestigious official organ of the U.S. Naval Institute in Washington is inclined to identify the Arctic as international territory and curiously omits Canadian sovereignty from maps and articles.

Mr. Schlesinger's frank remarks will stimulate decisions in Ottawa, but not necessarily where defence is concerned, the kind he has in mind.

Housing for Seniors

"I decided years ago that old age is not always kind."

The words seemed to stand out from the rest of the letter — as a rebuke, not only to the weakness of the flesh, and to society itself, but also to such near-intangibles as extremes of climate, the harshness of our environment.

The statement is from a letter addressed to a member of this staff by a Pensioners Concerned Canada Inc. (Belleville and District Chapter) executive and it is significant in terms of Government and municipal sensitivity, or lack of it, to senior citizen needs in the post-election period.

The writer notes a study showing senior citizen housing in Belleville is adequate, but as a township resident is concerned about people outside the city who have no place to go. Not for herself in the immediate instance, for she is maintaining her own home, but there is the implication that one day such would be the case.

"I understand," the letter states, "that the main problem is the lack of serviced land for such a project. We would have to find accommodation in Stirling or Frankford — personally I would rather live in Belleville senior citizen's apartments. The County has an arrangement with Hastings Manor so maybe a complex could be built in Belleville solely for township people. As one gets older it is nice to be close to a hospital.

"Of course I prefer the idea of people being able to stay in their own homes as long as possible. The work that young people do in the summer time to assist elderly people is a wonderful project, but then winter time has many problems for senior citizens too. Snow plows come along and close us in even if we have managed to dig our driveways. . ."

These are timely observations, from one who understands the problems of the older citizen and whose needs are fulfilled perhaps to a degree only, leaving such gaps as have been articulated here. Much has been done on behalf of senior citizens, not least by themselves. Many are still active, such as a 75-year-old salesman we read about recently, but not all are as fit as he is. Hence the need for a weather-eye to their overall needs.

Investments in U. S.

Increasingly these days, there is a new twist to the old bogey of American corporate domination of Canada — and that is a reverse trend of Canadian as well as Arab and European investment in United States industry.

There is heavy Canadian investment for instance in vacation areas in Washington state. And the U.S. commerce department, as columnist John Harbron has pointed out, has a list of more than 10,000 American companies it considers to be foreign-owned.

This should help assuage any feelings of ruffled pride in these parts, while at the same time recognizing that investment, whatever its source, helps create jobs and maintain prosperity.

Everyone knows the bit about the world's longest undefended border, but in other respects the two countries are poles apart. There should be more contact, between the schools for instance (why can't our schools twin with those in say New York state?), as well as trade that is mutually beneficial.

There are many fine Canadians moreover who, at the personal level, invest in the United States, and believe in what it stands for, just as there are Americans who look with respect at the scene here.

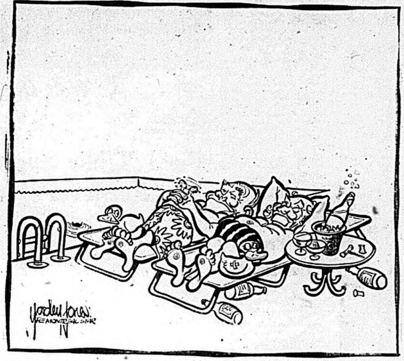
There is broadcaster Gordon Sinclair who made a record praising America and its people. It was in the wake of Watergate and it gave our neighbors a lift at a time when they needed it most.

Now that genius of the entertainment world, Ottawa-born Paul Anka, is planning to give back to New York city the proceeds of an upcoming engagement in the financially-troubled metropolis. He has even written a song that is a tribute to this city where he first gained fame, a song which says "to leave her when she is down would be a pity," and which is in the poignant, haunting genre of that other Anka classic, "I Did it My Way."

Everyone needs a friend, as does every community. New York has one in the 34-year-old Anka.

To extend the corollary, the western military alliance of NATO needs friends at this time. Will Canada beef up its support for it, as U.S. defence secretary James Schlesinger has been asking. It would be appropriate if it did, given the build-up of the Warsaw Pact nations.

To quote an old axiom: "United we Stand, Divided we Fall."



"It was inflation yesterday, unemployment the day before. What shall we be indifferent to today?"

Life Insurance: Rates and Returns Can Vary

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

There are wide differences in the prices you can pay for identical life-insurance policies in Canada.

And the financial return on your investment in life insurance can also vary widely from company to company.

Despite the competitive nature of the business, however, the vendors of life insurance seldom if ever advertise their prices.

Instead, they emphasize other attributes of insurance—its social value, its merit as a contractual and habit-forming method of saving, its role in assembling capital for economic growth.

The Canadian Life Insurance Association (44 King St. W., Toronto, M5H 1E9) does distribute a booklet, How To Compare, that outlines the technique of assessing costs but warns of the limitations of such techniques and provides no company-to-company comparisons.

(The CLIA also answers general questions about life insurance on a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-261-8663.)

A specialized publishing company, Stone and Cox Ltd., 203 Adelaide St. W., Toronto, M5H 1X4, compiles comparative data on insurance costs and the like in its annual Insurance Tables, used primarily by professionals.

Drawing on the Stone and Cox data to some extent, but largely on a questionnaire sent to most life insurers in the country, Canadian Consumer in its October issue compares the prices of a few widely used insurance services.

Here are highlights of the magazine's survey, results of which were compiled and edited by William E. McLeod, chairman of the business department at Cambrian College of Applied Arts and Technology in Sudbury:

—On $50,000 term life insurance ("pure" insurance, with no benefit payable except at death) to age 65, the lowest premiums on men at ages 20, 25 and 30 were those of Maritime Life Insurance Co.

United Provinces Life quotes the lowest premium on a 40-year-old man, and Manufacturers Life the lowest on a 45-year-old.

The highest premiums, in some cases, are more than 50 per cent greater than the lowest. This might indicate that the companies in question had adopted investment or marketing goals that they considered to be incompatible with emphasis on term insurance.

—Annual premiums for $50,000 of renewable and convertible term insurance, on men of ages 20 to 40, were lowest at Abbey Life Insurance Co. The highest premiums quoted elsewhere for such coverage were, at almost every age level, more than double the lowest.

—On $25,000 monthly income protection for a man, annual premiums showed the widest variation of all. Highest by a considerable margin was Manufacturers Life—because it is the only insurer in the survey that "indexes" its benefit payments to the cost of living.

—Interest rate paid on dividends on deposit, listed at four-year intervals over the past dozen years, shows Co-operators Insurance Association of Guelph paying the highest at eight per cent this year and 6.75 per cent in 1971. Abbey Life, which has consistently paid six per cent, was highest in 1967 and 1963.

Some 65 life-insurance companies in Canada this year are providing for the first time—to those who request it—a table of cost indices of their various services, calculated on a uniform basis.

Each table applies only to the company issuing it. But a diligent shopper could obtain any or all of the 65 sets of figures and compare the latest cost data of each company.

Sowing of fall wheat in the Hasting district is now practically completed according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Buckwheat is being harvested and appears to be an average crop. Pastures are above average. In Prince Edward County it is reported that tomatoes have ripened well since the rain last week and factories have been operating at capacity.

Peaches are being canned currently for the first time on a commercial scale in Prince Edward County. At Cherry Valley the factory is running full time on fruit brought from the Niagara district. A considerable number of local workers, mainly women, are at present being given work in the Prince Edward Factories. A recent request for 30 women from Belleville was filled by the local employment office.

Making the Most of Retirement

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Many people are over 60. These are the people who are doing the travelling They are free, able to travel anytime they please, although fares are more reasonable in the middle of the week or at certain months of the year.

Another advantage of travelling as a senior citizen is that you travel with a sense of freedom: no definite length of time designated as "holidays."

Travel agencies and the government co-operate to inform you of special trips and special rates.

Summer offers a great variety — lodges in beautiful settings, boat trips, summer courses on any subject, summer theatres are everywhere.

Don't overlook daily trips, picnics, visit a maple sugar bush, a museum, art galleries, gift shops, antique barns. In the fall the beauty of the outdoors beckons from all angles. If the winter is too much for you, write for a local paper, baby-sit, call on persons living alone, keep a diary.

You can't afford to do them all; but you can afford to do most of them. It costs very little to visit a museum or go on a picnic. If you arrange your money properly you will find it possible to do two or three larger projects. Carefully study your monthly income. Write down exactly what it costs for the essentials, food, heat, hydro and telephone.

Take a portion of the remainder and deposit a set amount in a separate bank account that you cannot write cheques on. If you are careful about spending money on non-essentials, the fund may be added to considerably. This gives you an incentive for saving.

Always have a goal ahead. Make plans for the next happening before the present one is concluded. Enjoy yourself. Every new day is yours. Make the most of it. Have fun.

Turner's Future

Brockville Recorder and Times

The prospect of former Finance Minister John Turner becoming the leader of the Conservative Party of Canada, boggles the mind. He is the number two Liberal in Canada. And if it should transpire that he crosses the floor of the House of Commons to oppose his fomer colleagues, he will be following in the footsteps of another powerful Liberal, Paul Hellyer, who was No. 2 Liberal at the time also. One would hope that he would do it with greater success than Mrs. Hellyer however.

Many Liberals and Conservatives are saying it couldn t happen. Yet it could. Apparently Mr. Turner is giving himself some time to sort out his priorities and alternatives. It is known that a poll has been taken of a selective number of Conservatives to learn whether or not Mr. Turner would be acceptable to the party and to ascertain if there is support for him as a leadership candidate of the party.

Shadow Of The Assassin In The U.S.

Montreal Gazette

No major nation in the world is so susceptible to attempts on the lives of its leaders as the United States In this century two presidents have been slain and known attempts have been made on the lives of four others. Numerous candidates and other political leaders have been tracked down and attacked. During the Sixties it was almost epidemic.

Quite by coincidence, the CBS program Guns of Autumn appeared the evening of the day the president was attacked. It depicted a society of gun lovers who associate comradeship and getting back to nature with killing, who attempt to pass on their pleasure and pride in bloodletting to their children. These people, normal in the context of their fellows, cannot be counted insane, but the overwhelming impression of the program was that the society they formed might well be insane.

A people that encourages easy, cheerful killing, that lives with the highest murder rate in the world, that is entertained by violence, that appears to have tolerated, in the CIA, plans to assassinate heads of other states should not be surprised that troubled minds misinterpret its purposes.

At the time of the attack on him, President Ford was walking to the California legislature to speak on crime and the need for gun controls. The controls he supports are so feeble they would not even have banned the weapon pointed at him that very day. Canada, which imports a lot of U.S. culture, has need to stand on guard.

Public Servant Was Grounded for Criticism of Jean-Pierre Goyer

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Arthur Stewart probably never thought that criticizing Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer would get him into trouble. After all, nearly every reporter in the country had been taking pot shots at Mr. Goyer for years, usually with good reason.

Goyer was solicitor general when the new Security Group was set up. "Goyer's gumshoes," the critics called them. He was also solicitor general when a man convicted of murdering his wife was given a day off to marry his girlfriend. He disappeared for an extended honeymoon that ended in Spain.

The supply and services department seemed like a portfolio where even a minister with as serious a case of foot-in-mouth disease as Mr. Goyer couldn't get in trouble.

Not so. Before long he was poking into Donald Macdonald's energy field paying top dollar for a few million gallons of spare fuel oil he found on the market, and advocating the importation of 30,000 Koreans to work the Athabaska tar sands.

Arthur Stewart is president of the Supply and Services component of the Public Service Alliance of Canada. As a union leader he took it for granted he had the freedom to sound off about what he considered mismanagement by the top brass.

Stewart might have saved himself a lot of truble if he had used a little more tact in how he went about it. His union has a newletter, the natural vehicle for the leader to use in talking to his members. If a few copies fell into the hands of newspaper reporters, that wouldn't be his fault.

Instead, Stewart chose to unburden himself in Citizen Forum, a sound-off column in The Ottawa Citizen. Authors are customarily paid about $35.

His efforts were frowned upon by the deputy minister and he was handed a 90-day suspension without pay. Stewart appealed the suspension and an adjudicator finally produced a report that cut the suspension to 45 days. Stewart, naturally, didn't consider that much of a victory and has appealed it to the courts. It could, in due course, end up in the Supreme Court of Canada.

The fault of the adjudicator — apart from the fact that 45 days is a pretty long time to go without salary — was his failure to address himself clearly to the question of the right of a public servant to disagree in public with the operation of the department for which he works.

Merely reducing the penalty from 90 to 45 days — or even to one day for that matter — would still leave Mr. Stewart guilty of a misdemeanor and every public servant would know that the old "keep-your-mouth-shut" rule still applied. Only the press and the politicians can criticize the government.

Even if Arthur Stewart loses this battle, it is a war that the public service will win eventually.

More than half the money every Canadian earns is spent by one level of government or another. Vast areas of the economy are under public administration — a lot of it out of the reach of the politicians. And aparently the press does not have the resources to report it adequately.

It is understandable that the conscientious public servant will feel he has the responsibility to sound off about mismanagement if no-one else will do so.

Businessmen Seek Spending Cuts

SASKATOON (CP) — The country's businessmen have called upon the federal government to reduce expenditures as a means of decelerating inflation.

Gerald Pearson, newly-elected president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said in an interview Monday that Ottawa should take the example of the Alberta government which recently announced plans to reduce spending.

Mr. Pearson, of Edmonton, said inflation is the No. 1 problem facing Canadian businessmen today and before it can be slowed down the federal government must reduce its expenditures.

His sentiments echoed those of Robert Bonner, a Vancouver lawyer and former British Columbia attorney-general.

Mr. onner told the chamber's annual meeting that increasing government spending and the accompanying greedy appetite of the tax man must be curtailed in order to nurse the Canadian economy back to health.

Expenditures by both federal and provincial governments have doubled during the last three years, Mr. Bonner said.

oth Mr. Pearson and Mr Bonner also suggested that the federal government enact legislation to ease the skyrocketing prices in Canada's housing industry.

Canada Fully Prepared to Build New World Economic Order

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen of Canada has underlined the willingness of his country to work within the UN system to help build a new economic order.

The Special Assembly session last week made some headway toward reducing the gap between the rich and the poor countries, but it was all on paper, the minister said Monday. adopted by the special session now must be translated into policies, MacEachen said. It was one of the key issues and an urgent one.

In delivering Canada's major foreign policy speech to the UN General Assembly Monday, MacEachen said Canada is convinced that the UN must be made more responsible to the needs and concerns of its members.

For this reason the Canadian government intended to play an active and constructive part in the ad hoc committee, created by the Special Assembly to deal with the main weaknesses of the UN.

MacEachen's address also concentrated on peacekeeping, disarmament, law of the sea and structural changes in the UN.

At a later news conference, MacEachen said the Canadian government has not taken any hard positions on revision of the UN Chater itself.

As noted by the group of experts in a report to the ad hoc's committee, proliferation of committees and inter-governmental bodies were among the major weaknesses of the UN. Others were diffusion of the UN effort in the economic and social field and the fragmentation of its endeavors in world development.

"We believe that efforts ought to be made to consolidate and possibly to ensure that the direction of all the United Nations efforts is more centrally controlled," MacEachen told UN correspondents.

On law of the sea, MacEachen told the assembly the Canadian government could not wait indefinitely for a UN agreement on a 200 - mile offshore fishery limit.

He said at the news conference Canada was working in the multilateral context to seek a solution to law of the sea and was delighted that such good progress had been made. The law of the sea conference opens next March in New York.

Canada had been holding bilateral talks with states that fish off its coast — the Soviet Union, Portugal, Norway and Spain—to seek out agreement or arrangements that might prevail when Canada's extending jurisdiction took place.

But if the March conference ended in failure on the 200-mile limit, Canada would be hard-pressed to proclaim the extended zone unilaterally. MacEachen said Canada would not exercise that option until everything else failed.

In reply to a question on Canadian support for development aid, MacEachen said there was still a good deal of Canadian support, certainly in Parliament, for the traditional type which has rreached more than $900 million a year.

It might be a different story regarding the changes that might have to take place in the international trading and monetary system to allow development of developing countries.

Convention Invites Terrorists

WASHINGTON (CP) — The American Society of Criminology (ASC), which holds its annual meeting in Toronto next month, has issued an "open invitation" to any terrorist who wants to participate.

Nicholas Kittrie, ASC president, said Monday that "any person who may be a representative of "a terrorist organization, who might like to get on the program and present an intelligent and scientific point of view, will get a hearing."

Kittrie, who is head of the law faculty at American University, said the ASC would not be interested in "a political dissertation," but that terrorists would be welcome "so long as they leave their guns at home and confine their ammunition to ideas."

The annual meeting is to held in the downtown Holiday Inn across from the city hall, Oct. 30-Nov. 2.

Justice experts from several countries are expected to attend. More than 30 Canadians are listed in the program, including Solicitor-General Warren Allmand. Deputy Attorney-General Harold Tyler heads the U.S. delegation.

Program chairman Arnold Trebach says there will be representation from as many as 15 countries. They will study aspects of crime ranging from international terrorism to the plight of women in prisons.

He said the Toronto meeting has been "programmed for controversy," and would consider such premises as "one man's terrorist is another man's freedom fighter."

Old Cameras Tracked Down

CALGARY (CP) — George Marks, a travelling salesman, has turned an occupational drawback into a rewarding hobby by tracking down more than 500 vintage cameras in the small towns he visits.

He says he has "haunted every Goodwill shop from Lac la Biche to Soho" during the last nine years in search of old cameras, lenses and other photographic paraphernalia.

One of Mr. Mark's favorites is a "banquet panorama camera" with a wide-angle lens that produces 7x17-inch negatives. He also found an 1890-model camera used by L. A. Bird, a well-known Calgary photographer, "sitting in a studio in Drumheller."

Buys Claims

TORONTO (CP) — Denison Mines Ltd. has agreed to purchase for $120,000 payable over 10 years 17 claims held by North Rock Explorations Ltd. and Alchib Developments Ltd. in the Blind River camp.

DETROIT (AP) — The Chrysler Imperial, which made its debut in the automobile market 50 years ago, will be dropped from the Chrysler Corp. line this fall, the company confirmed Monday.

Execution Deadline Passes, Archeologist's Fate Unknown

PARIS (CP) The deadline sey by desert rebels in northern Chad to execute kidnapped French archeologist Francoise Claustre passed this morning with no official word of whether she had been ransomed.

Paris-educated rebel chief Hissen Habre set 5 a.m. EDT as the time Mrs. Claustre, 38, would be executed if the French government did not fulfil an earlier agreement to supply an estimated 80 tons of military supplies, though not arms, and 400,000 francs (about $890,000) as ransom. Total value of the ransom would be $2.1 million.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaint put a news blackout on negotiations, which were reported still in progress early this morning. Bargaining was being conducted by radio relay from the rebels to a circling French aircraft then into the offices of two of the president's top advisers in Paris.

The rebels have already shown they are serious by killing a French Army major who attempted to bargain for the life of Mrs. Claustre, kidnapped 17 months ago. Her husband, Pierre, was seized last month while on a lone rescue mission.

Mrs. Claustre's life depends on whether France and the rebels can agree on how the ransom should be paid and delivered.

Habre has said that $1.3 million of the ransom should be equipment—jeeps, small trucks, sanitary equipment, typewriters—dropping earlier demands for arms.

France offered to pay the total ransom in cash as the equipment, weighing about 80 tons, would take four transport planes as many days to deliver. But there were reports Monday that France was willing to suppl ythe equipment as well.

The French government may suffer widespread domestic indignation if Mrs. Claustre is killed. It has already incurred the wrath of the Chad and other African governments. The Chad administration has banned all French military activities in the country, including takeoffs and landings by French planes.

Despite assurances that arms will not be delivered, Chad has remained suspicious about French intentions.

The Organization of African Unity (OAU) has also denounced France's decision to deal directly with the rebels.

The conservative daily Le Figaro said in a report from correspondent Thierry Desjardins that there is virtually no chance that Mrs. Claustre can be saved.

One hope expressed by French officials is that Habre's Moslem faith will keep him from killing a woman during the current Ramadan religious fasting period, thus allowing more time for manoeuvring.

Oil Accord Needed

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — A mechanism for harmonizing the politics of all the jurisdictions governing the oil industry in Canada must be found quickly, Philip Gordon, vice-president of manufacturing for Shell Canada Ltd., said Monday.

Such a mechanism must deal with conflicting priorities of the various federal government departments as well as consider the views of the provincial governments and the oil industry.

Mr. Gordon also called for the creation of a national authority where all energy information can be collected.

Speaking to a service club, he said Canada's oil industry is in the grip of a bewildering array of regulations which frustrate energy development."

He said that by the end of this year, because of rapidly declining oil reserves, Canada will become a net importer of oil. Under present circumstances, Canada's balance of trade deficit on oil by 1985 will be $2 billion.

To win back self-sufficiency in oil by 1990 will require new investment of about $80 billion, he said.

However, he added, that federal and provincial governments are syphoning off "so much of the oil-income dollar that the amount remaining in industry's hands is insufficient for vital re-investment."

Mr. Gordon also said the oil industry intends to explain its case to the Canadian people more than in the past.

Canadian Eggs Cheaper Abroad

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the Food Prices Review Board said Monday that skim-milk powder may not be the only product subsidized in foreign markets by Canadian consumers.

Beryl Plumptre said following a speech to the annual meeting of the National Dairy Council there is a good chance Canadian eggs are selling in Hong Kong for less than what Canadian consumers pay.

She earlier criticized the government's program of subsidizing skim-milk powder, saying if Agriculture Canada handled its producer programs the way the milk program is handled, we can be sure heads would roll."

Mrs. Plumptre said she knows the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) is selling surplus eggs in Hong Kong although she did not know the price.

James Fleming, vice-president of the United Egg Producers of the United States, said in a telephone interview Monday from Decatur, Ga., that 122,000 cases of 15-dozen Canadian eggs (Grade A small) had been sold in Hong Kong in June, July and August, 1975.

Mr. Fleming, whose group made charges last week to a U.S. government trade committee that Canadian eggs were being dumped in the U.S., said CEMA was undercutting American producers who were selling eggs in Hong Kong for about 40 cents a dozen.

John Hyde, a CEMA director, denied Monday that Canadian eggs were being dumped in Hong Kong and said the eggs are selling above the breaker price.

Breakers—companies which buy surplus table eggs and process them for bakeries—currently buy small eggs for about 23 to 25 cents a dozen.

CEMA pays 52 cents a dozen to the grading station for the eggs and absorbs the loss through a six-cent-a-dozen levy paid by egg producers to finance the surplus egg removal program.

The milk program is intended to keep maximum gross retail profits for each brand and size of skim milk powder at the levels in effect on Oct. 14, 1973, when the program was started.

But Mrs. Plumptre said some retailers reacted by removing from store shelves the brands and sizes offering them least profit, or substituted new brands and sizes to which the regulations do not apply. Some provision was needed to allow for reasonable cost increases at the retail level.

She said efforts to bring these problems to Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan's attention have brought only a non-committal reply.

The marriage of Willoughby Pauls and Mary Mullin took place in August in a service and nuptial mass conducted by Rev. George Mullin, in Holy Rosary Church.

The waiters were Rosemary Lanigan and Gerald Mullin, daughter and son of the bride. The ushers were George Pauls, son of the groom, and Adrian Mullin, son of the bride.

People and Events

B & P WOMEN

The September meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club was held last Monday night at the Sun Valley Motor Inn. After a summer recess, the Club reconvened to discuss new business and future projects. An event is being planned to celebrate International Women's Year and it will take place in November.

After a Turkey dinner, several different chairwomen were called on to make their reports. When business was taken care of, the event for the month was then begun — the Young Career Women's Night.

Three young Belleville women prepared speeches and presented them to the audience of over thirty members and guests. Donna Whalen, Barbara Maracle, both members of the Club, and Patricia Cotter, a non-member, spoke on the topic "My Status in My Province."

In order to have an impartial judging, three women who are not members of the Club, were aked to adjjudicate. They were Irene Haig, Irene Lickman, and Dorothy Blakely. Their choice was Donna Whalen, who will give her speech again in Kingston next month at the regional meeting of the B & P Clubs. She will also represent Belleville next May at the provincial meeting in Hamilton.

The President of the Club this year is Colombe Both. The executive includes Dolly Reed, Bettie Anderson, Dorothy Flack, Gloria McNeil and Mavis Deveau.

DESERONTO QUINTE OLD TIMERS

Senior citizens of Deseronto Quinte Old Timers met at the Lions Hall on Wednesday afternoon, September 17, after summer recess.

Pauline Sills, secretary, read the minutes of two special executive meetings held in July and August as well as the last regular meeting.

During the summer period the club travelled to Belleville for supper at the Ponderosa, to Pioneer Village in Toronto and African Safari at Rochton. The club is planning to go to Bancroft on October 1, where they will be entertained by Clark Rollins and enjoy a color tour of the north country.

One suggestion adopted during the business meeting was that persons who wish to become members of the club, if not disabled, must attend a regular meeting and their membership must be voted on by the club. It was suggested that the door prize be discontinued. It was also decided to have a vote by ballot for the election of officers at the October meeting under the chairmanship of Chief Carl Beatty.

Pauline Sills stated that she was resigning from the office of Recording Secretary of the club, an office she's held since the club's organization in 1970.

Treasurer Nora Walker read the finance statement showing a healthy balance, Jennie McQueen read the social and welfare report and Nancy Reynolds announced the club has two new members, William Jackson and Floyd Marlin.

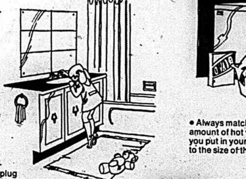
CONSERVE ENERGY

9 ways to conserve energy and save money in the big "hot water" areas of your home.

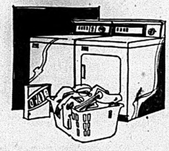
Apart from home heating, a family usually consumes the most energy in producing hot water. So it makes good sense to follow these energy-saving tips— whether your water heater is gas, oil or electric.

The Bathroom

- Showers usually take less hot water than baths. Since baths and showers account for about 40% of home hot water use, taking showers can offer considerable savings.
- When you turn off a hot water tap, make sure it doesn't drip. If it does, it probably needs a new washer.
- More frequent use of the sink plug can prevent a lot of unused hot water from going down the drain.



The Laundry Room



- Always match the amount of hot water you put in your washer to the size of the load.
- Whenever possible use cold water for rinsing.

The Kitchen

- Using too much detergent to wash dishes can waste hot water in extra rinsing.
- If you use a dishwasher, wait until you have a full load.

The Hot Water Tank

- Long runs of hot water pipe should be well insulated— especially in unheated areas.
- Switch off your electric water heater when going on vacation.

Cascade

The Cascade water heater will give you a dependable supply of hot water, but it is up to you to use it wisely. If we each save a little, we'll all save a lot.

TRICIA

When a girl is 15 and her only family experiences have been unhappy, you'd think she wouldn't want to try joining a family again. But Tricia has not lost faith in families as being desirable. She very much wants to belong and she is asking to be adopted. Five younger brothers and sisters have been successfully and happily adopted.

Tricia is tall and slim with brown hair, hazel eyes, fair skin and a splash of freckles. She is in good health except for a punctured ear drum which is to be surgically repaired shortly. Her background is German.

Tricia is mildly retarded and not able to cope with academic subjects. But she is good at hand work. She likes sewing and is skilled at various crafts. Her retardation mainly stems from early environmental deprivation for she was sadly neglected when she came into the care of the Children's Aid Society. She is now living in a small residence with other below average children. She is thriving there but still hopes for a home with a mother and father.

Most of the time Tricia is pleasant, co-operative and happy, though like most teens, she has occasional moods. She is shy on meeting strangers, especially men, but soon becomes cheerfully talkative. She is not inhibited about expressing her feelings.

Tricia loves music and dancing and is fond of both ice and roller skating.

It will be wonderful for Tricia if she can have older or younger parents who can accept her for herself, can appreciate her affectionate nature and can make her feel useful, wanted and loved. Even if eventually she might have to live in a residence it would mean much for her to have an "own family" to visit. She has been having minimal contact (perhaps a visit twice a year) with her natural mother and would like this to continue but it should not be considered a threat to the new loyalty she will form to her adopting family.

To inquire about adopting Tricia, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2N2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Catholic Women Meet in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The Catholic Women's League of Canada came out against abortion, use of fetuses in experiments, loosening marijuana laws and mercy killing at their week-long 55th annual national convention here.

The League, in a list of 15 resolutions released Friday also urged the government to provide counselling services to help pregnant women to find positive alternatives to abortion and eliminate abortion referral from publicly funded family planning programs.

The women applauded the federal government's work in prevention of child battering and urged the CBC and CTV television networks to censor violence from their programs shown between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Ann Landers

Wife Is Bisexual, Marriage Succeeds

Dear Ann Landers: Almost all the letters about bisexuality you have printed have dealt with males who went both ways. In my case it's my wife who is bisexual.

I learned of my wife's affair after we had been married a short time. She had known this woman for a few years but decided to marry me, have a family, and try to forget about her.

Sixteen years have passed. We have three perfectly beautiful children who seem well adjusted and happy. My wife and I have a nice, peaceful relationship—no problems so long as I don't show any signs of jealousy or animosity toward her woman friend.

We went for counseling (at my insistence) and to my great surprise the counselor said, "Your marriage is in better shape than most." The outcome was that my wife considers herself completely liberated, and feels she has the best of both possible worlds.

The Other Woman is cultivated, attractive, and nobody suspects a thing. I am reluctant to let 16 years of marriage go down the drain because of what it might do to our children—particularly if the facts come out. Yet it is extremely difficult to remain married to a woman who has what I consider a serious problem. What can you suggest? — Square in Madison.

Dear S.: More counseling. For you. A man who could stay married to a bisexual woman for 16 years is not my average run-of-the-mill reader. There are several aspects of your personality that are beyond my ken. I strongly suggest further exploration.

Dear Ann Landers: We are good Catholics, have been married 38 years and have a nice big family. My husband took up with a woman named Clara about eight months ago. I don't understand what she sees in him. He is not good looking, has a below-average personality and is 60 years of age. If I were a woman 39-years-old I wouldn't look at the old elk a second time, let alone get involved with him.

I need to know if I should talk to my priest about this or would it be better to talk to my eldest son? (My husband has a lot of respect for this boy.) On the other hand maybe I ought to talk to Clara. Please give me your very best advice. I am — Frazzled From Counting Beads.

Dear Fraz: Talk to the old elk first. It seems logical since he's the person with whom you are having the difficulty.

Step Two: Talk to your priest. Religion is obviously important to you both. Perhaps your clergyman can pound some sense between Lover Boy's Antlers.

Dear Ann Landers: When my brothers and I were kids we used to play a lot of cards together. We just added up point, no money was involved, and it was a lot of fun. I used to win about half the time.

When I got to be about 13. Dad taught us how to play for money. I began to lose more often than I won and it really made me mad. By the time I was 16. I detested card playing so much I gave it up altogether.

Now my dad and brothers are on my back to get back into the game. I really hate cards but they are calling me a lousy sport and it bugs me. What's your advice? — No Gambling Blood

Dear N.G.B.: Leave those 52 tickets to people who enjoy them. Nowhere does it say you have to be a card player to lead a better life.

Marries Britisher Citizenship Lost

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa-born Michele Beach, who was briefly a woman without a state, is fighting to retain her Canadian citizenship.

Mrs. Beach, who lost her Canadian citizenship in 1974 while living in Britain, has been in Ottawa for more than two weeks trying to convince the government to reinstate her citizenship.

The 24-year-old woman married a young British lawyer while both were attending the University of Ottawa in 1972.

Mrs. Beach said she was assured by Canadian officials before leaving for Britain with her husband that she would not lose her Canadian citizenship by acquiring a British citizenship.

When seeking British citizenship in 1974, Mrs. Beach said British officials assured her she would not lose her Canadian citizenship.

But about a month after receiving her British citizenship papers in Britain in July, 1974, Mrs. Beach received a letter from the Canadian high commissioner's office in London informing her that she was no longer a Canadian citizen and had to give up her Canadian passport.

After protests to the high commissioner's office she said she received another letter suggesting she renounce her British citizenship so her Canadian citizenship would still be valid.

She renounced her British citizenship in September, 1974, but was informed later by letter from the state secretary's department in Ottawa that she still was not a Canadian citizen.

Mrs. Beach said her British citizenship was then reinstated so she would not remain stateless.

Even a personal letter to Prime Minister Trudeau did not clear up Mrs. Beach's problem. An aide to the prime minister referred her to the state secretary's department.

Mrs. Beach is in Ottawa visiting government officials trying to persuade them to give her a hearing.

Board Questions Nutritional Value of Student Candy Bar Sales

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education may have a sweet tooth but they sounded a sour note Monday night to students raising money through the sale of candy or non-nutritional food.

The board voted in favor of strongly recommending to individual schools that non-nutritional foods not be used for fund raising purposes.

The move stems from a recent educational task force looking into the state of nutrition in the schools. One of its major recommendations dealt with the sale of candy by students.

Currently, several schools in Belleville are selling $1 candy bars for this purpose and several more have orders into candy manufacturers.

However, the board stopped short of banning these candy drives leaving its reprimand as warning enough.

Only one trustee Ed Paquet strongly opposed the move on the grounds that the board will be denying students the best means of raising funds. He said selling lightbulbs is not as lucrative as candy.

He argued that students sell the candy bars to adults who have a free choice to buy them or not. He admitted that he enjoys an occasional candy bar often purchased through student or recreational drives. However, he said the candy bars should be banned from the schools.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams, a strong supporter of a candy bar ban, said the board had a moral obligation to make students and citizens aware of nutrition and that the board should not be selling non-nutritional food.

The board also discussed the possibility of setting up a pilot project where nutritional food would be offered at reduced prices compared to the so-called "junk foods." The task force discovered that most nutritional tiems cost more in school cafeterias.

Belleville trustee Donald Thrush said he didn't believe that lowering the price of nutritional food would be enough to encourage students to buy anything but junk foods. He said the problem is more complex.

Mr. Williams said the experiment is worth a try and that if the board could change the eating habits of 15 students it would be worthwhile.

The board is in the process of considering and implementing some of the recommendations in the task force report.

Sprinkler Ruling May Delay Palmer Highrise

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A Toronto developer failed Monday in his bid to have a 10-storey apartment building project exempted from a Belleville fire safety ordinance.

As a result, a start on the 115-apartment scheme planned for Palmer Road has been delayed indefinitely.

City council — after warning that Belleville already was short on apartments and the scarcity could boost rents — voted 6-4 against exempting the project from its bylaw calling for sprinkler systems in such projects.

The action concurred with the advice of Fire Chief Leo Culhane.

The council majority followed the assessment of Mayor Ben Corke that city hall, faced with ongoing building requests, could not grant a specific exemption.

The decision brought chagrin to Dan C. Casey, a principal in Creson Developments Ltd., who had waited two weeks for council's decision.

When he first made the request Sept. 8, Mr. Casey said a new Ontario housing code to take precedence over local building bylaws, was expected this fall.

However, if Creson had to await the provincial law, the project could be affected by rising costs in the interim, he said.

After council's decision Mr. Casey could not say when the project would get under way. Creson, he said, would now have to wait until the Ontario code was introduced and hope that financing would not be affected.

The new provincial code will list 14 alternate fire protection methods in high rise apartments, said a letter from the developer's planner, Robbie Williams Partnership, Toronto.

Mr. Casey told council the cost of installing the sprinkler system would make Creson's project "unviable."

Ald. Brian Knudsen moved that the exemption be granted. There was a need for such accommodation in Belleville. With the alternatives in the pending provincial code he said the Creson project is "of sufficient quality" it would comply with fire safety standards.

Ald. Paul Russell said he supported the sprinkler ordinance. But legislation enforcing the new provincial code already had received its required three readings in the legislature — which meant it was just awaiting an official signature.

Fire Chief Culhane's letter to council said he had not been able to determine if the Ontario code would supercede the city's bylaw. A municipal ordinance could still stand if it was more stringent than the provincial code.

However, a memo from city engineer Joe Angelo indicated the code could be proclaimed before the end of the year. The new act, he said also states it supercedes local bylaws.

Paint Equipment Stolen

Paint and airhose valued at approximately $80 was stolen from the former Tuff-Kote Undercoating building on Dundas St. East over the weekend, the second theft from the premises in a week.

City police reported today thieves entered the building at 199 Dundas St. by pushing out a panel in a door at the rear of the vacant building.

In another weekend incident reported late Monday, a window in Bell Canada offices on Pinnacle St. was broken. Damage is estimated at $200.

Results Official

Quinte riding returnin officer Gerry Joyce made official Monday — Liber Hugh O'Neil won the Sept. 1 provincial election.

In the official count of ballots, conducted by returning office staff Monday, Mr. O'Neil polled 12,440 votes — 659 more than Progressive Conservative candidate Robin Jeffrey.

The bulk of Mr. O'Neil's lead came from Belleville polls where he took a 400-vote margin over the Conservative candidate.

The New Democratic candidate Carson McLauchlan polled 4,663 votes.

Approximately 68 per cent of the riding's eligible voters cast ballots.

Award Winner

Linda Snefjella, a 17-year-old Grade 13 student of Quinte High School, was recently honored at the Barry Drama Festival, sponsored by Simpsons-Sears, for her outstanding performance in Burlap Bags — a Canadian play by Len Peterson. Miss Snefjella, a resident of Belleville, travelled during the summer with the Theatre Guild and now is rehearsing for Around-About 1883-84 at Pinnacle Playhouse.

Council Briefs

Appointment Delayed

For the second time in two weeks city council has delayed recommending an appointee to a provincial government steering committee which will investigate formation of a district health council.

Donald Soutter, the health ministry's eastern Ontario planning co-ordinator first requested an appointment Aug. 1.

Ald. Stu Meeks was recommended for the appointment but council postponed its approval Sept. 8.

Monday it again deferred a decision for two weeks.

New Rate Would Hurt

Higher rates being requested by Bell Canada could cost city hall $80 — $120 more a month.

That's the estimate of city manager Wilbur Purcell who informed council Monday the new Bell proposals would mean increases ranging from six to 12 per cent.

The city now pays about $1,300 a month for telephone service.

Pickerel for Moira

An attempt will be made to have the Moira River stocked with pickerel.

The Moira River Conservation Authority (MRCA) executive is to request the area's local MPP to have a delegation meet with natural resources ministry officials in Toronto on the proposal.

The reason: An ongoing ecology study of the Bay of Quinte — recording the effects of pollution control — calls for no new fish species to be introduced in local waters for 10 years.

But, Ald. Stu Meeks told councillors Monday, the MRCA executive feels the stipulation could be met with pickerel, which is a native species to Bay waters.

Speeders Beware

Belleville motorists received two cautionary reminders Monday night:

— Unless otherwise posted, the speed limit in any urban area is 30 miles an hour.

— Police will be enforcing no-parking regulations near the East Hill Playgrounds.

Ald. Jack Ireland, city hall traffic committee chairman, said there has been "an epidemic" of calls about sign denoting speeds on the Cannifton and Bayshore roads. But unless otherwise designated Ontario law called for 30 miles an hour in the city.

There also have been complaints about illegal parking in the vicinity of the East Hill park and an apartment building across the road.

United Way Gets Green Light

October will be United Way month in Belleville.

City council agreed to the proclamation Monday.

The request came from the United Community Services which conducts the annual fund-raising campaign for local community agencies.

Fire Prevention Endorsed

Oct. 5 — 11 will be Fire Prevention Week in Belleville.

City council approved the proclamation Monday as requested by Fire Chief Leo Culhane.

Runacres Attacks Ministry Funding

Director of education Eric Runacres came down hard on the province's ministry of education Monday night but stopped just short of accusing the government of unfair distribution of funds across Ontario.

The comments came at a time when the Hastings County Board of Education is preparing its capital forecasts for the ministry of education in which the board will ask for $17 million over the next three years for new construction, renovations and educational programs.

Mr. Runacres told trustees that despite well-planned and documented requests over the past six years the board has received inadequate funds resulting in buildings which have safety and maintenance problems.

"The yearly curtailment of our desires has meant overcrowding, displacement, limited educational programs and serious maintenance difficulties . . . hope for improvement in this area is minimal," said Mr. Runacres.

He objected to the "arbitrary way in which the ministry allocates funds based on a priority list submitted by each board of education.

He said there is no rhyme nor reason as to why the ministry rejects or accepts new projects.

To counteract this method Mr. Runacres said that the board should not list in order of priority its needs so that the ministry can't shop projects according to an order. Instead he suggested that the board submit, with valid reasons, all of its needs.

"We will refuse to be forced into putting our needs on a priority list," said Mr. Runacres, "it's unfair."

He said by doing this the ministry would have to explain where and how the board must cut costs.

New School Needed

The Hastings County Board of Education may be faced with building a new public school west of Belleville to accommodate the current and projected growth in Sidney township.

As part of its 1976 capital forecast the board will ask the ministry for $1.1 million in debentures to proceed with the project. However, due to recent restrictions in education spending there is some doubt as to whether the board will receive all of the funds.

Superintendent of education Glen Watson told trustees Monday night that the Bayside School complex now is reaching its capacity. He said a new school would have to accommodate at least 400 students. No site was mentioned.

Crosswalk Situation Remains Under Review

Unmarked pedestrian crossings in Belleville are hazardous — both to pedestrians and motorists, city council was warned Monday.

The problem of crossings is a familiar one to city hall and the latest request for action came from a one-man delegation — Raymond Davidson, 234 Pine St.

Areas he singled out as dangerous: Campbell St. — both at Pinnacle and Front streets; Station and Emily streets, and Pinnacle at Market Square.

Ald. Jack Ireland said the crosswalks issues is again under "active review" and the city's traffic committee — of which he is chairman — is awaiting a report from the city manager's office.

Meantime, major street expansions — including Pinnacle — will bring change to traffic patterns and planners now are viewing different possibilities, he said.

Advisors, for instance, would like traffic lights at the Campbell St. intersections. One decision was whether to have properly designated crosswalks installed or traffic lights later.

"I don't disagree with you at all," Mayor Ben Corke told Mr. Davidson. However, he suggested Mr. Davidson meet with the traffic committee.

Trustees Honored

PICTON — Trustees retired from the Prince Edward County Board of Education were honored Monday night during a special meeting at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Retirement pins were presented to Dorothea Carson of North Marysburg, Jerald Anderson, Ameliasburg, James Plomer, South Marysburg, George Flower, Ameliasburg and Lloyd Seeley of Picton.

Handicapped Request Downtown Aids

Scant attention is publicly paid the problems of the disabled in their efforts to achieve mobility in a community, city council was told Monday.

The reminder came from a handicapped young man — his presence emphasizing a message sent council from Belleville's Cheshire Home for physcially disabled adults.

Peter Ramsay, 25, a Cheshire Home resident, came to the council meeting on crutches to plead for more public awareness of the needs of people like himself.

What's required — particularly in downtown areas — are more transportation aids and facilities like ramps in sidewalks and buildings, he said.

"I'm one of the lucky ones — I can go down (town) on my crutches," he told council.

This meant handicapped people — and the aged — find it difficult to become mobile unless by taxi or wheelchair.

"We feel we have enough difficulty getting around as it is right now without meeting some of these challenges . ." said Mr. Ramsay.

The city already has made some gestures in recognizing the problem, council was told.

City engineer Joe Angelo said ramps had been installed with street-widening projects on Victoria Ave and Sidney St.

Ald. Jean Smith said the Belleville Transportation Commission is also aware of the problem and might obtain information on a dial-a-bus system.

But a letter from Irene Sansom, Cheshire Home director, said transportation for the handicapped in Belleville is "non-existent" apart from a few private vehicles.

"Disabled persons in this town are segregated because of the lack of transport and inaccessibility of most buildings," she wrote.

Handicapped adults are "frustrated, but resigned" to the situation.

Mrs. Sansom forwarded a recent report of the Ontario Advisory Council on the Physically Handicapped, calling for minor modifications to public transit systems to help ease the problem.

City Schedule Lists Sunday Gas Stations

City hall has moved once again to make gasoline more available on weekends.

After complaints about the difficulties of finding gas stations open—particularly on Sundays—city council passed new opening regulations in June.

Monday it approved a schedule from city manager Wilbur Purcell rotating the service stations on weekend schedules in five separate groups.

Mr. Purcell drafted the timetable after 44 letters to local gas station operators suggesting they set the schedule, went unanswered.

Cyclist Escapes Injury

A RR 4 Belleville youth escaped serious injury when he was struck by an unknown vehicle while riding a bicycle on Bridge St. East Monday.

City police said Theodore Voteary, 16, was slightly injured and was taken home by family friends.

Police have no description of the vehicle, which left the scene of the accident.

Rights of Consumers Topic of First Seminar

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The courts now can award punitive damages to a consumer who has purchased a product based on advertising judged to be misleading or false.

Belleville lawyer Wilfrid Menninga told Committee for Consumer Education (CCE) members Monday the provision is contained in the new provincial government Business Practices Act.

He said it marks a departure from previous consumer protection legislation which solely provided for actual damages incurred by a consumer.

The act, passed this year and still too new to gauge its full effect, is one of seven federal and provincial acts Mr. Menninga will discuss in the first of five seminars dealing with consumer related problems.

Consumer Rights, the first seminar at Quinte Secondary School, Thurs., Oct. 30, will outline a consumer's rights, as well as obligations, legally.

Referring to the Business Practices Act, Mr. Menninga told CCE members the act defines unfair business practices and for the first time allows "the wrongdoer" to be punished.

"It's an effort to cut down on abuses by an advertiser," he said, in explaining the subjects he will deal with in the first seminar.

Plans call for a lecture formate describing provisions of the consumer protection, landlord and tenant, bankrupcy and small loans acts. A questionnaire and a question and answer period are also planned.

The seminar is the first organized by the ad hoc committee composed of representatives from consumer, senior citizen, labor, business and education groups in Belleville.

Seminars, planned on a monthly basis, include such topics as food buying, housing, credit, and managing, conserving and increasing purchasing power.

Next months Consumer Rights seminar will deal with avenues a consumer can follow to get assistance for redress of problems

Hastings County Bar Association representative lawyer Wilfred Menninga (left) looks over notes for a lecture he will give to the first consumer seminar staged under Committee for Consumer Education (CCE) auspices. Mr. Menninga and CCE chairman Les Backus Monday discussed the Consumer Rights seminar, to be held at Quinte Secondary School Oct. 30.

JIM DWYER

Dwyer Lifts Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos, under fire for bad trades, must have taken heart in Jim Dwyer's performance against his former club Monday night in a National League baseball doubleheader split with St. Louis Cardinals.

Dwyer collected two hits, including a home run, as the Expos dropped the first game 6-4 in 12 innings on St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons's two-run homer. He singled in the second game and scored the winning run after a seventh-inning walk as the Expos took an 8-5 win.

Larry Lintz, dealt by the Expos to St. Louis for Dwyer earlier this year, had a pinc running appearance in the opener before going 0-for-2 with a bases-loaded walk as the starting second baseman in the nightcap.

Dwyer has hit three homers in 54 games since joining the Expos, while Lintz has hit .277 in 25 games with the Cardinals.

Jim Cox drove in three runs for the Expos in the second game. Jim Lyttle contributed a two-run, pinch-hit single and Jose Morales drove in two runs with a ground ball and a single. Gary Carter's hit pushed across the other run.

St. Louis got an RBI single by Ken Reitz and a run-scoring hit by Mike Tyson to complement Simmons's homer, his 18th of the year, and the walk by Lintz.

Expos reliever Fred Scherman evened his record at 4-4, while St. Louis starter Ron Reed fell to 12-13.

Rule Changes Okayed

FAR HILLS, N.J. (AP) — Neither wind nor water nor over-indulgent caddies will stay a rules-minded duffer from the completion of his appointed rounds, says the United States Golf Association

The USGA released Monday a list of international rule changes and amendments recommended at St. Andrews, Scotland, last May at the USGA-Royal and Ancient Golf Club rules conference.

Among the new rules, effective Jan. 1, 1976, is a stipulation that a player's caddie no longer will be allowed "on or close to an extension of the line of putt behind the ball." In, other words, no fair aiming your putt at the crease in your caddie's cardigans—you're on your own.

Players also will no longer be disqualified in stroke play if a ball is lifted, played out from elsewhere and correction is not made. Under the new code, if a ball is moved illegally, a penalty of one stroke is incurred and the ball must be replaced.

The player receives an additional two-stroke penalty if the ball is not replaced and played out from another location.

This rule change also features four new sub-clauses concerning extenuating circumstances. They cover everything from the movement of the ball by an "outside agency," lost balls and balls resting against the flagstick.

As regards the first, neither wind nor water qualify as an outside agency, so if a ball at rest is relocated by either, that's tough luck.

A ball isn't lost until you've spent five fruitless minutes searching for it—plus two other good reasons. If a ball resting against the flagstick gets hustled from the hole as the pole is removed, it gets placed on the lip of the cup without penalty.

Red Sox Top Yanks

Over Shock, Deron Delivers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In his first regular-season game with Boston this year, Deron Johnson proved worthy of the Red Sox' evaluation. The second one, not the first one.

The Red Sox' first assessment of Johnson in October, 1974, sent the 37-year-old veteran packing. He wound up in Chicago. But on Sunday, after they lost star rookie Jim Rice for the rest of the season with a broken hand, the Red Sox welcomed Johnson back.

"I was shocked," said Johnson, who was traded from the White Sox to the Red Sox. "I didn't think I would go somewhere this late in the season."

But Johnson had regained his composure by the time he slipped on a Boston uniform once again. He led the Red Sox to a 6-4 victory Monday night over New York Yankees with three hits, one RBI and one run scored.

The victory widened the Red Sox' lead over idle Baltimore in the American League East to four games and reduced the Red Sox' pennant-clinching number to four. Any combination of Boston victories and Baltimore losses totalling four will insure the Red Sox of their first division title since 1967. Boston had six games remaining and Baltimore has eight left.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland A's failed for another day to clinch their fifth straight Western Division crown, losing to Minnesota Twins 2-1 while second-place Kansas City Royals nipped Texas Rangers 2-1, Cleveland Indians edged Milwaukee Brewers 7-6 and California Angels defeated Chicago White Sox 3-0 in 16 innings.

Boston rookie Fred Lynn gained an immediate appreciation of Johnson.

"No one man has been the key to this club," said Lynn, who collected three hits, drove in two runs, scored two and hit his 46th double, setting a league record for rookies. "This has been a total team effort all the way.

"Tonight, it was Deron Johnson."

Johnson's three hits equalled his entire output with the Red Sox in the final three weeks of last season after Boston had purchased him from Milwaukee.

"It wasn't fair to judge him on what he did for us last year," said Boston manager Darrell Johnson. "He was hurt and he hadn't been playing much."

NEEDS ONE MORE

Oakland needs only a victory or a Kansas City loss to win the West.

Minnesota left-hander Eddie Bane delayed Oakland's division-clinching celebration, scattering seven hits before needing ninth-inning relief help from Bill Campbell and Tom Burgmeier.

Tigers Ready To Deal

DETROIT (AP) — If you think the Detroit Tigers' roster was filled with new faces this year, wait until the 1976 American League baseball season.

Detroit may overhaul its rookie-filled lineup—with different rookies. Although the club started almost from scratch this year, don't be surprised by wholesale changes.

"I think we're now in a lot better position to make deals if anything is available, because we have exposed a lot of our ballplayers," said manager Ralph Houk, whose Tigers are in Baltimore to open a three-game series beginning tonight.

"We didn't have anyone to trade last year," he said. "All of our young players here are tradeable. Nobody is looking for someone 35 and on the downslide."

Houk said he, general manager Jim Campbell and club vice-president Rick Ferrell "have already been discussing players we'd like to have."

"We're trying to get reports on players available. We'll talk to people at the World Series. You start doing that right away."

Houk said he will go to the Series, take a two-week vacation, and then go to Dunedin, Fla., to check on how ace reliever John Hiller is coming along with his injured arm. Hiller will work out with Detroit's Florida Instructional League entry at Dunedin.

What do the Tigers need? Everything, right?

"It's evident that we have to have a power hitter," Houk said. "We have about 100 less runs than anyone else and we've got to have some power. Also, we've got to improve our pitching, but I think we can improve it within our own organization."

Young pitchers Mark Lemongello, Frank MacCormack and Mark Fidrych of the Tigers' Junior World Series-champion Evansville farm club may be on Detroit's roster next year.

"Everybody is talking about those pitchers, everybody," Houk said.

He's also impressed with rookies Ed Glynn and Steve Grilli, brought up from Evansville a week ago.

"You don't like to get too enthusiastic too quick, but he's been impressive," Houk said of Glynn. "And I like the way (Bob) Molinaro swings a bat. He's aggressive."

Outfielder Molinaro, plus infielders Chuck Scrivener and Jerry Manuel, came up with Glynn and Grilli.

Outfielders Ron LeFlore and Leon Roberts, both disappointments this season but still with plenty of potential, may be trade bait. Others include second basemen Gary Sutherland and John Knox and pitchers Joe Coleman, Lerrin LaGrow, Dave Lemanczyk and Tom Walker.

Rookie outfielders Billy Baldwin and Art James might be traded, depending on what happens to LeFlore and Roberts.

Veteran Gates Brown probably made his last appearance at Tiger Stadium on Sunday when he walked as a pinch hitter. One report says Brown, one of the American League's best pinch hitters, will retire at the end of the season to become a Tiger scout.

Ozark Unaware His Phils Dead

Pirates Wrap Up East Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia manager Danny Ozark may not have been the only man in Three Rivers Stadium that didn't know his team was eliminated from the National League East Division baseball race but he was the only one who admitted it.

DANNY OZARK

"We aren't out of it if we win every game and they lose every game," insisted Ozark after Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Phils 11-3. Told that his team was seven games back with just six to play, Ozark said: "That's news to me . . . it's disheartening."

If Ozark wanted more confirmation he could have dropped by the Pirate clubhouse where the champagne was flowing and congratulations being exchanged all around.

"This is a great way to win a championship, beating the team that has been chasing you," said Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh who knows a division title when he wins one.

DANNY MURTAUGH

It was the fifth division crown in the last six years for the Pirates.

Elsewhere in the NL, Houston Astros beat Cincinnati Reds 5-1, San Diego Padres edged Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5 in 11 innings and St. Louis Cardinals and Montreal Expos split a double header, the Cardinals winning the first game 6-4 in 12 innings and the Expos taking the second one 8-5.

Pittsburgh built a 6-3 lead over the Phillies in the first seven innings, then wrapped it up with five runs in the eighth.

Dave Parker and Richie Zisk drove in four runs each, Parker with two singles and his 23rd home run and Zisk with two singles and a double.

Joe Niekro, 6-4, and Paul Siebert limited Cincinnati to four hits and Cesar Cedeno and Cliff Johnson hit home runs for Houston. Cedeno hit a three-run homer, his 13th of the season, in the first and Johnson added a two-run shot in the seventh, his 17th

Hector Torres led off the 11th inning with a home run to give San Diego the victory over Los Angeles, snapping the Padres' six-game losing streak.

Drop Opener

HAMILTON (CP) — Oshawa Tony's pitcher Paul Wannamaker walked pitcher Wally Dick with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth to give Hamilton Waxman Scrappers a 1-0 win and the first game of their Ontario Fastball League final series.

Ted Deruiter scored the winning run following a single. Larry Christie also singled, then Wannamaker intentionally walked Fran Stuart to load the bases, bringing Dick to the plate

Hamilton had just missed an earlier opportunity to score when leadoff batter Ed Neudorf singled and designated runner Gord Fearman was called out at the plate.

Each team connected for seven hits but Oshawa stranded eight base runners to Hamilton's four. Dick had eight strikeouts as did Wannamaker.

Oshawa had a runner on third with one out in the third, and none out in the fourth but couldn't bring them in.

Second game of the series will be Wednesday in Oshawa.

Spoil Dolphins Home Record

2 Injuries Mar Raiders' Win

MIAMI (AP) — Oakland Raiders coach John Madden finally found out what it's like to win a National Football League season opener. But injuries have cooled his excitement over a 31-21 conquest of Miami Dolphins.

JOHN MADDEN

Madden apparently lost defensive tackle Kelvin Korver for the season with knee ligament damage in Monday night's victory, Oakland's first opening win in six years. A team spokesman also said fullback Marv Hubbard was probably lost for three weeks with a shoulder injury.

On the bright side was a defensive effort that thoroughly dominated Miami in the first half and quarterback Ken Stabler's expert dissecting of a Dolphin defence hampered by missing injured veterans Nick Buoniconti, Dick Anderson and Manny Fernandez.

"We got off to a good jump . . then in the second half, it seemed something would always happen to give Miami a little lift," said Madden after breaking Miami's 31-game winning streak at home.

"They proved they're still a fine team," Madden said of the Dolphins, whose offence was without World Football League defectors Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield and Jim Kiick.

The Raiders jumped on top 17-0 on plunges of two and one yards by Pete Banaszak and a 25-yard field goal by George Blanda. Oakland upped the lead to 24-7 on Mark van Eeghen's yard run in the third quarter.

But it took a 102-yard kickoff return and three interceptions, all in the fourth quarter, to kill the Dolphins.

"There wasn't any excuse for the runback," said Dolphins' coach Don Shula of Harold Hart's return which came after Norm Bulaich had ended an 80-yard drive with a yard plunge to cut the lead to 24-14.

"We relaxed when it looked like he was going to down the ball in the end zone and then the lane opened up," said Shula.

Hart explained: "I thought about downing it because I wasn't sure how deep I was in the end zone. But when I saw Jesse Phillips wave me on, I just took off. I knew I had it once I cut toward the sidelines."

Miami cut the lead to 31-21 when Mercury Morris added to his second-quarter touchdown run of four yards with a one-yard plunge. And the Dolphins, with more five minutes to get back in the game, were on Oakland's 38 when Raider Art Thoms blocked and then caught a Bob Griese pass.

Miami cornerback Tim Foley would not admit that injuries and WFL losses had seriously weakened the Dolphins since last December's 28-26 playoff loss to Oakland.

"We could have beaten them with the team we had on the field," said Foley. "We have to get away from these Girl Scout excuses."

NFL Peace? Not Yet

CHICAGO (AP) — A new contract proposal that relaxes the controversial Rozelle Rule and could cost the 26 club owners an estimated $30 million in new money over five years still has not brought about a National Football League labor peace.

The NFL owners made their latest proposal to the players union Monday, but day-long negotiations apparently have failed to resolve the wide differences between the two sides that have been prevalent in talks over the last 20 months.

Negotiations under the supervision of federal mediators continued today.

After the prolonged sessions, Sargent Karch, council executive director, said management had responded to a challenge by union president Kermit Alexander to make a final offer and give it's "best shot."

"We have today given our 'best shot,'" Karch told reporters. "Like other unions, they would like to get the moon, everything they demand. They don't believe we have given them everything we can give. We hope they will accept the package."

Alexander and other union leaders and player representatives present at the meeting declined to comment specifically on the owners' latest proposal, going from the joint session with management into a union meeting that lasted late into the night.

Alexander said the nearly five - hour head-to-head meeting with the owners produced "nothing substantitive, except verbal clarification" on the terms of the proposal.

"We optimistically hope something affirmative will come out of these meetings," he said.

The owners' latest offer came as a result of an agreement reached last Thursday which ended a strike by five clubs and permitted the playing of the opening weekend of the 1975 NFL season.

The owners said the new four-year proposal, retroactive to last year, "is designed to revitalize the sport through renewed player cooperation based on increased economic and general benefits, improved working conditions and player participation with owners in several areas of common interest."

Chief among the roadblocks to reaching a contract agreement has been the Rozelle Rule, Pete Rozelle to make the compensation when a player joins a second team after his option year and the two clubs cannot agree on his worth.

Under the owners' offer, no player with four years experience would be forced to change teams. The proposal also says any player with four or more years experience who signs a contract of three or more years may become a free agent at the end of that contract, without having an option year.

Other points in the proposal would set minimum salaries of $18,000 for veterans with increases to $21,000 in four years, establish a maximum $31,500 for the Super Bowl champion players and considerably increase medical, life insurance and pension benefits.

New Look Esks

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos will have a new look tonight as they face Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Coach Ray Jauch said Monday at least 10 lineup changes have been made, primarily due to the knee surgery performed last week on wingback Don Warrington.

The most visible change—and perhaps the most important—will have defensive end Ron Estay punting. He becomes the fourth Eskimo punter this season, following Garry Lefebvre, John Beaton, and Walt McKee.

Lefebvre, also a flanker, was sidelined with an injury, Beaton was inconsistent and McKee was released Monday in the wholesale player shuffle. Beaton is available to back up Estay if necessary.

Besides Beaton, who has been resting stretched knee lingaments although he remains on the roster, the Eskimos have added import Mike Fink at a cornerback spot, veteran Bayne Norrie as a backup running back and specialty-team player, running back Calvin Harrell, defensive back Dick Dupuis and two-way lineman Willie Postler.

To make room for them, the Eskimos cut defensive back Dave Campbell—for the second time—along with McKee, running back Leroy Moss and cornerback Vince Phason.

Jauch said the Eskimos will be improved from the dismal first-half performance they gave against Ottawa Rough Riders. The team leads the Western Conference by one point over Saskatchewan Roughriders with two games in hand.

The Eskimos lost 38-25 to Ottawa, their 1973 Grey Cup rival. They lost to Montreal last season.

Jauch said he expects Harrell's return to help the running game but did not say whether Tom Wilkinson or Bruce Lemmerman will start at quarterback.

The Eskimos will face a weary team. Montreal, which leads the Eastern Conference, was battered in a 20-17 triumph Saturday over British Columbia Lions in the opener of their annual western swing.

Coach Marv Levy said the game was the hardest-hitting, most physical game we've been involved in this year."

Edmonton's big problem will be to stop fullback Steve Ferrughelli, who described the rally to overcome B.C. as "the most rewarding for me personally" in all his years of football.

"I went into the game with the flu," said Ferrughelli, " . . . I was throwing up in the huddle on that last drive."

New Start Worries Resch

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — There is a frown on the usually-smiling face—the one covered by a mask when Glenn Resch is at work. The miracle man of last year's Stanley Cup playoffs admits he's worried about the start of this National Hockey League season.

"If I have a couple of bad games at home, there's gonna be murmurs," says the generally jovial goaltender of New York Islanders. "They'll say, 'Maybe last year was a fluke.'

"It's unbelievable how constant the pressure is. If I get off to a bad start—I don't care what we did last year—they (the New York management) will be picking up the phone, looking for a deal.

"When people are paying so much for tickets, they want their money's worth. They don't want to wait for me to shape up."

So the heat is on, and the regular season still is two weeks away. Resch insists his club can't be satisfied with its Cinderella performance in the playoffs last season, when the Islanders came back from the brink of playoff elimination against New York Rangers and Pittsburgh Penguins before bowing to the eventual-champion Philadelphia Flyers in the seventh game of the semi-finals.

"It all happened so fast," he recalled, smiling now. "It was so exciting, the work part of the playoffs was removed. The pressure was there, it wasn't fun at times, but usually the excitement over-ran the tension.

"I can still remember that first Ranger game I was in (when he replaced Billy Smith during an overwhelming loss). I've never been more scared in my life," he said.

The fear dissipated as Resch's clutch play won the hearts of New York hockey fans. Sprawling, diving, kicking, lunging, the 27-year-old netminder helped the Islanders back from a three-game deficit against the Penguins—a playoff achievement matched only by the 1940 Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the semi-finals, Resch and his mates nearly turned the trick again. But the Flyers were not to be denied in the seventh game.

"If there was one shot I could do over again in my career, it would be that first shot in the last game at Philadelphia. It's a shot that's gonna be in my mind for the rest of my life," he said.

The shot, just 19 seconds after the opening faceoff, was taken by Flyers' forward Gary Dornhoefer. The resulting goal set the pace for Philadelphia's 4-2 victory.

"The Flyers kind of ended our dream that night, and it's tough to be awakened so abruptly," he said. I don't care if we win 10 Stanley Cups. I don't know that any of them could have been as sweet as that one would have been."

Sport Briefs

SPURS BUY BEAR

DENVER (AP) — Denver Spurs of the World Hockey Association announced Monday they had acquired defenceman Larry Bignell from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League. Bignell, 25, played in 74 games last season, scoring eight times and chalking up 26 assists for the Bears, a farm club of Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League.

PENGUINS DROP FIVE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins sent five players, including National Hockey League veteran forward Pete Laframboise, to their Hershey farm team Monday. Also sent to the American Hockey League game were rookie goaltender Rocky Menard, defenceman Bob Stumpf and forwards Yves Bergeron and Nelson Debenedet.

BID TO BUY RACETRACK

MIAMI (AP) — A New Jersey construction magnate offered approximately $17 million Monday to buy financially troubled Hialeah Racetrack, the Miami Herald reported in its Tuesday editions.

Wester Released

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions announced Monday the release of offensive guard Curtis Wester, a member of the 1974 Canadian Football League all-star team.

Wester, 24, started with the Western Football Conference team for the past two seasons, joining the Lions after his release from Edmonton Eskimos.

In 1974, the six-foot-three former East Texas State player was runner-up to Ed George of Montreal Alouettes as CFL offensive lineman-of-the-year.

He was also a WFC all-star last season.

Lions head coach Cal Murphy does not have any offensive linemen in camp on five-day trials, but he has several defensive linemen who can play offence.

Meanwhile, Lions also announced two more National Football League cuts have signed for five-day trials. They are David Boone, 23, a 245-pound defensive lineman from Minnesota Vikings and Merced Solis, 22, a tight end cut by Kansas City Chiefs.

Time to Pay for Brawls

NHL Fines Total $9,050

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League announced Monday that fines totalling $9,050 have been assessed to players of four NHL teams as a result of bench-clearing brawls Sunday night in pre-season play.

In Philadelphia, referee Bruce Hood assessed 332 minutes in penalties, including 15 game misconducts before calling the game at 18:15 of the third period.

MICHEL LAROCQUE

The game misconducts carry an automatic $100 fine and 31 players from each team were also assessed $100 fines for leaving their respective benches to join the melee. Goaltenders Michel Larocque of Montreal and Wayne Stephensen of the Flyers were slapped with $100 fines for leaving their goal creasts and there was also a $50 fine assessed for a misconduct.

Meanwhile, referee Andy van Hellemond called 216 minutes in penalties in a game at Chicago between the Black Hawks and the Bruins. Van Hellemond cleared the ice late in the second period after a 20-minute bench-clearing brawl.

A total of nine game misconducts were assessed in the game, each carrying automatic $100 fines. Thirty-one players left the benches to join the fight and were slapped with $100 fines and goaltenders Gilles Gilbert of Boston and Chicago's Tony Esposito were assessed $100 fines for leaving their creases.

NHL president Clarence Campbell is conducting further inquiries into both incidents and further disciplinary action may be taken.

New Spirit in Camp

Togetherness for Leafs?

LANNY McDONALD

TORONTsO (CP) — Some Toronto Maple Leafs fans may prefer to withhold judgment until after the National Hockey League season starts.

But for those who can't wait to get their hopes up, the Leafs are providing plenty of encouragement.

Ever since training camp opened a week ago, the word from every player and club official interviewed has been the same—the club has a new spirit and they call it togetherness.

"We're working to help each other out," says right-winger Lanny McDonald, trying to describe the new atmosphere around the Leafs camp.

"I don't know what it was in the past. We were always trying to win, but it seemed that when things went wrong, they really went wrong. There's a different feeling here.

"Even Red (coach Red Kelly) is trying hard like the rest of us to change. I don't know what to make of it. Maybe there are a few jobs open and everyone's trying harder. I just don't know."

The Leafs, with a long tradition of Stanley Cup triumphs, haven't won the Cup since 1967. Since then, they missed the playoffs three times and have never made it past the quarter-finals.

In the early 1960s when the Leafs defence was anchored by rugged individuals such as Bob Baun and Tim Horton, they were a respected club. But their critics have booed them in recent years for their tendency to be pushed around by other clubs.

The Leafs' new spirit could mean that will change. In their first pre-season game against Atlanta Flames last Friday, several Leafs showed a willingness for hard hitting.

"There's good togetherness," said Kelly. "In that game, if any skirmishes broke out in the corners, the whole team was there. We're finally backing one another up and that's a good sign."

"More people are chipping in and the rough going isn't being left to a couple of guys," said McDonald.

McDonald came to the Leafs as a highly-touted junior graduate but has had what he calls "just average" seasons in his first two years in Toronto. Now, he hopes to improve his record.

Joining McDonald on right wing will be Inge Hammarstrom, Ron Ellis and Blaine Stoughton. On the left are Errol Thompson, Greg Hubick, Dave Williams and rookie Pat Boutette.

Kelly says he'll start the season with only six defencemen and he has to choose from among Borje Salming, Ian Turnbull, Jim McKenny, Rod Seiling, Dave Dunn, Brian Glennie, Claire Alexander and Bob Neely.

Still fighting for the goaltending job are Doug Favell, Gord McRae and former Montreal Canadien Wayne Thomas.

With the departure of veteran centre Dave Keon and popular Eddie Shack, Ellis is the only member of the 1967 Stanley Cup team still in a Leafs uniform.

Robeson Just Close To the Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Robeson, whose communist leanings and support of controversial and unpopular causes silenced the cheers he earned on the football field and concert stage, is closer than ever to college football's Hall of Fame—but probably not close enough.

Calling the 77-year-old former concert singer "one of the heroic figures of our culture," Dr. Edward Bloustein, president of Rutgers University, appealed Monday to the National Football Foundation to induct the former Rutgers star and, the university says, the only two-time all-American not in the hall of fame.

But James McDowell, executive director of the Hall of Fame, said the National Football Foundation "honors men who honor the game. You have to demonstrate good citizenship, love of community, love of country. It's a question of what you give back to the game, and I don't think Paul Robeson has helped his cause by being in seclusion all these years. Citizenship is very important. If we're just going to pick all the all-Americans every year there's no sense to having a hall of fame."

Robeson, who was named to the all-American team by Walter Camp in 1917 and 1918 and was only the third black athlete to be selected, lives in Philadelphia. He makes no public appearances because of fragile health but Bloustein said Robeson "has told me, through his son, there is no single honor he misses more than membership in the hall of fame."

Olympics Will Appeal Suspension of Players

Belleville Olympics are in trouble.

But officials of the Premier Soccer League club which also plays in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association (BQSA) plan to take steps to remedy the situation, if that is possible.

Olympics expect to receive a registered letter from the BQSA informing the Belleville team that player-coach John O'Neill and standout defender Charlie Nestorovski have been suspended for the balance of the season.

Once official notification has been received, Olympics will appeal their case to the Ontario Soccer Association (OSA).

Olympics have been charged with using Nestorovski in a Premier League game in Kingston, September 7. The player was under suspension until September 12.

Coach O'Neill has been judged guilty for sending the player into that September 7 match.

According to a spokesman for Olympics, Nesterovski's name is not on the September 7 game report.

Apparently BQSA officials were informed by members of another team that Nestorovski did play on the day in question.

The suspensions were handed down at a weekend meeting. Olympics are steaming because they say they were not informed of the meeting and were not allowed to state their case.

Monday night, members of the team executive and players met to deliberate the club's future in the light of the impending loss of O'neill and Nestorovski. It was decided to carry on and live up to commitments in the Premier League and BQSA regardless of the outcome of the appeal to the OSA.

Should the suspensions stand, the two Olympics' stars will be out of all soccer for the remainder of the 1975 season.

Nestorovski is out of action for another reason. He's hobbling on an injured ankle after suffering a severe sprain during Sunday's 5-3 Premier League win over Kingston Italo-Canadians.

Olympics feel the squeeze, administered by the BQSA, is on.

BQSA officials are just as certain the Belleville team is in the wrong.

Whether the OSA ruling will relieve the pressure, remains to be seen.

SLICES — Bay of Quinte Soccer Association teams have again run up against an old bugaboo which sets in every year at this time.

Member teams which use students invariably lose these players once school opens in September and the Bay of Quinte High School Soccer League swings into action.

An Ontario Federation of Secondary Schools Athletic Association ruling forbids players to participate in leagues outside the school program.

Belleville Parsons have been forced to drop out of BQSA Cup play because of the loss of several players who are active in the high school league.

Trenton Citizens Finance, also hit by the loss of players for the same reason, will continue to play in spite of the depleted roster.

BQSA president Peter Crowle points out that there is no conflict between Cup games and high school contests.

"If there were a conflict with games from the high school league coinciding with those of the BQSA Cup competitions, we could understand this OFSSAA ruling but there is no such clash. BQSA teams play on the weekends," says Crowle.

It will be unfortunate if, for their own protection, teams operating in the senior league turn their backs on the student players in future years.

In order to protect themselves from the annual roster depletions, the BQSA clubs may well have to do just that.

It certainly does not make sense for senior coaches to keep these young players in competition during the summer months, only to lose them in the fall when Cup play is under way.

After a lengthy wait, Belleville's Elliott Motors Tykes now know they'll face Brampton in the Ontario Baseball Association A final.

The best of three Ontario final will open Saturday at Parkdale at 1 p.m. Should the Belleville team win the toss for the odd game, Saturday's action will take the form of a doubleheader.

Rick Sullivan (left), secretary-treasurer of the Belleville Industrial Softball League, and Norm Tellock, past-president, present Norm Lockhart (centre) with the league's Most Valuable Player Award. Lockhart, a member of the Post Office club, not only had one of the lowest earned run averages of any pitcher in the league and was among the top strikeout artists, he also hit well over .300. The big hurler received the award Saturday night at the

Woodcock Fires Winner

Trenton Citizens Finance and Warkworth Institution opened play in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association Trenton Challenge Cup series on the weekend. And for a time, it appeared the teams were bent on establishing a record for duration of a tie game.

Citizens finally won the extra-time marathon on penalty shots after the two teams had battled through 90 minutes plus two 10-minute sessions without being able to decide the victor.

And the penalty shot competition was not easily decided, either. It wasn't until the third series of five shots each that the Trenton team emerged with a 3-2 edge.

Citizens turned to their defence for the tries from the penalty spot. And they were not disappointed. Goalie Henry Sonneveld and fullbacks Harry Lamers and Dennis Woodcock found the mark. Woodcock's goal was the winner.

Challenge Cup play continues, Saturday with Belleville Olympics meeting Quinte Hellenic at Sir James Whitney School while Canadian Forces Base Trenton is at Cobourg.

Top scorer over the 16-game BQSA regular season was Olympics' Zdravko Fundic with 25 goals. In second place was Cobourg Tony's John Van Balen (tops in 1974 with 28 goals) at the 14-goal mark and third, Quinte Italo-Canadians' Nick Del Grosso with 10.

Gene Francis, representing Black Diamond and Gary Edgar (right) coach of UIC, display a pennant trophy and individual awards. Francis' team won the Belleville Industrial Softball League (BISL) East Division pennant and went on to capture the city championship. Edgar's club is the West Division title holder. Presentations were made at Saturday's BISL Awards Night.

RICE OUT FOR SEASON

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Rice, Boston Red Sox rookie outfielder, will be out for the rest of the American League baseball season with his broken left hand but does not need surgery. Rice was injured Sunday by a pitch leading off the second inning in Detroit where the Red Sox beat the Tigers 6-5. The hand was placed in a cast.

Saturday night was one of sharing at the Belleville Industrial Softball League's banquet. Sonny Holoway (left), from Mead Johnson, and Ken Kerik, from Constellation, accepted duo awards as the league's Most Valuable Pitcher from Moe Huddleston. Ron Mitchell (right), from Constellation, and Al Colden, from Brooke Bond, were presented with the league's Most Gentlemanly Player awards by Al Kelleher.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Junior Football

TD Is Erased; Saints Edged

While officials are hardly the most appreciated people at the best of times, Monday night at Moira Secondary they were the best liked, at the same instance most disliked — depending on your loyalties.

Quinte Secondary School Junior Saints, behind 14-13 to the Trojans, took possession of the ball with just enough time for one play.

The Saints went with their best bet, a hand-off to star running back Ken Revoy. With time run out, Revoy completed a 30-yard gallop over the Trojan line.

However, the referee ruled Revoy had stepped out of bounds at the 15-yard line. End result — the play was called back and Quinte lost the contest by one point

The Trojans had held the lead all the way through the game. They scored in the first quarter when quarterback Dave Bennett swept around the end from eight yards out. Bennett then rolled out and tossed a short five-yarder to Jeff Runciman in the end zone for a two point conversion and an 8-0 lead.

Quinte came back in the second period when Paul Bononopolous drove 24 yards for a major. The young back then booted a single point from the 20.

The half ended 8-7. That's the way things remained as the two teams see-sawed through the third quarter. In the fourth, Bennett crossed on a quarterback sneak on a goal line play. The two-point pass conversion attempt was dropped in the end zone.

The Saints stormed back with 1:20 to go and Rob Goodfellow crossed the line on a quarterback sneak. Quinte went for two points, but were foiled on the run at the three yard line.

Then came the Trojan turnover at their own 30 and Revoy's major, which was called back.

In today's games, the junior Red Devils are at Centennial while the senior Chargers travel to Moira.

Neill Has Plans For Used Gear

It costs a small fortune to put your kid on skates these days. And if that isn't enough, to let him or her play hockey you have to cut off your right arm, three toes and your index finger from your left hand and sell them so you can afford all the equipment. Then there's no guarantee you'll be able to afford all the ice time.

There may be relief in sight. Tom Neill, former president of Belleville Minor Hockey Association and Belleville Minor Sports Association, has come up with a way to help out those who need it — equipment wise anyway.

Neill has proposed an equipment bazaar, of sorts. He will go around and pick up skates, shoulder pads, pants, gloves, or any other gear that families can no longer use and distribute it to those who can't afford new equipment.

Said Neill. "I have a couple of boys who no longer play. They're grown up and don't live at home anymore. There must be hundreds of families in the same situation."

The equipment the Neill boys used to wear is what Tom plans to start his redistribution program with.

If families have things that are no longer of use or families are looking for gear, but really don't want to pay the high prices in today's retail market, phone Tom Neill at 968-7571 after 6 p.m. and he'll give you a hand. He may even give you back your right arm!

WHALERS SIGN TWO

HARTFORD (AP) — Brothers Doug and Gordon Roberts have signed with New England Whalers, a spokesman for the World Hockey Association team said Monday. Gordie was a defenceman for Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League last season while Doug was with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League last season.

CAR LEAVES ROAD

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Defenceman Dennis Owchar of Pittsburgh Penguins escaped injury Sunday night when his car ran off a road near the National Hockey League team's training camp in suburban Rostraver Township. Police said a tire blew on Owchar's car about a half mile from the team hotel and the car was thrown into a guard rail, causing about $1,000 damage.

Lancers Defeat Mustangs 19-6

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A touchdown by Don Hollerhead on a 45-yard dash in the fourth quarter led University of Windsor Lancers to a 19-6 victory over University of Western Ontario Mustangs in their Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Football Conference game Monday.

Windsor and Western had been tied 3-3 at halftime.

Fullback Gary McCann also scored a touchdown for Windsor, capping a 64-yard drive. Dave Pegg kicked a 36-yard field goal and provided two converts.

Windsor's other points came from a safety touch in the fourth quarter.

Punter Frank McKay got a single for Western in the first quarter and Mike Fess kicked a 18-yard field goal in the third quarter. A safety touch in the first quarter provided the other points for the Mustangs.

Dave Pickett of the Lancers completed 16 passes in 23 attempts for a total of 180 yards in Windsor's net gain of 214 yards. Jamie Bone was successful on 12 passes in 27 attempts for Western, with 155 yards in the air and 139 on the ground.

The game, originally scheduled for Saturday, was shifted to Monday in the wake of a controversy over Pickett's eligibility. The Lancers were suspended by the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union (CIAU) after Pickett played in their season-opener against Western on Sept. 13.

After a Sunday meeting, the CIAU withdrew an earlier ruling that any team that played the Lancers would also be suspended.

The status of Pickett and the Lancers remains unresolved. He is ineligible to play under CIAU rules, but meets OUAA eligibility requirements.

10,000 Allotted Canadians

Mail Plan for Tickets

MONTREAL (CP) — The Olympic Games organizing committee Monday unveiled a national mail plan to distribute 10,000 tickets allotted Canadians for each of the opening and closing ceremonies of the 1976 Summer Games.

A draw will be made in mid-November from receipts of special postcards to be available at 8,500 postal outlets across the country starting Oct. 1. Current plans are for six million cards, but more will be printed if that number is insufficient for the demand.

The cards must be mailed, using an Olympic issue stamp bearing a two-cent surcharge over the regular eight-cent cost, by Oct. 31.

The cards will be gathered in the four main postal regions—Quebec, Ontario, the Atlantic region and the Western provinces. The number received from each region will determine the percentage of tickets that residents of each area will receive.

There are five price categories for the 10,000 tickets available for each ceremony, but a winner will have no control over the price of the ticket which he is eligible to purchase.

For each ceremony, there will be 1,200 tickets costing $40 each, 3,000 at $32, 7,000 at $24, 3,400 at $16 and 5,400 standing-room tickets at $8 each.

If some winners do not wish to claim their tickets, they will be placed in a reserve bank and sold through a central box office starting next March.

WIN TRIPS TO WORLD

TORONTO (CP) — Dan Russo of London, Ont., and Cathy Townsend of Montreal won trips Sunday to the world 10-pin bowling chamionships at Manila Nov. 25-30 by taking the Canadian titles here. Russo scored 4,723 in 21 games to beat out Earl Storey of Winnipeg, who had 4,537, and Charles Mile of Toronto, who has 4,532. Cathy Townsend finished with 4,539 and led Lorne Pollock of Victoria, who had 4,473, and Jeanne Marten of Barrie, Ont., whose score was 4,451.

YARBOROUGH NIPPED

NORTH WILKESBORO, N. C. (AP) — Richard Petty sprinted across the finish line 2.4 seconds ahead of Cale Yarborough to win the Wilkes 400 auto stock car race Sunday in a seesaw battle that saw the two drivers trade the lead seven times. It was the 11th trip to victory lane for Petty's Dodge this season and the 175th triumph of his career. Chevrolet driver Darrell Waltrip finished in third place, four laps off the pace.

8 Kickers Doing Their Share

TORONTO (CP) — Figures flow freely when placekickers in the Canadian Football League are discussed.

Statistics released by the league Monday show four of five spots in each conference's scoring race occupied by field-goal and punt specialists.

Together, the eight kickers have booted a total of 130 converts, 127 field goals and 35 singles for 546 points.

In 43 games this season, the league's nine teams have scored 1,863 points, meaning the eight have accounted for nearly 30 per cent of all points scored thus far.

Leading the Eastern Conference scoring is Zenon Andrusyshyn, the Toronto Argonauts placekicker who has 11 converts, 22 field goals and eight singles for 85 points. He is followed by Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders with 79 points, and Don Sweet of Montreal Alouettes with 68.

Running back Art Green of the Rough Riders is the only non-kicker to make the top five in East. His nine touchdowns give him 54 points and a two-point edge over Ian Sunter of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

In the West, Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos has 20 field goals, 22 converts and seven singles for 89 points. Cyril McFall of Calgary Stampeders is second with 73 points and Jack Abendschan holds down third place with 54 points.

Running back George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders has eight touchdowns for 48 points and leads Bernard Ruoff of Winnipeg Blue Bombers by two points.

Toros Shade Swedes

UMEA, Sweden (AP) — Paul Henderson and Richard Farda scored third-period goals Monday night to lead Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association to a 3-2 win over Bjoerkloeven, a Swedish first division team.

It was the second game for the touring WHA club, beaten 6-0 in its first match last week. Farda's game-winning goal came with just 1:44 to play while the Toros were killing a penalty.

Mike Amodeo scored the other Toro's goal in the first period.

BIRTHS

GREGORY — Don and Judy (nee Carlisle) are pleased to announce the safe arrival of Stephanie Dawn on Saturday, September 20th, 1975 at the Belleville General Hospital. A sister for Michelle.

IN MEMORIAM

HICK — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Eva Mae Hick, who was called away Sept. 23, 1970.

We sit and dream while the fire burns low,
And night creeps over the land,
Hearing a voice of long ago,
Clasping a steadfast hand.
It may be a day, it may be a year,
Our lives may be bitter or sweet,
But a day a far or a day a near,
We know our loved one we'll meet.

—Sadly missed by husband and family.

WALLBRIDGE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Walter T. Wallbridge who passed away September 23, 1973.

Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best,
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.

—Missed by wife Marjorie, sons Robert and Edward, daughter Marilyn, daughters-in-law, son-in-law and grandchildren.

MORRIS, Sandy A. — In fond and loving memory of a dear friend who passed away September 23rd, 1974.

We cannot say and will not say that he is dead,
He is just away.

—Lloyd and Jean Woodcock and Phyllis Lucas.

MORRIS — In loving memory of a dear brother, Sandy who passed away Sept. 23, 1974.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true,
There's not a day, dear father,
We do not think of you.

—Never forgotten by mother and dad, brothers and sisters.

CARDS OF THANKS

Ronald MacInnis deeply thanks his friends, neighbors and relatives for the prayers, cards, flowers and donations to various charities in remembrance of his wife Margaret. Special thanks also to Dr. Russell Scott, Dr. Keubler, Dr. Grant, nurses in Intensive Care and on 7th level and to the Trent Centennial Trailer Club. Also thank you to Canon Wright and Rev. Uttley and the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, Sept. 24

Aries (March 21-April 19) Friends will find you fun to be around today because of your optimistic, enthusiastic attitude. However, you're also a shade too extravagant.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You'll be more successful in dealings with businessmen today than you will with those for whom you have a sincere affection.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) If there's a favor you need of a friend it will be granted if you lay all your cards on the table. Don't try to disguise your motives.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll be successful today in non-financial situations. Transactions involving money won't work as well.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) If your ambitions are up to par this will be a very rewarding day. You could be tempted to postpone things unwisely.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your energies are likely to be misdirected early in the day on something frivolous, but by afternoon you'll make up for lost time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This should be a lucky day for you in situations where you share an interest. Keep mum about what occurs.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be a trifle slow arriving at an important decision, but once you're satisfied you have the answer you'll act boldly and wisely.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Lady Luck will give you an assist today, but the first moves will be up to you. If you don't try, she won't either.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're extremely creative in projects of a domestic nature. Put your talents to work to beautify your living space.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be fortunate in getting terms if you press for finalization of an issue that's been hanging fire.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Before the day is out you will be pleased by something that will happen. It will benefit you materially.

Second Job Outlawed

BRUSSELS, Belgium (CP) — Moonlighting, the taking of a second job, now is a criminal offence in Belgium. The penalties of one year in jail or a fine are part of a campaign against an unemployment rate of six per cent—the highest since the Second World War.

Relics of Past Being Sought

HALIFAX (CP) — If you have a hitching post or a grist mill lying about somewhere and you really don't need it, there is someone who would appreciate hearing from you

Historic Properties Ltd. in Halifax is seeking a variety of such items to complete its restoration of a historic project on the Halifax waterfront.

They are also seeking nautical and maritime artifacts to decorate courtyards dating from the early 1800s.

Greg Lomas a spokesman for the project, says the producers "might spend years looking for these items without success and we are asking for people to provide information or even outright donations."

The list of needed items is not confined to the grist mills and hitching posts The project also needs benches, handcrafts, horse-drawn carts lamp standards, wall-mounted lamps, wrought-iron fencing and gates, lanterns, old barrels, crates, millstones, ox yokes, dories and cobblestones.

Grumblings Mark Airport Opening

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP)—The airport which gobbled up a record 88,000 acres of land will be opened by Prime Minister Trudeau Oct. 4.

Planes, however, will not officially use Mirabel International Airport until Oct. 26.

Behind all the fanfare which will mark those two historic dates will be a lot of grumbling.

Such mutterings of discontent began even before 1969 when the project was first announced.

Politicians of a non-Liberal persuasion, airlines and the 8,000 people living near the airport site 35 miles northwest of Montreal, all have unkind words for Mirabel.

Across Quebec, Mirabel has joined the ranks of the James Bay hydroelectric power project and the 1976 Olympic Games as the targets of journalistic, political and academic barbs.

Back in the 1960s when the federal government said Montreal needed a second airport to handle the increasing numbers of international passengers, the most vocal dissent came from the then Quebec premier, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, and his Union Nationale government.

Mr. Bertrand's main beef was that the airport should be situated east instead of northwest of Montreal. That criticism was forgotten when the Liberals came to power in Quebec City.

Suddenly the site became acceptable to the national assembly but not to the 8,000 people living on the land expropriated by the federal government. These people feared dire consequences to their agrarian life.

Although 88,000 acres was expropriated, only 17,000 acres will be needed for the airport if it is expanded to the maximum dimensions planned, Benoit Baribeau, general manager of the project office, said in an interview.

This acreage makes Mirabel the world's largest site for an airport.

Phase I of the airport, which is what will greet travellers Oct. 26, utilizes about 5,200 acres. It has not yet been decided when the second and third phases will be constructed.

Mr. Baribeau said it was necessary to expropriate 88,000 acres of land to protect the area adjoining the airport from unscrupulous speculators and to create a noise buffer.

Some of the unused land will be retained for agricultural purposes or become available for industrial development under the scrutiny of the government.

Many of the nearby towns—Lachute, St. Eustache, Ste. Therese and St. Jerome—are expected to double their populations in the next few decades because of the Mirabel development.

So far, the federal government has spent about $400 million on the airport and the surrounding land. The provincial government has spent another $150 million on roads.

Local people who objected to this massive expropriation and development often were joined by politicians.

Robert Lussier of the Parti Quebecois executive council said the Quebec government should take the federal government to court for the return of 60,000 acres.

Ottawa has "uselsssly" taken away farms, houses and land used by 8,000 people, including 3,126 property owners, at a "ridiculous price," he said.

Mr. Lussier said the federal government paid an average $200 an acre, one-tenth the price paid residents of the 19,000-acre Pickering airport site near Toronto.

Mr. Lussier's sentiments have been echoed by both Progressive Conservative and Social Credit members of Parliament.

Federal transport officials have said the average amount paid expropriated property owners was $1,300 an acre and that $200 an acre was only the base offer.

About 200 property owners still are involved in legal battles for money.

Of the 3,126 properties expropriated, 1,300 were homes. There were also 820 farms, 826 vacant properties, 130 commercial lots and 30 properties oned by government or church bodies, said Miss Michele Gay, a project information officer.

Only 157 property owners had to be reloroted immediately, she said. When spouses and children are considered, 700 people were forced to relocate.

The remaining 80 per cent of affected residents live in their expropriated homes or farms and have 10-year renewable leases with the federal government. The leasing fees are only nominal, Miss Gay said.

Opposition by the property owners has been extremely vocal. Several demonstrations in the last few years have been staged at the airport site and on Parliament Hill.

On some occasions, these demonstrators were joined by owners of property expropriated at the Pickering site.

Most airlines have made it known thot Mirabel is not entirely to their liking and some have been vocal about it.

Several, including CP Air, Air France and KLM, have said they will not move their facilities to the new airport when it opens unless "certain tenant improvements" are made.

B. W. Torell of Air Canada wrote to Mr. Baribeau on behalf of the Internotional Air Transport Association consultative committee. His letter said the airlines might not be able to make the move from the present Dorval airport by opening day because of construction delays in essential airline facilities at the new airport.

The airlines noted by example that computer hookups with reservation banks as well as general communications equipment had yet to be installed.

Mr. Baribeau commented that the airport would open on schedule even if the airlines were not using it.

Moving to Mirabel from Dorval entails undesirable expenses for most major international airlines. Such expenses occur amid embarrassing deficits recorded last year.

Canadian airlines such as Air Canada and CP Air, which are both domestic and overseas carriers, must maintain ticket counters, aircraft maintenance and cargo-handling operation at both airports.

Opening lead—7 ♣

South was really interested in a grand slam after his partner's opening heart bid and spade raise, but he gave up that idea when North bid three hearts over three diamonds. He wanted less heart strength and more spade strength in dummy.

West opened the seven of clubs and dummy's 10 won the first trick. A trump to the ace collected West's nine spot and South paused a long time to consider his next play. If that nine of spades was a singleton the only winning play would be to lead a low spade to dummy's 10.

South decided against this play because if trumps did break 4-1 there would be a lot of problems in the play in any event. In fact against a 3-2 break there would be potential trouble if the winner of the second trump led the suit back.

After all this consideration, South played his king of spades. When both opponents followed he claimed the balance, explaining that he would never lead a trump and that whoever held the queen could take a trick with it when he chose.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know what the rule of the ace and the king was.

It was discovered by Oswald Jacoby in 1934 and first appeared in the 1935 book, "The Four Aces System of Bidding". Specifically, in a situation where you were going to game you should consider inviting a slam with a king extra, definitely invite a slam with an ace extra and bid a slam with an ace and king extra. We will discuss this rule and its modern implications in next week's articles.

Group Plans Boycott

OTTAWA (CP) — A Montreal consumer protection group has called for a boycott of new and used cars made by Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd.

The association has obtained internal company documents showing the U.S. parent, Ford Motor Co., concedes there is premature rusting on 1969-73 models and the association says it believes the problem continued in 1974 models.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA) wants the company to reopen an earlier program under which about 8,000 Ford owners received free or partly-paid repairs for rusting.

Phillip Edmonston, APA president, said his organization will have the support of Ralph Nader's Washington-based Centre for Automotive Safety in its call for a boycott of Ford products.

Mr. Edmonston said the APA has received hundreds of consumer complaints "concerning premature rusting perforations on all Ford models manufactured between 1969-74."

Thatcher Arrives

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Thatcher, leader of Britain's Opposition Conservative Party, arrived in Ottawa at 8 p.m. EDT Monday. Mrs. Thatcher and her husband, Denis, were met at the airport by British High Commissioner Sir John Johnson and the embassy's first secretary, J. J. Taylor

Seaway Closes

OTTAWA (CP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway shipping season will be closed by Dec. 30, the seaway authority said Monday. Navigation in the Montreal-Lake Ontario section will be shut down Dec. 18 and the Welland Canal Dec. 30.

Sales Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Further United States grain sales to Poland have been suspended until a new long-term agreement can be worked out with the Soviet Union, informed sources said Monday. A trade source indicated that other Eastern European countries, including East Germany, also may be involved in the new embargo.

Licences Renewed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announced Monday it has renewed Ontario cable television licences until March 31, 1980 for Maclean-Hunter Cable TV Ltd., which serves London, Lambeth, Midland and Penetanguishene.

Season Shortened

TORONTO (CP) — A shorter deer-hunting season will be put into effect this fall in the Algonquin districts of Parry Sound, Bracebridge, Minden, Bancroft and Pembroke to allow the level of deer herds to increase, the ministry of natural resources announced Monday. The season will run Nov. 3-8 in Renfrew County. The municipality of Muskoka and the Townships of Cowper, Foley, Conger, and Humphrey in the Parry Sound district will be open Nov. 3-5. The remainder of the Algonquin region the season will run Nov. 3-15.

Return to Work

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) — Employees at the Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. plant have returned to work after a 42-day strike. The 230 tradesmen, represented by the Ottawa Atomic Workers' Union, agreed Thursday to a contract that provides an increase in wages to $7.27 from $5.70 for the highest-paid group and to $4.73 from $3.58 for the lowest-paid.

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko will visit Ottawa Thursday and Friday, the external affairs department announced Monday.

Discrimination Exists

TORONTO (CP) — A study prepared for the Ontario Human Rights Commission says black persons involved in the study agreed that discrimination exists in Metropolitan Toronto.

Discrimination is most common in housing and employment but is also found in health services, the police, courts, social agencies, the media, education establishments and in immigration and Canada Manpower procedures, the study says.

Vandalism Rises

TORONTO (CP) — Vandalism and school break-ins cost the Toronto board of education more than $300,000 in the first six months of 1975, a report to the board's business committee says.

CSAO May Get Collective Bargaining

OTTAWA (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) has a good chance of attaining full collective bargaining rights now that the province has a minority government, Charles Darrow, association president, said during a weekend speech.

The results left the Progressive Conservative government with 51 seats and the second-place New Democratic Party with 38 seats out of 125. Mr. Darrow said the NDP is committed to allowing the provincial government employees the right to strike.

Under provincial law, the 60,000 CSAO members are forbidden to strike. The ultimate technique for contract dispute resolution is compulsory arbitration. The CSAO had urged election of a government that would give them full collective bargaining rights.

Province to Spend Funds on Rental Units

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial housing ministers generally agreed Monday to spend most of the remaining $300 million in federal housing money available to the provinces this year on low-income rental construction, Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said Monday.

Mr. Danson said after a one-day meeting with the provincial ministers that the provinces will try to submit their remaining housing proposals within a few weeks so that all this money can be committed before the end of the year. This might mean additional housing starts by the end of the year.

More than half the provinces also supported plans for a national home warranty proyram to protect consumers from defects and other problems with new homes, the minister said. He indicated a home warranty plan might be in effect early in the new year.

Provincial ministers pressed Mr. Danson to take a vriety of steps to deal with rising mortgage rates and a slow construction rate, particularly in rental units.

Mr. Danson said the provincial views confirmed his own thoughts and would be helpful to him and the new finance minister in taking steps to deal with housing.

While many provincial housing ministers are under strong political pressure to introduce rent controls, most ministers at the meeting said they felt controls were not the answer to the rental housing squeeze, Mr. Danson said.

Donald Irvine, Ontario housing minister, said in an interview that he asked that the federal cabinet spell out clearly what it intends to do about inflation to relieve uncertainty in the minds of builders and developers.

Ottawa May Intervene In Language Act Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government may still take an active part in constitutional challenges to Quebec's Official Language Act, a justice department source indicated Monday.

The comment came after Treasury Board President Jean Chretien reiterated during the weekend Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that Ottawa will not become involved because the language act is within the province's jurisdiction.

However, the justice department is studying the case being made by school boards in Montreal. A department lawyer said that federal involvement is possible where immigrants are affected by the controversial Quebec law.

The Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards announced early this month that it would challenge English proficiency tests used under the act to regulate admissions of children into English-language schools.

Hundreds of Italian immigrants in Montreal kept their children home when the children were refused admission to English-language schools after taking the language tests under the act.

Heating Gas Jumps 52 Per Cent Nov. 1

EDMONTON (CP) — The federal and Alberta governments reaffirmed Tuesday an agreement to increase natural gas prices in eastern Canada by 52 per cent effective Nov. 1.

Federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald and his Alberta counterpart, Don Getty, met for three hours Tuesday to hammer out the mechanics of bow to implement the new prices, first announced in last June's federal budget.

Mr. Macdonald said following the meeting that the governments are taking action to head off an Alberta arbitration board award that would have boosted prices in the huge eastern market by 85 per cent on Nov. 1.

Under the new arrangement, to be implemented under a combination of federal and provincial legislation, gas prices will be set at $1.25 a thousand cubic feet wholesale in Toronto. The price paid to producers at the wellhead would amount to that price less the cost of transportation from the west, currently 37 cents.

It would add about $65 to the annual fuel bill for an average home-owner, who last year spent about $264.

The wholesale price to distributing utilities between Alberta and Toronto would depend on the amount of transportation charges which vary with the distance travelled.

Federal officials said they expect sharp reaction to the price increases from the Ontario government, which moved earlier this year to temporarily block a five-cent-a-gallon price increase in gasoline and heating fuel prices.

These increases, resulting from a July 1 increase to $8 from $6.50 in the price for a barrel of crude oil, have been delayed until at least mid-November in Ontario by a prize freeze. Ontario now has a commission inquiring into oil and gasoline prices.

Alberta and Ottawa reached an understanding last June to set the $1.25 Toronto natural gas price, but ran into problems over an earlier award by a provincial arbitration board.

The board, an independent provincial agency, ruled in May during a dispute between two companies over gas costs that the wellhead price should go to $1.15 a thousand cubic feet Nov. 1.

Portugal's 250,000 Steelworkers Strike

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's 250,000 steelworkers claimed almost total support today for a countrywide one-hour strike to back a new pay deal.

A spokesman for the Lisbon district of the union said most steelworkers, except those in a few small firms, took part in today's work stoppage—the first industrial challenge to the new government.

The Communist-backed steelworkers say their employers are trying to persuade the new government to go back on a pay deal decreed by the former administration of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves.

The new labor minister, Capt. Tomas Rosa, told reporters Tuesday the steelworkers' case was just and he was going to try to solve it.

Mario Soares, whose Socialist party has asked workers to ignore the strike call, said Tuesday that Portugal's foreign currency reserves have dried up and the country will have to use its gold holdings to survive the months ahead.

The new cabinet met for the first time Tuesday and declared itself free to revoke the decisions taken by the preceding government of the eclipsed pro-Communist premier, Gen. Vasco Goncalves.

The decision will apply only to measures not yet ratified by President Francisco da Costa Gomes, but marks a victory for the Socialists and their pro-Western allies, who were excluded from the previous administration.

Hearst Claims She's Insane

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, who once derided speculation she was brainwashed, now swears that she lied under duress when she told of her rebirth as the revolutionary "Tania" in the terrorist Symbionese Libertion Army (SLA) band.

Miss Hearst's written testimony, which contradicts many of her tape-recorded pronouncements from the underground, likely will be disputed in court.

Miss Hearst, 21, says in an affidavit she was driven to insanity by her SLA kidnappers. She says they tortured her physically and mentally. She says she was blindfolded, bound and locked in a closet for weeks while constantly threatened with death.

The affidavit, filed in support of a motion that the newspaper heiress be released on bond, says that under pressure of the SLA threats, "she felt her mind clouding, and . . . she believed and feared that she was losing her sanity."

The document suggests that Miss Hearst, who said that she had joined the SLA, might still be insane.

Even now, captured and jailed, Miss Hearst says she remembers little of what happened to her after April, 1974—two months after her abduction—and feels "as though she lived in a fog."

Her mother has compared Miss Hearst to a brainwashed prisoner of war. And a federal judge ordered Tuesday that Miss Hearst undergo psychiatric examination.

The process of selecting a psychiatric panel was expected to be completed by next Tuesday when Miss Hearst returns to court. U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter said he would not consider setting bail until the psychiatric report is in.

U.S. Attorney James Browning, who seeks to try Miss Hearst on bank robbery and weapons charges, was expected to point up inconsistencies between Miss Hearst's sworn affidavit and her earlier actions and tape recorded comments.

The affidavit did not explain her apparent signals of continued revolutionary ardor since her arrest—clenched fist salutes, greetings to comrades and self-description on her booking sheet as an "urban guerrilla," he said.

Canada-Soviet Relations Help World

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The expansion of co-operation between the Soviet Union and Canada is helping to improve the world's political climate, says a report quoted by the Tass Soviet news agency today.

Quoting Nikolai Bragin, Ottawa correspondent of the Communist party newspaper Pravda, Tass said:

"The expansion and consolidation of co-operation between the U.S.S.R. and Canada . . . is becoming an important factor of improvement of the political climate of our planet."

Clamps Down on Price Fixing

HONG KONG (Reuter) — South Vietnam's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) has introduced price-fixing measures throughout the country with threats of punishment for speculators.

A Saigon radio broadcast monitored here today gave details of the measures contained in a PRG communique dated Sept. 22.

It said all goods handled by state-run or private installations must be sold at prices fixed by the state.

Pulp Strike Talks Break Down

VICTORIA (CP) — Negotiations in the strike by 13,000 British Columbia pulp workers broke down Tuesday, but officials representing the forest industry and the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) will continue talks.

The Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC) and Canadian Paperworkers Union (CPU) ended talks in the seventh day of mediation efforts here after the industry rejected their revised proposals.

Indonesian Jet Crashes

JAKARTA (AP) — An Indonesian jet airliner overshot the runway today at Palembang in south Sumatra, hit some coconut trees and burst into flames, killing at least 23 persons, officials said. Two other persons were reported missing, and 37 survived.

Communications Minister Emil Salim, who flew to the crash site, said there were three foreigners among the dead but he did not know their nationalities. He said the passenger list indicated there were also two Britons and one Frenchman among the survivors.

Arab Oil Cartel Favors Price Hike

VIENNA (AP) — Most members of the oil cartel have reached consensus in favor of a 10-per-cent increase in the basic price of crude oil, but Saudi Arabia opposes it, Iraqi Oil Minister Abdul Karim said today after the opening session of the group's price-setting conference.

"Yamani speaks for himself, not for OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries)," Karim told reporters, referring to Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister. Karim did not say what price Saudi Arabia was advocating.

Yamani said Tuesday that his government favored extension of the current price freeze but was willing to go along with a "nominal increase."

The meeting, expected to last two or three days, began amid predictions of an increase ranging from about five to 15 per cent, or from 50 cents to about $1.50 a barrel.

Libya, Iraq and Algeria have been urging price increases of as much as 35 per cent, but Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, the second largest exporter after Saudi Arabia, has said he expects no more than 15 per cent.

Lang Will Not Resign

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday he opposes capital punishment, but will not resign if the cabinet allows Rene Vaillancourt to hang.

The minister was replying to a question during a bearpit session with University of Alberta law professors and students on Criminal Code amendments.

Vaillancourt, convicted of killing Toronto police constable Leslie Maitland in a 1973 bank robbery, has been granted a stay o execution until Oct. 313.

Stolen Cars

38 Per Cent Had Keys Left in Car

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Figures released by the Belleville Police Department show that of 84 cars stolen in the city up to Sept. 11 this year, 33 had their keys left in them.

"If these cars had not had their keys left in them, we probably would have had 33 fewer cars stolen," says Chief Douglas Crosbie.

He said Tuesday it is important for drivers to not only take their keys out but lock their cars because most auto thefts occur when a young person spots an open vehicle with keys still in the ignition and there is instant temptation.

"A lot of this is impulse stealing," he commented.

Chief Crosbie said a stolen car which had the keys left in it was used in the recent armed robbery of Kelly's Drugs.

And in another recent case, a man was arrested in Toronto after stealing a car in Belleville, he said. Again, it had the keys left in it.

Chief Crosbie noted that if the car been locked and the keys taken out, there would probably have been no theft and two police departments (Belleville and Toronto) would not have had to spend extra time and money to make an arrest.

Out of the 84 thefts, 23 persons were arrested and all but five cars have been recovered. "There was a fair number of them damaged," he said.

Fromme Defends Herself

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A composed Lynette Fromme, cleared to stand trial by a psychiatrist, is preparing to defend herself against a charge of trying to kill President Ford.

Speaking in a quiet voice rather than the high-pitched tone that earned her the nickname Squeaky among followers of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, Miss Fromme, 26, started negotiating with a judge on her defence Tuesday.

She asked for a desk, chair and typewriter in her jail cell and for extended visiting hours to interview witnesses.

U.S. District Judge Thomas MacBride replied that he couldn't order Sheriff Duane Lowe, who runs the county jail, to give her special privileges.

"You have to give him a little nudge, your honor," suggested Miss Fromme, who wore her customary hooded red robe.

Later, sheriff's spokesman Bill Miller said a desk and chair, but no typewriter, would be provided Miss Fromme in her cell. Lawyers were working with authorities and the court on arrangements for interviewing witnesses.

Quinte Students Travel To Coast

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Courses in high school have never been so good as evident at Quinte Secondary School. On Friday a group of 45 grade 10 students and four teachers will leave Belleville for a 10-day tour to the east coast and back.

It's all part of the Canadian studies in the geography department termed an "enrichment" portion of the program by teacher Hugh Minielly.

Mr. Minielly, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Gruhl will keep the students on realms of assignments from comparing prices of food province to province to communication along with people living on the coast, with tours through the St. Lawrence Generating Station at Cornwall, deep sea fishing off the PEI coast, a study of an oyster farm, the Highliner Fish Packaging Plant in Halifax, Nova Scotia, and of course, seafood dinners.

And this trip by bus was affordables to students who cut lawns through the summer. The total cost for transportation, the tours, and hotels was $130. Students were advised to ad $50 for meals and other additional expenses.

And, for many, this will not only be a school field trip. Mr. Minielly estimated 90 per cent of the students would be seeing the east cost of Canada for the first time.

Assassin Has Hazy Memory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sara Moore, ordered to undergo sanity tests after firing a pistol at President Ford, has only a "cloudy" memory of the assassination attempt, says her lawyer, public defender James Hewitt.

U.S. Magistrate Owen Woodruff directed Tuesday that the divorced mother of one be taken to San Diego on Friday and given psychiatric tests at the Metropolitan Correctional Centre there. He said results would be reported to him by Nov. 18.

Meanwhile, a gun collector who sold Mrs. Moore, a former WAC, the .38-calibre pistol used in the shooting Monday, said Tuesday night the woman seemed to be accomplished in the use of firearms.

Mark Fernwood of Danville, Calif., also said in an interview Mrs. Moore had not seemed to him "the kind of person you would expect to try to assassinate a president.

She was bright, cheerful and even gave me tips on how to decorate my home. She wasn't flaky at all."

Arrested immediately after she fired at Ford as he emerged from a downtown hotel, Mrs. Moore, 45, was held in lieu of $500,000 bail on a federal charge of trying to assassinate the president. If convicted, she faces a possible life sentence.

Hewitt told reporters after Tuesday's hearing his client's state of mind is "vague" and that she is "cloudy" about details of the incident Monday.

"I told her a mental examination probably would be ordered, and she seemed resigned to the fact," Hewitt said. "Her spirits are as good as could be expected."

U.S. Attorney James Browning said he sought the sanity tests partly because of "the bizarre nature of the offence" and partly because of "certain information from federal officials about Mrs. Moore," which he declined to specify.

Mrs. Moore has been linked to several leftist groups, but also has been identified by the FBI as a paid informer who worked with the bureau on a regular basis until last June.

The Associated Press has learned that Mrs. Moore also was providing information to local police and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tax and Firearms as late as the day before the assassination attempt. The information was believed to have been in connection with a gun trafficking investigation.

Promise Costs $100 Million

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that Harborfront, the federal government's 1972 pre-election promise to turn 86 acres of this city's industrial waterfront land into parks, will cost up to $100 million rather than $30 million as originally estimated.

The newspaper, in a copyright story says the government did not have until recently an inventory of the buildings it wanted to expropriate for $30 million and the cost now probably will be between $80 million and $100 million.

"Unbelievable as it may seem," the newspaper quotes an unidentified city official as saying, "the federal government never knew what it was getting when it expropriated the buildings on the site back in 1972."

Brighton to Remain Hub In Northumberland Study

BRIGHTON—The village of Brighton is designated to continue as the local administrative and commercial service centre catering to both the local and township population if the proposed draft of the Northumberland Task force is accepted at the upcoming conference, October 3rd and 4th, a crowd of 100 were told, Tuesday night.

Peter Walker, project director, discussed the proposal at the final public meeting, held at East Northumberland Secondary School.

Emphasis will be on the development of agricultural and recreational services with the population of the town expected to rise to 5,000-10-000 by the turn of the century.

The proposal calls for the establishment of Colborne as a major urban centre with its current 1,500 population to increase to 20,000-25,000 people. To create a more balanced distribution of the commercial wealth in the county, Cobourg and Port Hope will have a ceiling placed on growth to encourage the Colborne plan.

Growth would be restricted to urban areas and farmland would be designated as such with no development negative to the continuation of its agriculture use allowed.

The task force will establishwhere strategic agricultual, urban, recreation and enviroment priority areas will be located in the county.

The results of the workshops at the conference will form the basis for the final development strategy recommendations which the task force will pass onto the provincial geverment. This plan will be used as final policy for growth and development in Northumberland for the next 25 years.

Task Force to Consider Trenton Land Requests

BRIGHTON — Trenton has submitted a brief to the Northumberland Task force requesting 1,200 acres of land for industrial development in the southwest corner of the town it was disclosed at the final public meeting discussing the project, Tuesday night.

The land acquisition is being reviewed by the task force, and a final decision will not be reached until after the two-day upcoming conference in Cobourg and then has to be approved by local municipal boards in the county.

The 1,200 acres will be annexed for Murray Township if the plan is approved. Murray Township is seen as the logical place for expansion. Trenton is encompassed by rolling country to the north, CFB Trenton to the east and the Bay of Quinte on the South.

Murray Township however, has not been totally receptive to the idea of giving land to Trenton for expansion.

In a brief filed with the Northumberland committee studying government restructuring the township indicated Trenton would receive no more land from Murray until the municipality ended its seperated status and joins politically with Northumberland County.

Peter Walker, project director, said Trenton's proposal would receive consideration and the task force woul dassess the validity of the demands.

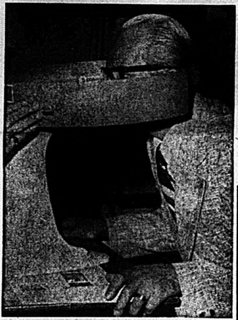
Woman Dies in Crash

COLBORNE — A 27-year-old Bowmanville woman was killed, Tuesday morning, when her car, rolled down an embankment and was pinned under the vehicle.

Sharon Smale, of RR 1, was travelling westbound on highway 401 near little Lake Road when the mishap occurred.

Her two children, Brent, 2½ years and Mary, 2 months old were admitted to Cobourg General Hospital and were listed in fair condition.

Constable Harry Twitchet of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is investigationg the accident.



Peripheral Vision

Clare McFaul, Prince Edward County Board of Education trustee, takes a peripheral vision test. He's using psycho-physical equipment at Prince Edward County Collegiate Institute used in the driver education program.

Horse Clinic A First

PICTON — The County as a Classroom, a community education program, sponsored by the Prince Edward Board of Education moved outdoors Tuesday night at Picton fairgrounds for a horse clinic.

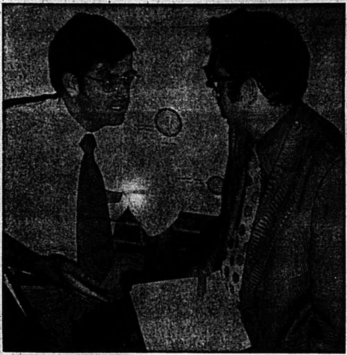
Conformation of the Quarter Horse, the Arabian, and the Palomino was explained by Rick Lange of Grandview Farm, Trenton, Mrs. Ben Prinzen, Maplemere Farms, Bloomfield, and Charles Culmer of Culmer Stables, Picton.

Horses were used by the instructors as they demonstrated desireable points of conformation to a group of about 40 horse enthusiasts.

Proper techniques for showing at halter were outlined in addition to grooming hints.

After discussion of conformation was completed, Mr. Lange saddled up to demonstrate how to ride when competing in western events. A commentary of do's and don'ts was provided by Charles Culmer.

The demonstration was followed by a question period when horse owners discussed their riding and training problems. The horse clinic was the first to be held in Picton.



Expansion Discussed

Aubrey Sharp, Trenton town clerk (right), discusses the town's request for 1,200 acres presented in a brief to the Northumberland task force with Peter Walker, project director. Mr Sharp was part of the four-man contingent from town council, including Mayor Robert Patrick, to attend the final public discussion of the county task force, in Brighton Tuesday night.

Corke Has Water Woes

New Belleville mayor Ben Corke already has water problems.

"I get telephone calls from people saying I love Belleville except for the water," Mayor Corke said at a utilities commission meeting Tuesday.

"It will be another month before it gets the weedy taste out of it," a commission director said.

PUC general manager Neil Britton said in April at a seminar at Loyalist College that if you don't like the taste of the water: add ice.

Mr. Britton said the odor and taste of the water becomes more noticable as the temperature increases.

Flavor in water from Bay of Quinte traditionally occurs every summer as the water level in the Bay drops and the temperature increases.

No Problem, We Will Take the 'Weedy Taste' Out of Your Water Belleville! with an Aqualux Water Refiner

Aqualux Refiner gives clean, clear, soft water by filtering out solid particles, removing the hardness in tap water and in addition removes taste, odor, color and man-made pollutants such as pesticides and detergents. It also removes heavy ionized metals such as copper, zinc, lead and .5 parts per million of iron.

Food for The Really Poor and Helping Others to Help Themselves

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — When was the last time you heard someone mention food surpluses without hearing in the next breath, by someone, "it is immoral to waste food with so many millions in the world starving."

It is a knee-jerk reaction, just as the mothers of a previous generation used to admonish their children to clean up their plates with "think of the starving Armenians." And the modern version is just about as unrealistic.

The last time the Canadian government canned surplus chicken to use for food aid programs, the external aid office found nobody in the under-nourished countries wanted it. They ended up giving it to the Germans. It was supposed to be a sale, but they are still waiting for the money.

CIDA has not yet announced whether it was able to make use of the six million pounds of canned beef that were contracted for last winter as a means of helping to get rid of surplus cows. Beef might be a little more acceptable to the Third World.

When Bud Olson was agriculture minister he used to say that farmers must produce for the market that was there. The fact that millions of people in Bangladesh were hungry did not necessarily create a market for Canadian farm produce.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan doesn't put it as eloquently as Mr. Olson, but he apparently believes the same thing. That is why he is helping farmers establish national marketing boards to keep production in line with demonstrated national and export requirements.

Canada has been pretty generous with food aid over the years, but few of those who advocate feeding the starving millions have considered the implications of trying to produce that much food let alone the drain on taxpayers dollars to ship it and distribute it to those in need.

There is a relationship between the ability of Canadian farmers to feed this country and produce a surplus with so little manpower — less than six per cent of Canadians are employed in agriculture — and the food needs of the developing world. But it is not in providing handouts for soup kitchens in Asia and Africa. It is in developing an agriculture that is competitive, efficient and market oriented.

Mr. Whelan came back from the world food conference in Rome last year convinced that the role of Canadian agriculture in feeding the Third World was not in gifts of food but in teaching the people of the developing nations to farm effectively. If a country is to truly develop, there is no alternative to it learning how to feed itself.

Canadians who have patted themselves on the back when they hear of food gifts shipped to some country in the Third World have never stopped to wonder what the farmer in that country thinks when the market for his produce is taken by Canadian food at give-away prices.

On the other hand, some of the Third World governments would rather have food shipments than have Canadian farmers there teaching their peasants new ways of producing food. The peasants might learn other things as well.

This new concept of aid — the recognition that the only real aid in the long run is helping them to help themselves — is what lies behind the new Strategy for International development cooperation 1975-1980 that External Affairs Minister MacEachen and CIDA President Paul Gerin-Lajoie announced recently.

It is cloaked in a lot of diplomatic language but what it means is that food aid will continue to the really poor nations but the rest will be helped into the real world of trade and development.

The howls of consternation from the do-gooders is more of the knee-jerk reaction that comes into play whenever aid is discussed. The new strategy is an attempt to replace the traditional emotion with some common sense. The sooner it succeeds, the more effective our aid will be.

Voters and Car Toll

The New Democratic Party is now the official opposition in Ontario, and, together with a strong Liberal representation in the legislature, it means a very new type of political ball game.

There is one line of Opposition thinking though, as expressed by a local NDP candidate before the vote, that should be questioned.

It was at the candidates' meeting at Loyalist College and Carson McLauchlan, who subsequently finished at the bottom of the polls in Quinte, was referring to automobile insurance for those under 25.

"The young are being penalized," he said. Presumably, he was thinking of the high cost of insurance to those in that age group. But remove that, lower the rates say, and what would we be left with? An even higher and more tragic traffic toll — one that annually causes untold millions of dollars in terms of damage, hospitalization, and compensation, not to mention attendant family grief.

Insurance costs for the young are high because a high proportion of the deaths and injuries that occur are in their age group.

Some supporting figures for 1974 from a recent issue of Ontario Traffic Safety and passed on to The Intelligencer by the Insurance Bureau of Canada in Toronto.

They show that drivers between the age of 16 and 24 were involved in almost 40 per cent of all fatal collisions in Ontario and in more than 36 per cent of all injury-producing collisions.

Of 778 fatalities 279 drivers were in the 16-24 age group, and of 46,621 injured 17,264 were in that age group.

The figures are all the more startling when it is considered the 16-24 age group represents only about 20 per cent of the nearly four million licenced drivers in the province.

They Tried Harder

Aside from the shift in the Ontario political scene that had been anticipated, one reason for the strong showing of the Opposition parties was their enthusiasm and strong party organizations.

It is a lesson for the Conservatives the next time around, given the minority government situation that now exists.

Robin Jeffrey, the defeated PC candidate in Quinte, sees a "lot of work" ahead for the party. She says they did not have the young people behind them and, with hindsight, believes the party's organization should have been working for months back.

It's a measure of what lies ahead for the Conservative party. As it is, they returned a good many more members to the legislature than either of the Opposition parties. If they are to maintain this lead, though, let alone increase it, the party organization has a stern task ahead. If there was any self-satisfaction before, the election will have dispelled it. One thing the Conservatives cannot afford in the days ahead is apathy.

Will It Work?

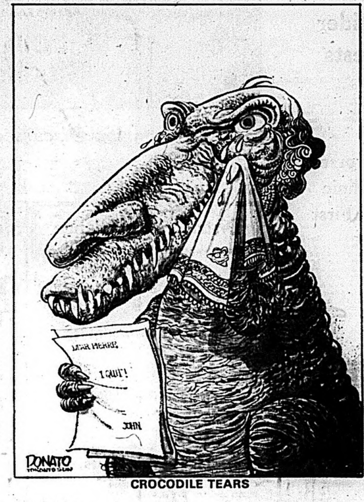
Premier Davis is quoted as saying if there is to be effective government in the days ahead the Opposition will have to respond to the programs his government puts forth.

True. What form that responsiveness takes of course will determine the direction of Ontario politics in the weeks and months ahead.

The Opposition may be responsible or it may be destructive. It may be positive or it may be obstructionist.

The people of this province are entitled to responsible government, and whether they get it or not will depend largely on the Opposition. In the past the legislature had the reputation of being one of the most unruly in the country, but now with a greater representation of all shades of political opinion there is an opportunity to make minority government work in the interests of all.

There will always be the possibility of another election before long, but the first duty of the new legislature, when it resumes, will be to give things a chance.



CROCODILE TEARS

Whither the Future of Ontario

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — In the wake of the provincial election, politicians and pundits are having a dizzy time.

They are huddling over their crystal balls, their ouija boards and fortune cards trying to find answers to many questions left by last week's indecisive and some what startling vote.

They are attempting to assess just what the course of minority government may turn out to be, what future lies ahead for the Liberals, the Conservatives, and the NDP. But above all, when the next election is about to be?

In trying to rationalize a question such as this one can go slightly stir crazy, there are so many and such complicated facets to it.

Do all parties want an election, and if so when? Do the Liberals and perhaps the Conservatives want time to hold off and regroup?

Does any one party, perhaps the NDP, want an election as soon as possible and if so can it force one? As the party with most control in the house what is the government likely to do?

With regard to the last, nobody knows what is in Premier Davis' mind, but there is at least one assumption that can be made.

This is that the premier is determined that if at all possible he won't go to the country again without an issue.

His biggest short-coming in this past election was that he didn't have an issue.

The closest that he had to one was the position of the federal government, and he very quickly found out that this wasn't going to be much good — the public wasn't buying it.

Most old pro politicians believe that for a good campaign one must have a good, vibrant issue.

John Robarts found this out in 1967 when he didn't have one. He found that he couldn't be positive and that his ingenuity was constantly taxed to avoid being forced on the defensive. And he swore that if he ever went to the people again — which, of course he didn't do — he would never go without an issue.

In this election Premier Davis was constantly on the defensive, either forced there or not astute enough to avoid it. The only issue, except for Ottawa, he could try and bring forward was the character and conduct of Liberal Leader Robert Nixon and his party. And this made him appear as petty and almost certainly cost him votes.

A consequence is that his first political consideration today is trying to find an issue.

Tomorrow I will discuss where and how he might find one.

Guy Lombardo Soldiers On As King of The Big Bands

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs

Thomson News Service

Who would you say is the Canadian entrepreneur best known to Americans — E. P. Taylor? Garfield Weston? K. C. Irving?

It's almost certainly a soft-spoken native of southwestern Ontario by the name of Guy Lombardo.

Guy is the leader of a family-owned enterprise, the Royal Canadians, that has enjoyed the longest and most financially successful record of any in the highly competitive popular-music field.

"We were the best known of the wondrous combinations that made up the Big Band era between 1930 and 1950," says Guy Lombardo in his autobiography, Auld Acquaintance, just published by Doubleday at 8.95.

"No musical aggregation has approximated our sale of 300-million records. We may be the longest-running act in show business that still goes out on the road 10 out of every 12 months."

If that lacks some of the modesty that Canadians like to boast about, it nevertheless sums up accurately the commercial side of the family venture that started in London, Ont., just after the First World War and still shows no sign of losing its pre-eminence in the music business.

At the helm as owners of the family business for more than 50 years have been Guy, now 73; his trumpet-playing brother Lebert, 69; and his late brother Carmen, who was a highly successful pop-music composer as well as lead saxophonist and singer until his death in 1971.

A brother-in-law, singer Kenny Gardner, has been with the family firm for 35 years. Brother Victor Lombardo played baritone saxophone with the Royal Canadians from time to time, but has generally been on his own. He now leads a small orchestra in Chicago.

It was in the old Gennett recording studio near Chicago that the Lombardos recording career began on March 1924, with four tunes that were as undistinguished as the jazzy style the Londoners played at that time.

Not until near the end of the Roaring 1920s did they hit their stride. That's when the Lombardo musicians began wearing scarlet jackets (reminiscent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police) and adopted the name "Royal Canadians" (no doubt to keep pace with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, Rudy Vallee's Connecticut Yankees and other similarly named bands).

But the secret of the band's popular and commercial success was neither its name nor its appearance, but rather its distinctive sound.

Smooth saxophones, muted brass and piano duets combined to form a relaxed and easily identifiable style that was in sharp contrast to the heavier beat and drive of the typical dance band of that era.

At the bottom of the Depression, the 10-man Lombardo business was taking in $17,500 a week at a Manhattan hotel, plus royalties for recordings and fees for playing a radio show advertising a cigar named after poet Robert Burns.

In keeping with its Scottish hero, the program used a Scottish signature tune — Auld Lang Syne, now more closely identified with the Royal Canadians than with Scotland.

That universally recognized theme is still being heard nightly as the Royal Canadians make their annual September visit to Toronto's Royal York Hotel and play other southern Ontario cities.

And Guy Lombardo is confident that the big-band era — which he has kept alive almost single-handedly — will again be as profitable for others as it is for the Lombardo organization.

Downtown Development

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The piece, "Community Role Stressed in Development" in the issue of September 17, caught my eye.

The article quoted Century Place developer Bill Wills as being on record as saying that Belleville must seek control of downtown development as soon as possible.

Beyond saying that "We must put vision in our plans to develop a place for people", Mr Wills remained sufficiently vague as to not be pinned down.

I found it enlightening, to say the least, that Mr Wills, who fought so hard and long to prevent the Quinte Shopping Mall from being established before capitulating in the face of public opinion should be talking about "encouraging the whole community in the project".

What we should all be alert to is the subtle suggestion that Belleville is likely to die without a downtown core. I suggest, over the coming months this city will see a mounting campaign to "convince" the general public that they need a new downtown core in order to survive as a community. The fact that the public, in most cities today favor shopping malls will be played down.

One thing, if Belleville tactics in the past are anything to go by, is certain, "public say" will be restricted to the task of paying for the scheme.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

A Change Of Tune?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I have no doubt you, Mr. Hockley, are dedicated in your opinions and convictions, but how about some constructive ideas and suggestions sometimes, instead of the smears and mud-slinging you seem to be obsessed with. Do you really think slinging mud at people will win you any following and respect.

Reminds me, many years ago a certain guy (long since departed to other parts), who made himself a complete pest, fighting everyone when ever he went downtown, and always ending up behind bars to cool off!

Eventually he got so well-known that as soon as he appeared, he was automatically put out of harms way so he couldn't start anything.

So how about changing your tune occasionally and maybe we will take a bit more notice of what you are writing about.

Papua New Guinea Now a South Pacific Island Nation

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Yet another new non-nation has emerged, this time it's Papua New Guinea in the southwest Pacific and to the north of Australia.

On Sept. 18 Prince Charles officiated at yet another flag-lowering as the Australian flag came down and the new flag of Papua New Guinea was raised.

In a short time, this economically-backward and under-populated nation with a large territory of about 180,000 square miles, will become the 139th country in the United Nations.

For anyone who saves stamps, the region is famous and well-known for its identifiable postage issues as a League of Nations then a Second World War mandate of Australia.

For Americans of the generation who fought the bloody war in the Pacific against Japan, New Guinea brings back memories of the Japanese air attacks on Port Moresby its capital and of their powerful base at Rabaul on the island of New Britain, also part of the new state.

The entire island of New Guinea one of the largest in the Pacific, is now divided equally between the new nation and Irian, the Indonesian-ruled western half in which there is now reported to be a separatist movement.

At the turn of the century, the rich island was yet another colonial prize being divided between the Dutch who owned the same half which is today Indonesian territory and the former Australian portion was partly an Imperial German colony and partly Australian.

We have forgotten that Germany before the First World War had an extensive and geographically far-flung colonial empire in Asia and the Pacific. Her island possessions stretched from New Guinea to the more northern Marianas Island chain, included part of Samoa and the naval base of Tsing-tao in China.

Australia received the mandate over the former German portion creating a huge Australian colony in the eastern half of the large island. Recent Australian governments have wanted to unload the island and thereby remove any stigma of colonialism from touchy Asian and Southwest Pacific nations.

Although 90 per cent of Papuans live as subsistence farmers, the territory is rich in copper, timber and is known to be a source of oil and natural gas.

And the economy for what it's worth, is dominated and will continue to be so by foreigners mainly Australian and Japanese. Both of them will continue to offer aid and assistance to the new Papuan New Guinea regime of the new Prime Minister Michael Somare.

The "national" emergence of this very backward Pacific island region again raises the question of so many tiny places as independent nations in the UN merely because the colonial boundaries from an era all the new nations bitterly hate, have by and large decreed their separate status.

The most flagrant example is the former Portuguese colony of Guinea today called the Republic of Guinea-Bissau which is a totally non-viable wedge of steamy real estate, but the first piece of the last European African colonial empire to become independent.

There are several island nations like Mauritius, Seychelles and the possibility of the Azores Islands off embattled Portugal of breaking away from Lisbon, which could survive more easily than larger continental new nations.

The power of these small and economically weak places is that they all have the same vote in the UN as the big important states.

Bluma Appel

Arousing Consciousness in Male Executives

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tokenism rubs Bluma Appel the wrong way but she says she is willing to accept it if it means women can gain acceptance in the male-dominated upper echelon of the business world.

"You've got to start somewhere," said Mrs. Appel, whose job as a special assistant to federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde involves persuading businesses to recognize the ability of women to fill executive posts.

"They lose touch," Mrs. Appel said of chief executives. "I want to arouse their consciousness . . there's something new, something exciting happening.

"They're not evil. They really want to do the right thing. And they're finding out how to do it. It's a totally new thing for them."

Mrs. Appel, also responsible for the status of women secretariat, serves on the boards of three companies—a holding and investment firm, a television equipment outfit and a cable television company.

With her background in the business world, Mrs. Appel now is trying to convince her male business counterparts of the advisability and necessity of hiring women for key executive positions.

Hiring women makes good business sense, she said, but male businessmen don't always share her view.

"It's either discussion or war. Sometimes discussion takes a bit longer, but it's better than war.'

Mrs. Appel tries to convert businessmen to the cause by promoting a sense of goodwill. But "behind the goodwill, there's an iron fist that executives are aware of."

That iron fist is the American Compliance Act, which has produced expensive lawsuits against corporations for failing to provide equal employment opportunities for women. Mrs. Appel said it would be possible in Canada.

During her travels throughout the country to meet with women's groups and organizations, Mrs. Appel said, she has seen a need to co-ordinate representatives in each region and industry to join an advisory board to meet periodically with Mr. Lalonde.

She also detected a change in attitude toward women in the business world. She noted the appointment of some women to top positions, at least one insurance company listing the advancement of women up the corporate ladder, and a major bank begin placing women in managerial positions.

Ann Landers

He'd Give Daughter Away Now That Son Is Born

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 35-years-old and just gave birth to my second child, a boy. My husband was so crazy to have a son he couldn't see straight.

Our little girl is now four. She is hyperactive and very difficult. She pinches, hits and bites people. This has been going on for two years and I can't seem to stop her.

Now my husband wants to put the girl up for adoption because he's afraid the boy might pick up her bad habits. We've had some battles over this because I don't think it's the right thing to do.

Will you please try to get through to the nut? I've never heard of a father wanting to do such a thing. — Mother Of Prince Philip II

Dear Mother: Tell your lunatic husband that children aren't waffles. You don't throw the first one out just because it doesn't turn out the way you'd like it to.

Your daughter needs special attention. Some hyperactive children have emotional problems that can be resolved by tutoring. Others have a chemical imbalance that can be regulated by medication. Take her to the nearest university hospital for evaluation. Too many so-called hyperkinetic kids are turned into little junkies because it's easier to medicate them than spend the time required to make them feel loved.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a widow 60 years of age, have been respectable all my life and live alone in a small apartment. I own a medium-size black-and-white TV which gets all the channels.

A new neighbor has been very pleasant to me. I like his personality. He has invited me to his home so we can watch his color TV which he says is the finest.

Should I go? I don't want him to think I'm a loose woman. — Need Your Guidance

Dear Need: My, how times have changed! It used to be, "Come over and see my etchings."

Invite the gentleman to your apartment for some homemade apple pie. The two of you can watch the same shows on your black-and-white set.

Researcher Identifies Breast Cancer Types

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some breast cancer patients may be getting the wrong treatment, says Glenn Slemmer, a University of British Columbia cancer researcher.

While doctors treat breast cancer as a single disease, Dr. Slemmer has discovered three diseases often diagnosed as breast cancer.

He emphasized that doctors are using the best procedures possible and it will be two or three years at least before they can apply his new knowledge to improve treatment.

It will take that long to extend to humans sophisticated cell-identification techniques he has developed for analysing mouse tissue.

Dr. Slemmer said the three diseases arise from three different types of mutant cells. They appear identical under a microscope and scientists have been fooled into believing that all breast cancers are alike.

One type however, is invariably benign and could be treated simply by removing the lump.

A second is malignant in about 10 per cent of cases. It may be treated by removing estrogen-producing glands.

The third is highly malignant and spreads rapidly. Treatment would be radical masectomy—removal of the breast and surrounding muscle and lymph glands.

It is practically certain that the same three types of cells found in mice will be found in humans, said Dr. Slemmer, although the frequency of occurrence and details of tumor growth may be different.

Early Type 2 mouse tumors appear similar to a class of tumors seen mostly in women under 40, Dr. Slemmer said. Doctors avoid radical surgery in these cases.

The tough distinction is between late Type 2 and the highly malignant Type 3. If it is a Type 2 tumor and a radical mastectomy is done, the patient is unnecessarily disfigured.

But if it is Type 3 and a doctor first tries removing estrogen-producing glands, delay could be fatal.

Dr. Slemmer's basic identification technique involves transplanting tissue back and forth between inbred strains of mice. Tissue from one strain will be rejected by another but will be accepted by a hybrid.

Tumors are induced in some of the transplants with cancer-causing chemicals. One experiment can take three or four years and involve thousands of transplants.

Dr. Slemmer, 36, started transplant work 13 years ago.

The transplant technique in mice will not work to diagnose human tumors, he noted, since it takes so long to do each experiment.

Pregnancy Benefits Under UWO Review

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Women employees at the University of Western Ontario should receive full salary and benefits during pregnancy, says a report from the president's advisory committee.

The report, released Thursday by D. Carlton Williams, university president, also says male employees should be allowed reasonable time off about the time of birth or adoption.

Under the Employment Standards Act, an employee with one year's service is allowed a 17-week unpaid pregnancy leave but the law does not require the employer to pay its share of benefit premiums during such a leave, the report says.

The university allows its employees a maximum of 15 consecutive weeks of sick leave with full pay for other situations, the report says. And while "we have no wish to equate pregnancy with sickness, it would be beneficial to families" if absences due to pregnancy were treated in a similar manner, it said.

UWO Women Suffer Injustice

LONDON, Ont., (CP)—Women students, faculty and staff at the University of Western Ontario encounter discrimination in opportunity, salary and career advancement, a report from the president's advisory committee says

The report, released today by university president D. Carlton Williams, says although there is no evidence of deliberate discrimination, injustices exist.

The report, which includes 96 recommendations, urges a public study group to implement changes and measure progress and says the university should weed out discriminatory practices.

The average woman faculty member, for example, earns about $5,000 a year less than her male counterpart and is less likely to be promoted to a senior position, says the report.

Introducing the Centennial Edition of Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

The best way to get information is to go to the source.

And that's exactly what Funk & Wagnalls has been doing since 1876, when they began publishing reference books.

The people above are just a few of the hundreds of consultants and contributors who helped put together the Centennial Edition of Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia.

Each one is a recognized authority in his, or her, field of knowledge. And several have Nobel and Pulitzer prizes to their credit.

Their contributions make Funk & Wagnalls New Encyclopedia a comprehensive, accurate, home reference centre with over 193,000 indexed subjects [that's as many as encyclopedias costing hundreds of dollars more].

Each article is written in clear, simple English that gets to the heart of the subject without going over your head. And each volume is bound in covers that are as sturdy as they are elegant.

SELL YOURSELF AND SAVE.

Funk & Wagnalls sells their encyclopedias direct through supermarkets instead of through door-to-door salesmen working on commission. So there's no high commission to pay and no high pressure sales pitch.

You just pick up Volume One at the special introductory price of 49¢ and let it convince you to buy the rest of the set a volume or two a week. That way you find out if it's the right encyclopedia for your family before you buy the whole set.

And because supermarkets can sell in great volume, Funk & Wagnalls can afford to charge less per volume. So you save.

Stop by the Funk & Wagnalls display in any of our supermarkets and pick up Vol. 1. It's one of the smartest purchases you can make these days.

Weavers Open Exhibition at Library

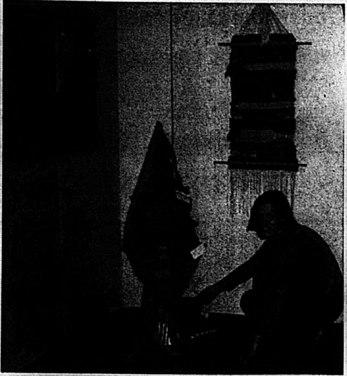
Belleville weavers are exhibiting 56 works from now until October 11 at the Corby Library.

The work of 14 weavers is included in the show which opened Monday in the library's gallery. Wall-hangings and small decorations, place mats, pillows, stoles and lengths of fabric are included in the show.

This is the second and largest show held by the weavers. Exhibitors are Elgar Hills, Catherine Roulet, Alma Gaasenbeek, Ruth Rimmer, Kae McCauley, Joan McCulloch, Ellie and Harvey Nurcombe, Toots Dymond, Marion Casson, Anne Johnson, Jose Foot, Bessie Cornell and Sharon Airhart.

Weaving demonstrations will take place during the show every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon as well as Friday evening.

Most of the works in the show are for sale.



Alma Gaasenbeek arranges hand woven objects for weavers' show at library.

Catherine Roulet and Joan McCulloch give advice.

Dig These Potato Recipes!

MUSHROOM STUFFED POTATOES

six medium baking potatoes
1¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
one-third cup hot milk (approximately) ½ cup finely chopped fresh mushrooms two tbsp. finely chopped fresh onions two tbsp. plus two tsp. butter or margarine, divided one teaspoon fresh lemon juice sliced fresh mushrooms, sauteed

Wash potatoes and bake at 450 degrees. 40 minutes or until soft. Cut a slice from the top of each potato and scoop out the inside. Mash until smooth adding salt, pepper and enough hot milk to form a fluffy consistency.

Saute mushrooms and onion in two tbsp. butter and lemon juice. Add to potato mixture, mixing well. Pile lightly into potato shells. Melt remaining two tsp. butter. Garnish with sliced mushrooms dipped in melted butter.

Incidentally, if the oven is in use at a lower temperature, bake potatoes at the same time but increase the baking period 10 to 15 minuutes.

PAPRIKA POTATOES

two pounds (15 small) new potatoes two tbsp. butter or margarine three tbsp. finely chopped onion ¾ cup water
one teaspoon salt
one bay leaf
one tablespoon paprika
one-sixteen teaspoon ground red pepper one tablespoon cider vinegar
¾ cup sour cream

Wash and pare potatoes. Melt butter in a saucepan large enough for cooking potatoes. Add potatoes and remaining ingredients except vinegar and sour cream.

Cover and cook over moderate heat until potatoes are tender but not soft. Add vinegar and bring to boiling point. Boil one minute. Add sour cream.

Heat but do not boil.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

WIENERS AND HOT POTATO SALAD

one onion, chopped
½ cup chopped celery
two tbsp. oil or bacon drippings one tbsp. flour
two tsp. prepared mustard
¼ cup sugar
one-third cup vinegar
one tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
two-thirds cup water
one pound wieners cut in ½-inch pieces four cups diced, cooked potatoes

Saute onion and celery in the bacon drippings until soft but not brown. Stir in flour. Add the mustard, sugar, vinegar, salt, pepper and water. Cook and stir until thickened. Taste for seasonings. Mix this sauce with wieners and potatoes, and turn mixture into a greased baking dish. Sprinkle with paprika, and bake at 350 degrees until thoroughly heated — about 35 minutes. Makes four or five servings.

(This recipe belongs to Violett Elliott, and came from the Plainfield Women's Institute. Tried and True Cook book.)

DUCHESS POTATOES

four or five medium potatoes one egg, beaten
¼ cup hot milk
two tbsp. butter
salt and pepper
½ tsp. nutmeg

Cook potatoes in boiling, salted water for 20 to 25 minutes. Drain well. Put potatoes through a sieve (or food mill) to remove all lumps. Beat in egg, milk, butter, salt and pepper to taste and the nutmeg. Put mixture into a piping bag with a fluted nozzle. Butter a baking sheet. Pipe the potato mixture into mounds or nexts. They can be refrigerated, on the sheet, until needed.

Bake in a 400-degree oven until warmed through and lightly browned, about 15 minutes.

Potato nests can be filled with diced cooked vegetables for an attractive, "fncy" dish. Serves four or six.

POTATOES PILASKISI

½ cup olive oil
one large onion
one clove grlic
one small can (eight oz.) tomato sauce a little crumbled basil three cups water salt
two lbs. potatoes (six or eight medium potatoes) pepper
½ cup chopped parsley

This Turkish potato ragout is an unusally tasty way to prepare potatoes, and is good served with other vegetables such as broccoli or green beans.

Heat the olive oil in a saucepan. Add the onion, thinly sliced, and the garlic clove, minced. Cook gently until the onion is slightly browned, then add half a small can of tomato sauce and a little crumbled basil. Add three cups of water and a pinch of salt and bring to a boil. Simmer a few minutes, then add the potatoes that have been peeled and diced. Cook, covered, for 30 minutes, until tender. Add the rest of the tomato sauce, salt and pepper to taste, and finish with the chopped parsley.

Treat Spuds With Respect

Potatoes are probably the most misunderstood of all vegetables. You've probably heard such myths as: "potatoes are fattening", "they have little nutritive value", "they're really just starch". Not so! — say Food Specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food. Potatoes are more than just starch; they're a good source of some of the key nutrients we need daily.

Potatoes, like other vegetables, contribute necessary vitamins and minerals. Vitamin C and iron are often lacking in the diet of many Canadians and baked or boiled potatoes supply good quantities of both.

Regardless of what you've been told, potatoes aren't fattening. A single potato has about as many calories as a similar-sized apple. Carbohydrate foods, far from being harmful or especially fattening, are actually essential to a balanced diet It's what you add to potatoes — gravy, butter or sour cream — that adds the calories!

In future, resolve to give potatoes the prominent place they deserve in your menus. They're a sound investment in nutrition.

250 Transit Workers Paralyse Public System

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations resumed early today in an effort to resolve a strike by 2,250 transit commission workers which has paralysed the city's public transportation system since last Thursday.

The resumption of talks under the supervision of mediator Roger Pilotte followed adoption of a resolution Tuesday by a Quebec legislature committee ordering the workers to return to work or face the prospect of back-to-work legislation.

Union leaders indicated following the committee decision they are willing to return to the bargaining table but doubted the workers would return to work until a new collective agreement is negotiated.

Premier Robert Bourassa said Tuesday the strike cannot be allowed to continue for much longer. The premier said the cabinet will decide today what action to take should the striking maintenance men, cashiers and office workers fail to return to their jobs.

Maintenance workers are holding out for an increase of $2.65 an hour. Unskilled garage employees currently earn $4.22 an hour and tradesman $5.37.

Blakeney Urges Government Spending Cuts

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan's New Democratic Party may have sprung from socialist diehards, but occasionally Premier Allan Blakeney sees eye-to-eye with the nation's bastion of free enterprise.

Tuesday, at the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Premier Blakeney suggested that both provincial and federal governments curb expenditures as a way to cope with inflation.

A similar suggestion has come from many of the 400 businessmen attending the four-day convention, which ends today.

In an address to the convention, Premier Blakeney said both businessmen and the general public should assess any claims they make on governments concerning costly expenditure programs.

In an interview, Mr. Blakeney said Saskatchewan will be exercising some restraint on its expenditure growth rate.

However, he said this did not mean the province anticipated actual reductions in spending.

Mr. Blakeney's sentiments echoed those of Gerald Pearson, newly-elected president of the chamber

In an interview, Mr. Pearson said Ottawa should take the example of his native Alberta government, which recently announced it plans to hold back spending.

Another topic of concern among chamber delegates has been Canada's housing situation, characterized by shortages and high prices.

Both Mr. Pearson and Robert Bonner, a Vancouver lawyer and former British Columbia attorney-general, intimated the federal government should enact legislation to ease skyrocketing housing prices throughout Canada.

The situation is particularly critical in Saskatchewan, which has a home vacancy rate of less than one per cent—believed to be the lowest in Canada.

In answer to a question, Mr. Blakeney said the Saskatchewan government will continue to provide financial assistance to low-income groups through the Saskatchewan Housing Corp., a Crown corporation.

He also said the idea of government-owned apartments had to be considered.

At about this point, Mr. Blakeney's views part from those of the chamber delegates, who decided this week to increase information campaigns to reconvert the public to the virtues of free enterprise.

Several members of Mr. Blakeney's audience said government-owned housing was not exactly the solution to Canada's housing problems.

Chamber delegates also differed with Premier Blakeney on the issue of price and wage controls.

In his address, Mr. Blakeney said that "if the government of Canada reaches the conclusion that controls on prices and incomes are necessary, then our government would be prepared to do its part to make those measures work."

A chamber policy, stating displeasure with price and wage controls, was reaffirmed almost unanimously only minutes before Mr. Blakeney's speech.

The whole issue of government involvement in business will be discussed today at the convention by a panel of government and business leaders.

Allmand Hopes Police Won't Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Tuesday he hopes Canada's policemen will not carry out their threat to hold a cross-country work stoppage if the cabinet commutes the death sentence of Rene Vaillancourt.

Vaillancourt, 27, is scheduled to be hanged Oct. 31 for murdering Toronto policeman Leslie Maitland while fleeing the scene of a bank holdup in 1973.

The Canadian Police Association has called on policemen across Canada to observe a four-hour study session — "period of mourning"—if the cabinet commutes the death sentence.

Mr. Allmand, speaking to reporters following a speech here, said government on the basis of demonstrations is "a poor way to govern."

He said he hoped the police express their opinions on the issue of capital punishment "in a democratic way."

He added police have a duty to enforce the law as made by Parliament.

Mr. Allmand said the question of commuting Vaillancourt's sentence is up to the cabinet.

He indicated that decision might come as early as next week.

The cabinet, he added, may decide to present legislation on capital punishment before the scheduled date of Vaillancourt's hanging.

Parliament is to resume sitting Oct. 14.

The solicitor-general said he will present his proposals for the legislation to the cabinet next week, but would not say precisely what they would be.

Earlier, Mr. Allmand told about 120 members of the Mount Royal Liberal Association he would present proposals aimed at "protecting the public" as well as providing for "a more humane system" to control convicted murderers.

He said they would include a lengthening of the minimum period of imprisonment for convicted murderers.

At present, convicted murderers serving life sentences are eligible for parole after 10 years' imprisonment.

There have been no hangings in Canada since 1962, although the death penalty remains in effect for the murderers of on-duty policemen or prison guards.

Congress Wants Secret Service Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is pushing its first investigation of the Secret Service and its performance in protecting presidents as a result of the two assassination attempts against President Ford.

Alarmed that a woman who told police last weekend she might "test the system" could be allowed within 40 feet of Ford on a San Francisco street, a Senate committee is planning to question Secret Service director H. Stuart Knight to determine if changes should be made in the agency's protection program.

San Francisco police said Tuesday they warned the Secret Service about Sara Jane Moore after she was charged with illegal possession of a gun and after she said she might "test the system."

The police also said they asked the Secret Service if they wanted the woman held and were told it would not be necessary. Secret Service agents then interviewed Mrs. Moore and decided not to place her under surveillance. The next day, she allegedly shot at Ford.

Federal law makes it a felony to threaten to kill or harm the president. The Secret Service has no legal power to detain a person who has not committed a crime, but it may conduct surveillance of anyone suspected of posing a threat to the president.

The Senate committee plans to begin its investigation Tuesday, calling Knight.

Chairman Joseph Montoya (Dem. N.M.) said he was told Mrs. Moore was not included in the 47,000-name Secret Service computer list of persons suspected of being a danger to Ford.

Meanwhile, Dr. Judd Marmor, president of the American Psychiatric Association, warned that the two assassination attempts might encourage others.

And Treasury Secretary William Simon, speaking Tuesday in New York City, was accompanied by at least 15 security men. Simon, whose department includes the Secret Service, usually travels with three Secret Service agents.

The Senate committee's investigation of the Secret Service will be the first extensive investigation of the agency's work, a committee staff member said.

Many of the agency's operations are kept secret. It will not say how many of its more than 3,000 agents protect the president, his family, the families of former presidents, State Secretary Henry Kissinger and Simon.

The Secret Service's over-all budget is $95.25 million, of which $19 million is allocated for protective services. Its job will be expanded Oct. 1, when at least four Democratic presidential candidates will be offered Secret Service protection.

HOW TO STORE CANNED FOODS

Under top conditions, canned foods can be expected to remain safe indefinitely. However, the flavour, colour and texture gradually deteriorate. So for greatest satisfaction and safety, they should be used within a year of the time you buy them.

To preserve them as long as possible, store canned foods in a cool, dry place. Avoid dampness, as this could result in corrosion and perforation of the can.

Discard any cans that show bulges, or even the slightest faults in the seams. Dented cans should be safe if otherwise intact.

Union Head Predicts Asbestos Mines Will Be Closed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Increasing concern about safety may cause asbestos mines throughout the world to close within a decade, an official of the United Steelworkers of America said Tuesday.

Ken Valentine of Toronto said present safety standards for asbestos should be stricter and the fibres may have to be completely eliminated from working environments.

"This means that the age of asbestos may be coming to an end," he told a Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) workshop on mining.

The steelworkers union represents about 1,000 asbestos workers in British Columbia, Ontario and Newfoundland. Work standards in these provinces now limit the amount of asbestos to between two and five fibres a cubic centimeter of air.

The closing of asbestos mines and the resulting switch to alternate products would produce some short-term loss of jobs, but Lorne Heard of Toronto, another steelworkers official, said such dislocation is far better than the loss of lives from diseases caused by exposure to asbestos.

The union maintains that asbestos companies should be responsible for persons displaced from their jobs because of unsafe working conditions.

"The answer as far as we're concerned is that when a company goes into business, it should post a performance bond," Mr. Heard said.

The proceeds from the bond would pay for the cost of retraining workers and relocating them in other jobs or providing compensation for those stricken with industry-related diseases, he said.

The mining workshop was part of a four-day CLC conference on health and safety.

Extortion Plot Fails Due to Lack of Postage

DYERSBURG, Tenn. (AP) — A $1-million extortion plot fell apart this week because the nine juvenile planners forgot to put enough postage on the package containing their demands.

Police spokesman Joey McDowell said television influenced the youngsters who attempted to extort goods from the Sears Roebuck Co. store here.

He said the plot may have had at least partial success had the demands not been so high.

McDowell said the nine—all boys ranging in age between 10 and 14—have been charged with making threats for the purpose of extortion.

Police were called in Monday after Sears received a two-pound parcel containing a handwritten note and more than 100 pages torn from the store's catalogue.

Note threatened to blow up the store if the money and merchandise marked on the catalogue pages were not delivered in three trucks. The note demanded rifles, ammunition, farm equipment and citizen-band radios.

Investigators took the package to the post office where officials were able to trace its origin because the youths had used only a 10-cent stamp when it was placed in the mailbox at the home of one of plotters for the mailman to pick up.

McDowell said parents of one of the boys recognized the handwriting. The other members of the group were quickly identified and picked up, he said.

McDowell said the boys apparently had planned to buy a large farm in northeast Arkansas and operate it with the equipment extorted from Sears.

The identities of the boys were not made known. All were released in custody of their parents.

Oil Cartel Begins Talks

VIENNA (AP) — The oil cartel begins another price-setting conference today amid predictions of a basic price increase for crude oil ranging from about five to 15 per cent, or from 50 cents to about $1.50 a barrel.

The 13-country Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) was under pressure from its biggest producer, Saudi Arabia, to keep the increase down. Libya, Iraq and Algeria were urging a jump of as much as 35 per cent. But Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, the second largest producer, has said he expects no more than 15 per cent.

The present base price is 10.46 for a 42-gallon barrel of Saudi Arabian light crude. Previously, an increase of $1.50 meant a rise in the price of gasoline in the United States of about one cent a gallon because the U.S. imports only a third of the oil it uses, and there is a government price ceiling of $5.25 a barrel on domestic oil.

But prospective modification of the ceiling and the oil companies' secrecy about their pricing methods makes it impossible to predict future retail prices accurately.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said Tuesday night that his government wanted extension of the nine-month price freeze that expires Sept. 30.

"But since the majority of OPEC members won't go along with this, we will be prepared to accept a nominal increase," he said.

Yamani indicated "nominal" meant 50 cents a barrel—just below five per cent. He said his government "might accept another small, nominal increase at a later date provided there is a long price freeze afterwards."

He indicated, however, that this stand hinges on U.S willingness to enlarge the proposed international conference on oil to include all major raw materials exported by the Third World countries.

Yamani denied that his government's opposition to a sizable price increase was in exchange for U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's peacemaking pressure on Israel.

Saudi Arabia's campaign to keep the price increase down is being aided by sharply reduced production and resulting revenue losses in most OPEC countries caused by lower demand from their recession-plagued customers.

Reached Sydney

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Despite rough weather and two ice jams, Skidegate,a Canadian Coast Guard vessel, arrived on schedule from Tuktayuktuk, N.W.T., becoming one of the smallest vessels ever to navigate the Northwest Passage.

Nursing Home Funds Reduced

TORONTO (CP) — Administrators of nursing homes must prepare for 'super future shock" within the next 10 years as the federal government cuts back its contributions to health care costs, the executive director of Humber Memorial Hospital said Tuesday.

Robert Ferguson told delegates to the annual convention of the Ontario Nursing Home Association that the major shock will occur in 1980 when the federal government plans to end its cost-sharing health insurance agreements with the provinces.

Federal plans also call for a 50-per-cent cut in contributions in the next five years and a 14.5-per-cent ceiling on cost increases, he said.

Mr. Ferguson said nursing home owners and administrators may be better prepared than public hospitals for such moves because they have not been solely dependent on government financing.

He urged the government to respond to our economic condition by curtailing wages and prices and by controlling government growth."

Thatcher Meets Stanfield

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Thatcher spent what was termed "a quiet day" Tuesday, the first of two she will spend here.

After spending the morning writing a speech, the leader of the British Conservative party had lunch with Robert Stanfield, leader of the Canadian Progressive Conservative party and several members of his caucus.

After lunch, Mrs. Thatcher visited Mitchell Sharp, president of the Privy Council who also is acting prime minister and acting external affairs minister.

A spokesman for Mrs. Thatcher said both meetings were private and had no knowledge what was discussed at them.

After a morning news conference today, Mrs. Thatcher visits Prime Minister Trudeau at his home before travelling to Toronto where she delivers a luncheon speech at the Empire Club Thursday.

Mrs. Thatcher, her husband and accompanying officials leave for home later Thursday.

Western Guard Sentenced

RICHMOND HILL, Ont. (CP) — Armin Auerswald, 44, of Oak Ridges, Ont., said by police to be a member of the white-supremist Western Guard, was sentenced Tuesday in provincial court to 18 months in prison for possession of unregistered, restricted weapons.

Judge Claude Morrison said Auerswald had guns, had hate literature and had hate in his heart."

He was arrested at his home Sept. 8 in a police roundup of Western Guard members. Police seized four loaded handguns, 300 chemicals, electronic components and files of hate literature.

Auerswald told the court he was not a member of the Western Guard but had attended some of the group's meetings.

The weapons were confiscated and he was prohibited from possessing weapons for two years.

Richmond Hill is about 15 miles north of Toronto.

Rifle Sales High

TORONTO (CP) — Rifle and shotgun sales are at record levels this season in all provinces except British Columbia, despite shorter hunting seasons in some areas and the possibility of stricter gun control legislation.

Max Winkler, gun manager for Harkley and Haywood Ltd., Vancouver, said anti-gun campaigns, labor problems and inflation account for lower sales in British Columbia.

In contrast, David Wilson, president of Peterborough Guns Ltd., Peterborough, Ont., which distributes most major lines throughout Canada, said sales are up about 40 per cent this year.

He said that, with inflation and less favorable exchange rates for the Canadian dollar, U.S. and Canadian lines such as Remington, Winchester and Savage are selling better than guns.

Ralph McFadden, sporting good manager for C.H. Howden and Co. Ltd., London, Ont., said sales are up 70 per cent. The most popular models are .308- and .30-06-calibre rifles and 12-gauge pump or semi-automatic shotguns, he said.

G.C. Roy, assistant purchasing manager of Maison d'Armes a Feux, Inc., Quebec City, said the company is running out of stock. He said he thinks increased demand for guns is due to hunters buying new models rather than more people taking up hunting.

Ghosts Strike Court Building

BOMBAY (RP) — Do ghosts prefer to haunt government buildings?

It would appear so, judging from at least a dozen ghost stories which have appeared in leading Indian newspapers recently.

The prestige Times of India of Bombay, reported that a mysterious apparition has struck terror among policemen and watchmen in the 10-year-old state supreme court building in the metropolis.

The Times described the apparition as "a ghoulish-looking beared figure wearing a raincoat and a sun hat."

The paper, which has often scoffed editorially at ghost stories, said night watchmen and even policemen feel their spines tingling with fear. "None of them is prepared to be left alone after sunset," it added.

One policeman is said to have awakened around midnight feeling that he was being strangled. He ran out towards the nearby Flora Fountain square shouting: "Bhooth, bhooth!" (Bhooth is Hindi for ghost.)

A Hindi-language newspaper reported that the ghost may be responsible for at least two cases of fatal heart attacks and one of insanity.

Some months ago, two ghosts were said to be haunting Writers' Building, the provincial government headquarters in Calcutta.

Senior officials in Writers' Building did not like to work alone after dusk, the newspaper Anand Bazaar Patrika reported.

Some junior government employees were said to have asked for what one Calcutta columnist described as a "risk allowance" to compensate for the strain of working in a haunted building.

Government offices in the cities of Shillong, Simla and Hyderabad have also reported the presence of ghosts.

"I don't know anything about the ghost said to be around here," said an official of the state supreme court in Bombay. But he was not prepared to deny its existence.

The official confessed he believes in the existence of ghosts as "a general phenomenon."

Interestingly, the Bombay ghost swears in three Indian languages and in English.

"He seems to be highly educated,' said a policeman.

Have Insurance

OTTAWA (CP) — About 55 per cent of eligible farmers carry crop insurance offered by the federal government, the department of agriculture reported. This year, 101,756 farmers are insured, compared with 84,781 in 1974.

Ecuador Named After Equator

QUITO (Reuter) — The imaginary line running around the centre of the earth is one of Ecuador's most unusual tourist attractions.

The Equator, which gives this mountainous country its name, lies 15 miles north of Quito. One can stand there with a foot in the Northern Hemisphere and the other in the Southern.

A monument set nearly 8,000 feet high in an Andean valley, within sight of snow-capped volcanoes, marks the location of the Equator.

Shortly after midday twice a year, on the two equinoxes—March 21 and Sept. 21—one can stand there in the sun and cast no shadow.

Cyphers denoting zero latitude are carved on the monument, a grey stone pillar erected in memory of French explorer Charles de la Condamine who made the first modern fixing of the equatorial line here in 1735.

In fact, the equatorial line shifts slightly over the years, partly because of an imperceptible wobble in the earth's spin, and was certainly not first discovered here by the Frenchman.

The Quitu Indians, whose descendants today sell colorful ponchos and other woven garments to tourists at the monument, knew that the world was divided into north and south and understood the sun's equatorial movements.

But the Quitu sun culture, which thrived here 1,500 years ago—before both the Inca and Spanish conquests—now has largely been forgotten.

A museum, a few miles due east of the monument, preserves some of the Quitu sun culture. The museum was built in 1956 by Prof. Luciano Andrade Marin, who dedicated much of his life to Quitu scholarship.

Set in the outskirts of a poor, dusty village, the museum's flowered garden serves as a miniature world.

The tomb-like building is squared towards the four cardinal compass points—north, east, south and west.

Gardens are planted around the walls. During the Northern Hemisphere summer flowers grow in abundance on the north side, while the land lies barren and flowerless on the southern, sunless, side.

Cruises Increased

TORONTO (CP) — The number of passengers on cruises in Canadian waters increased 15 to 20 per cent this year. Vancouver is expected to have 103 sailings this year, making it the leading port in North America for summer cruises.

Britain Discovers New Poet

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain has suddenly discovered a great new poet. Almost 60 years after his death, Isaac Rosenberg is being hailed as one of the country's finest 20th-century writers.

Rosenberg was one of the crop of army poets thrown up by the First World War. But unlike his colleagues Rupert Brooke, Robert Graves, Wilfred Owen and Siegfried Sassoon, he achieved neither fame nor recognition during his lifetime.

When he was killed in action in France in 1918 at the age of 27, Britain's Imperial War Graves Commission refused a family request to engrave the words artist and poet on the headstone of his grave.

Rosenberg was also killed in a literary sense, with much of his work either lost or forgotten except among some discerning academics.

But an exhibition organized by Britain's National Book League has just opened here, bringing together for the first time many poems, paintings, letters and photographs relating to Rosenberg which have never been seen before.

The unlikely subject of this sudden blaze of publicity was the son of poor, immigrant Latvian parents, an unemployed Jew and a pacifist.

Isaac Rosenberg was a Cockney from London's east end who looked at war with a direct and unpretentious eye.

Why has it taken so long for fame to catch up with his talent?

The other famous army poets were officers and gentlemen while Rosenberg was a private soldier and working-class.

That class was to become the focus of the future. As his biographer, Jean Liddiard, says: "A poet who had always been on the periphery of society became important when that very periphery was seen by later generations to be the crucial area of social and cultural change."

Rosenberg reflected the wrong values for the time, but they were to become the important values of the future, although expressed in an earlier style.

Even when Rosenberg volunteered to go to war it was not for the patriotic motives that prompted men such as Rupert Brooke.

When Rosenberg enlisted in a special bantam battalion for those under regulation height, he did so partly to heal his aching sense of isolation from society but also so that his mother could receive a separation allowance.

It was part of the pathos of Rosenberg's life that through an administrative confusion, the allowance was deducted from his pay but did not reach his mother.

Perpetually dogged by ill-health, Rosenberg lived unromantically and died unheroically. Wilfred Owen won a Military Cross for his bravery but Rosenberg, though no coward, was lost while on night patrol on the Somme and was presumed dead later.

Graves and Brooke had inherited values to set against the barbarity of war and their poetry displayed a shock and revulsion with which their class could identify.

But to Rosenberg, life was a battleground and war simply a facet of it. His poetry was tougher and more detached, presenting a working-class view of war. While Graves might write about the heroics of shellfire, Rosenberg chose to chronicle the humiliating delousing procedures which his comrades frequently underwent.

A poet who survived the holocaust, Edmund Blunden, paid tribute to Rosenberg when he heard about the exhibition, saying: "He was the greatest of all of us, because he had already seen the pain."

But Rosenberg was also to suffer during the war more than the poets who achieved immediate fame.

While they had the relative comforts of an officers' mess in which to compose their poetry, he knew only the trenches. For paper he had only the backs of envelopes on which to scrawl such masterpieces as Dead Man's Dump and Break of Day in the Trenches. Daughters of War was written in a tiny booklet made of lavatory paper.

Even when his hands were numb with cold and torn by barbed wire, he still sent poems and drawings home until the censor finally stopped him. His last effort was a moving self-portrait on brown paper used to wrap a food parcel sent from home.

At his death, on April Fools' Day, 1918, he had published only three pamphlets all at his own expense.

Reports Can Be Wrong

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A four-month study conducted by three University of Lethbridge students showed eyewitness reports can often be inaccurate.

Kim Anker, a fourth-year psychology student who co-ordinated the project, said a study of more than 200 volunteers revealed that a person's testimony is "very wishy-washy."

"We found that people . . . were correct only about 59 per cent of the time."

The research, funded as a Student Temporary Employment Program project this summer, showed that perception of an event varied between individuals.

"We had two people describe an event the same way and they were both wrong," said Miss Anker. "You can easily imagine what that would mean in courtroom testimony."

Volunteers were shown three brief films depicting a car accident, a fight and an arrest. Immediately after viewing the films, the volunteers were asked to answer questions concerning what they had just seen.

A week later, the same people, without seeing the films again, were asked more questions.

Labor Relations Board Needs Complete Overhaul

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Workers Union (CTCU) says the provincial government should do "a top-to-bottom cleanup" of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

Kent Rowley was commenting Tuesday on a board decision directing a decertification vote for members of Local 570, CTCU, at the Artistic Woodwork Co. of Toronto, a plant which makes picture frames.

Mr. Rowley said at a news conference that the board is "a thieves' kitchen for company lawyers" and serves as an instrument to perpetuate provincial government labor policies that favor companies over workers, especially immigrant workers.

In the Artistic case, he said, the directive for a supervised decertification vote was made despite evidence before the board that a petition signed by more than 80 of the 115 company employees asking for decertification had been instigated or supported by the employers.

In an interview following the news conference, Sarel van Zyl, general manager of the company, denied that the board had heard any evidence of that the company had instigated the petition.

He also denied Mr. Rowley's statement that workers circulating the petition did so on company time.

About two years ago, the CTCU led workers at Artistic on a strike that lasted 3½ months and included frequent confrontations with police as some employees were escorted to work through picket lines.

Mr. Rowley said the impetus to have the union decertified comes mainly from the company and employees who worked through the strike, and he wants the labor relations board to reopen hearings into whether or not a vote should be taken.

The board has already refused to reopen hearings and A. M. Brunskill, board registrar, said Tuesday a yes-no vote on decertification, supervised by the board, would be held on an undetermined date.

Status of Women Council Plans Advertising Change

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Status of Women Council plans to use subtle pressures on advertisers to speed up a change in attitude toward women in commercials, says a council spokesman.

Marjorie Pinney, the council's executive officer, said the council recently published a 40-page report that showed the majority of about 500 Ontario women who responded to a survey on advertising found most advertising to be objectionable.

"We fully intend to use the report to subtly pressure them (advertisers and advertising agencies) to change their portrayal of women," said Mrs. Pinney. "Women don't like being made to look stupid and idiotic."

Frequent complaints included the use of sex-related advertisements to sell many products and services and advertising of feminine hygiene products.

Council representatives plan to meet with members of the Canadian Advertising Advisory Board, the Association of Canadian Advertisers and some individual advertisers.

"We felt we could not go to the agencies and advertisers until we had something to show them," said Mrs. Pinney.

The council says the report will help advertisers and agencies avoid producing television commercials and printed advertisements that annoy women.

United Way Goal This Year Set at $146,000

By SUSAN McCONNELL

Plans for the annual United Way campaign beginning next week include a kick-off Saturday with a parade and ceremony officiated by Mayor Ben Corke United Way Campaign Manager Chairman J. Robert Burns, and representatives of the 15 agencies supported by the United Way.

The parade will start from the Navy League Headquarters at 2 p.m. proceed up Pinnacle St, down Front St., across the Market Square and end up at the Armouries where the ceremonies are scheduled to begin at 3 p.m.

The goal this year is set at $146,000 an increase of $6,000. over last year's objective.

The United Community Services has increased its sponsorship to assist two agencies: the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre and the Child Development Centre.

Other agencies are the Belleville Family YMCA, Belleville Minor Sports Association, elleville and District Association for Retarded Children, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society — Quinte Committee Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Hastings County Advisory Committee, Canadian Red Cross, Central Volunteer Bureau, Civic Action Committee, Navy League of Canada, Quinte Easy Rollers, St. Johns Ambulance association, and District, and Victoria Order of Nurses.

New Building Declines

The city's building inspection department reports building permits for a total construction value of $1.5 million were issued during the month of August.

This figure is well down from the more than $6 million in permits for the same month last year. Building inspector Grant Stickle said several industrial projects including a multi-million permit for Procter and Gamble affected last year's total.

Of the $1.5 million, $340,000 was for the construction of 11 single-family units.

Commercial building permits amounted to $484,000 and industrial permits for $407,000.

Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee will discuss the inspector's report in detail at their monthly meeting tonight in council chambers beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Hospital Workers Protest Staff Cuts

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Hospital workers from Belleville and across Ontario walked off their jobs Tuesday protesting the reduction of patient care by cutting back staff in "essential areas."

A score of Belleville General Hospital workers carried picket signs up and down Dundas St. for more than an hour Tuesday.

The demonstration of an estimated 20,000 workers across the province coincided with the Service Employees International Union (SEIU) presentation of a brief to minister of health Frank Miller.

Bob Blewett, president of Local 663, SEIU, said Tuesday the union has two locals in Belleville General Hospital with a total membership of approximately 600 workers. The union represents "just about everyone in the hospital with the exception of doctors and registered nurses."

He said today the Tuesday demonstration was just a one-day affair and now hospital workers will wait to see what steps the government takes.

The SEIU contends in its brief that while patient care staff is being cut, "administration is being fattened."

In a written release, the unions states "there are many areas where savings can be achieved — and that hospitals operated very successfull six or seven years ago with one third to one half the administrative staff that they have today."

Mr. Blewitt said "while Belleville is a fairly rich hospital, staff has not been expanded to keep up with the caseload."

"We are also concerned that hospitals do not begin contracting work outside the hospital to private sector janitor and food firms."

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director said Tuesday as yet "there has been no official word from the minister of health as to what finds will be available in 1976."

Encephalitis Outbreak Not Likely Here: Lenk

There is no chance that the encephalities (sleeping sickness) outbreak currently ravaging the Windsor area will spread as far as Hastings and Prince Edward counties, says Dr. C R. Lenk, medical officer of health.

"I don't think there's any chance whatsoever,' he said Tuesday of the disease which is carried by mosquitoes.

"It's getting cool," Dr. Lenk commented. "Mosquitoes are pretty well gone."

And besides, he added, "mosquitoes don't travel that far."

Dr. Lenk noted only the possibility of the disease spreading here. "An actual coase (infected person) would have to travel here and have it (disease) in the blood, be bit by mosquitoes and infect the mosquitoes."

He said the provincial ministry of health has sent notices to all medical officers of health "warning us of cases being missed by the practitioners." But there have been no reported cases here, he added.

Dr. Lenk said the disease is rare in this province. "There's no treatment, I'm afraid," he remarked. "You have to kill the mosquitoes, mainly."

Seventy-two people in the Windsor area have been examined for encephalitis and 30 are still in hospital with a suspected or confirmed case of the disease.

An aerial spray of the chemical Baygon is planned as soon as the weather improves. This means little or no wind, no rain and moderate temperatures.

If the spray is not done in the next few weeks, a good frost should kill the mosquitoes carrying the disease. Encephalities is spread from birds to mosquitoes to people or animals. In Windsor, the birds are the real problem right now, the mosquitoes just carry the disease.

The outbreak in Windsor led to the closing of Point Pelee National Park and two provincial parks in Essex County and the postponement of all high school football games in the areas.

Campaign Costs Still Unknown

Candidates in the Sept. 18 provincial election won't know for another three to four weeks how much it cost them to run in Ontario's 30th election.

Officials in the Conservative, Liberal and NDP party ranks said neither all contributions, nor all bills for expenses, have been received.

This year, what each candidate spent, and received, will be made public under provisions of the Election Finances Report Act. It's a departure from previous election legislation and is aimed at bringing the financing of political campaigns into the open.

The Act requires all candidates, through a cheif financial officer, to report all contributions and expenses to a commission which will publish a financial summary in local newspapers.

Car Clips Cyclist

GREENBUSH — A Milford area motorcyclist Tuesday night was treated for cuts and bruises following a freak accident on county road 17 near here.

Mark Hele, 18, of RR 2 Milford, who had parked his motorcycle on the east shoulder of the road, was injured when a car driven by James McCaw, 45, of RR 3 Picton swerved to miss a horse and collided with him.

Trucker Charged

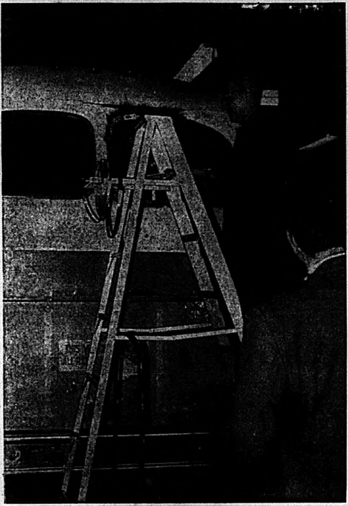
FOXBORO — A Breslau, Ont. man has been charged with making an improper turn in connection with a two-vehicle collision early today on Highway 14 just south of the south Foxboro entrance which sent a Foxboro area man to hospital.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville identified the man today as Keith Frederick Reinders.

Police said David Ross Hord of RR 1, Foxboro was treated for minor injuries at Belleville General Hospital.

Police said a tractor-trailer owned by Angelstone, Ltd. of Cambridge, Ont. was southbound and making a left turn when it was in collision with a following 1975-model ¾-ton pickup truck driven by Hord.

Constable Fred Fry estmated $3,500 damage to the pickup truck and $50 damage to the tractor-trailer in the 5:50 a.m. mishap.



Hot Work

Belleville Transit Commission mechanic Freeman Holgate prepares tools to weld a web for installation of a rear window in a BTC bus under the eye of a bus driver. The 11-year-old bus, one of 18 owned by the commisison, had corroded around the window through action by road salt and moisture.

Maintenance Program Keeps Buses on Road, Not in Shop

BY AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

On-the-road breakdowns by Belleville Transit Commission (BTC) buses, although they do occur, are "anything from being a serious problem" in Belleville, say BTC manager Lewis McMullin.

In other words, it's not likely someone will be caught at a bus-stop in the rain waiting for a bus that isn't coming.

If a breaddown does occur, said Mr. McMullin Tuesday, and passengers are stranded in an idle bus, they won't be for long. The manger said the BTC is able to dispatch a bus to pick up stranded passengers within 10 minutes.

He is proud of that ability, one that stems from a combination of a downtown terminal location, use of diesel buses, and a strict bus maintenance schejule.

The BTC regularly brings buses into repair bays at its Coleman St. terminal every 2,000 miles. Each bus is lubricated and other necessary preventive maintenance is performed. Bus parts, near the end of their effective life, are replaced before the breakdown risk becomes too high.

Over the years, says Mr. McMullin, the BTC has purchased diesel, as opposed to gasoline-powered buses.

"Diesel is more reliable than gas. There are fewer actual breakdowns on the road.

Despite planning for the unexpected, the commission would be seriously hampered if its buses were unreliable.

The BTC operates 16 transit buses. At peak times–13 buses are required. That leaves three buses on standby, two of which may be in for major overhauls and thus unusable.

It leaves one bus on standby.

That one bus, says Mr. McMullin, is the oldest in the fleet. It has been retained by the commission in light of trouble over in past years in getting parts.

At one point, 10 months were spent waiting for rear tires for a bus. A bus with transmission trouble was forced to sit idle for four to five months while parts were delayed in delivery.

School Fire Drills Postponed One Week

Fire alarm drills at Belleville's elementary and secondary schools will begin next Monday.

Paul Stephenson, fire prevention officer for the city fire department, said the drills were postponed for one week when other activities became apparent this week.

Both Mr. Stephenson and fellow prevention officer Reg Christopher will tour Proctor and Gamble Co. of Canada Ltd. on University Ave. today.

On Thursday and Friday, they will be performing regular duties and devising a schedule for next week. Activities will run through fire prevention week – Oct. 5-11.

Last Monday, the two officers inspected high-rise apartments in the city.

OHC Enters Burttdale Controversy

JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Rollins Construction Co. and homeowners in Burttdale Heights are once again becoming embrolled in a repairs controversy with the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) saying they will step in and complete the Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) subdivision if the builder does not live up to its agreement.

Bob . Smith, Construction manager for HOME division of the OHC said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Toronto, he would "use any means and methods to force the builder to repair the problems,' including the withholding of final payment to the construction company."

If this did not work and the repairs were not completed by the end of October, OHC would undertake to finish the job, using the funds withheld from Rollins Construction, Mr. Smith said. Currently, The OHC has about $60,000 — $70,000 in mortgage monies which will be paid to Rollins Construction upon completion of the project.

Donald Irvine, Minister of Housing said in a recent letter regarding the controversy the problems have arisen "primarily from poor supervision on the part of the builder" which has caused a number of structural problems that have required an "excessive length of time to complete the houses."

He said the delay in completion meant several inspectors had to be used during the project instead of one and there "was a loss in continuity and consistency in inspections."

Mr. Smith said he would be visiting the Burttdale Heights subdivision within the next two or three weeks, the time he said Rollins Customer service manager Larry Desrochers told him repairs would be finished, to make an inspection and then he would be sending inspectors to do the final check if he thought the home were ready for it.

John Rittwage, a spokesman for the homeowners committee said Tuesday, the construction company has not lived up to its agreement to fix" the major problems" in the subdivision, such as leaky basements and the spreading of topsoil, within a reasonable time of receipt of the complaint list.

Mr. Rittwage said he delivered the list two weeks ago and has been waiting for Maurice Rollins, the company owner, and Mr. DesRochers to visit the subdivision to arrange repairs.

In a statement issued Tuesday Mr. Rollins said the work on the original list submitted by the homeowners was 75 per cent finished with the rest of the work to be done by Oct. 31 well within the four month deadline for completion of the repairs agreed upon at a meeting between the two groups last month.

Bucs Do It Royally

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duffy Dyer got the royal treatment from Pittsburgh Pirates—and in this case, it included a lane of towels leading to his locker and beer, cold cuts, sliced tomatoes, a face cloth, a cigar and a stomach acid pill on his stool.

That's what he found in the clubhouse Tuesday night after helping the Pirates beat Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 in National League baseball action.

"This is a 21-towel salute, I guess," Dyer kidded. "These guys are crazy, no question."

Dyer hit three singles, including a run-scoring hit in the sixth when the Pirates scored three runs to give pitcher Bob Moose his winning margin.

The Pirates, who clinched the National League East Division title by beating the Phillies the night before, were obviously at ease with the pressure off. The post-game horseplay included loud cheers when Dyer walked the towel carpet to his locker and found the post-game meal.

Moose was a part of the celebrative Pittsburgh dressing room, and for good reason. He had just pitched his first complete-game victory in two years.

"They know here that I can throw again," said the right-hander who has been plagued by injuries and spent most of this season in the minor leagues.

In the other National League games, San Diego Padres beat Los Angeles Dodgers 6-2, Cincinnati Reds defeated Houston Astros 5-3, Montreal Expos blanked St. Louis Cardinals 7-0 and New York Mets beat Chicago Cubs 8-6. Rain washed out the Atlanta-San Francisco game.

Moose, making his first start in three months, pitched a three-hitter and Richie Hebner singled home two runs to help the Pirates beat the Phillies. It was the 17th victory in 25 games for the Pirates.

Philadelphia was held hitless over the first four innings by Moose, who rejoined the Pirates this month after four weeks on the disabled list.

Randy Jones tossed an eight-hitter to earn his 20th victory as San Diego defeated Los Angeles. Jones, 20-11, was 8-22 last season. He joined the Mets' Tom Seaver as the only 20-game winners in the National League.

Tony Perez' run-scoring double in the fourth inning drove in what proved to be the winning run and Fred Norman and Rawly Eastwick scattered four hits as Cincinnati edged Houston.

Pinch-hitter John Stearns doubled home the tying run in the eighth inning and scored on Felix Millan's single as New York rallied from an early six-run deficit to defeat Chicago.

DUNDEE WINS

KEFLAVIK, Iceland (Reuter) — Dundee United of Scotland appears set for a place in the second round of the European Football Union (UEFA) cup tournament after a 2-0 first-leg win Tuesday over Keflavik of Iceland. Key figure in the Dundee lineup was Narey, a Scottish under-23 international who scored in the fourth and 42nd minutes.

Cards Blanked

STEVE ROGERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Steve Rogers found his elusive 11th win and Pete Mackanin and Mike Jorgensen provided the offence as Montreal Expos continued their late-season drive for fifth place in the East Division with a 7-0 win over St. Louis Cardinals in a National League baseball game Tuesday night.

Rogers scattered seven Cardinal hits and moved his record to 11-12 with his first win in eight attempts since Aug. 19. Mackanin drove in three runs with a two-run triple and bases-loaded walk, and Jorgensen belted a two-run home run.

The win put the Expos one game behind Chicago Cubs.

Jorgensen, who extended his career-high homer total to 15, said the season has been personally rewarding in some respects but disappointing from a team standpoint.

"Catching Chicago is the only thing we've got left. It's not a glorious thing to finish fifth, but it's something to shoot at."

One run scored on a passed ball by Cardinals catcher Ted Simmons and the other on a double by Larry Bittner, one of three doubles by the Expos for a total of 212 this season, breaking the club record of 211 set in 1970.

Rogers allowed the Cardinals to advance a base runner as far as third only three times, the most serious threat a bases-loaded situation in the second inning.

Lou Brock hit into a force-out to end that rally and Rogers went on to record three strikeouts without a walk.

Harry Rasmussen, 5-4, goes for the Cardinals tonight against Don Carrithers, 4-3, in the last Expos home game of the season. The crowd of 5,520 Tuesday night nudged home attendance to 898,936, with tonight's crowd capping off the first year in which Montreal has missed the million mark.

A's Are in No Hurry To Clinch West Flag

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The champagne in Oakland's dressing room has been on ice for three days—and so have the A's.

Oakland's magic number for clinching baseball's American League West Division title has been at one and holding since Saturday night when they stretched their division lead to eight games. Since then Kansas City Royals have won three, the A's have lost three and the lead is down to five.

All of which leaves Oakland manager Alvin Dark unmoved.

"It would be silly to be concerned when you're five ahead with five to go," said Dark after the A's dropped a 4-3 decision to Minnesota Twins Tuesday night. "To tell you the truth I'm really not concerned about anything.

"But," Dark added, 'we'd like to win it soon and get it over with."

Kansas City kept its hopes alive with a 4-0 triumph over Texas Rangers.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland Indians edged Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, Chicago White Sox beat California Angels 5-4 and the Boston-New York and Detroit-Baltimore games were rained out. Boston remains four games ahead of Baltimore in the AL East.

Minnesota right-hander Bert Blyleven, 15-9, checked the A's on nine hits and struck out seven. Rod Carew doubled home a run for the Twins off Stan Bahnsen, 10-13, in the first. Steve Braun hit a sacrifice fly in the fifth and Dan Ford doubled home two runFs in the eighth.

VIDA BLUE

Bert Campaneris had a run-scoring single in the eighth for Oakland and Joe Rudi made it close with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth.

A's ace Vida Blue goes for the clincher tonight against Chicago's Jesse Jefferson, 5-10.

Kansas City used four pitchers to two-hit the Rangers. Doug Bird started but left in the second inning after injuring his arm. Rookie Bob McClure came in and continued the no-hitter until Roy Smalley singled with one out in the seventh. Steve Mingori and Mart yPattin finished up.

Frank White hit a home run for the Royals and Amos Otis knocked in two runs with a double and sacrifice fly.

George Hendrick hit his 24th home run of the season on Bill Travers' first pitch in the ninth inning to give Cleveland its victory. Boog Powell knocked in the other three Indian runs with his 26th homer.

Ken Henderson's solo home run in the seventh inning won it for Chicago. The White Sox picked up their first four runs in the second with the help of run-scoring singles by Jerry Hairston and Chet Lemon. Lee Stanton had a two-run single for California.

Cutler Boots Eskimos to 31-29 Win

Rodgers' One-man Show Not Enough

EDMONTON (CP) — Johnny Rodgers turned in a brilliant one-man display Tuesday night but narrowly failed in his bid to carry Montreal Alouettes to victory in a Canadian Football League game.

The Alouettes bowed 31-29 to Edmonton Eskimos when Dave Cutler kicked a 25-yard field goal, his third of the game, with three seconds remaining in the battle of the CFL conference leaders.

Edmonton opened a three-point lead over the second-place while Montreal remained two points ahead of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Rodgers dazzled a record crowd of 26,159 in newly-expanded Clarke Stadium by compiling 256 yards in total offence. The bulk of it came on 107 yards in four pass receptions and 126 yards—including a 101-yard touchdown burst—on five punt returns. One of the passes, a 25-yarder from Sonny Wade, also went for a touchdown.

In addition, Rodgers ran the ball twice for 10 yards and returned a kickoff for 13 yards. That he didn't do even more was a tribute to Larry Highbaugh, who shadowed Rodgers on many pass plays and used brilliant speed on kick returns to nullify some of Rodgers' talents.

Highbaugh, who did not play on offence, returned five punts for 81 yards and two kickoffs for 83 yards, a total of 164.

Montreal also got a touchdown from Peter Dalla Riva on a five-yard pass from Wade with four seconds left in the first half. Don Sweet produced two 45-yard field goals and a 13-yarder that put Montreal in front with 2:20 remaining.

Sweet also converted two touchdowns. Coach Marv Levy ordered the Alouettes to go for a two-point conversion in the third quarter and Wade missed Dalla Riva in the end zone.

John Konihowski scored two touchdowns and George McGowan one for Edmonton, all on passes from Tom Wilkinson, who was injured but came off the bench to hold the ball for Cutler's decisive field goal.

Cutler converted all three touchdowns and kicked two short field goals before the winner. He also got a single on a 61-yard field goal attempt moments before trying the 60-yarder which Rodgers turned into his touchdown romp.

Bruce Lemmerman, unimpressive in a relief appearance earlier in the game, handled the final march masterfully. He used short passes to McGowan and Roy Bell and the running of Bell and Calvin Harrell to kill the clock while advancing.

The Eskimos had a large statistical edge but got themselves in trouble in the last half when Lemmerman had a pass intercepted and Wilkinson and Bell committed costly fumbles. The hard-hitting contest was marked by six turnovers—four by the Alouettes—and 20 penalties.

Levy and Edmonton coach Ray Jauch agreed both clubs played well in the rematch of their 1974 Grey Cup final, which Montreal won. They were especially impressed in view of Montreal's weariness following a 20-17 victory Saturday against British Columbia Lions in Vancouver.

Edmonton drew eight penalties for 51 yards and Montreal 12 for 85 yards.

Edmonton's experiment with defensive end Ron Estay handling the punting was a success. In his pro debut, Estay averaged 40.7 yards in six attempts. Wade averaged 49.5 in nine punts.

LARRY HIGHBAUGH

Edmonton had 20 first downs and 401 yards in net offence as Wilkinson made 14 of 19 passes before he was forced out. Lemmerman hit on four of seven for 46 yards. Wade, hampered by a sore shoulder, was good on only 11 of 32—including one of 14 in the last half—for 171 yards.

Rodgers was virtually Montreal's only offensive threat. For Edmonton, Bell had 13 carries for 50 yards and Harrell 11 carries for 51 yards. Bell had a 37-yard burst called back by a penalty.

Konihowski caught six passes for 127 yards while McGowan, top receiver in the CFL, caught six for 76 yards.

New Start for Tom Scott

WINNIPEG (CP) — For Tom Scott, Winnipeg Blue Bomber wide receiver, tonight's Canadian Football League game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats will be like the beginning of the season.

"The toughest thing will probably be getting back into game conditions again," the 1974 Western Conference all-star said of his first game in nearly five weeks. "I always get nervous before a game but more so for this one because it's been so long, it's the middle of the season and we have to win."

"Close to five weeks is a long time to be out and it takes a lot out of you," the five-foot, 11-inch, 180-pound receiver said in an interview. "I couldn't do anything the first couple of weeks because of the torn hamstring and the rest of your body goes quickly. It's tough to get back into shape by yourself but I feel I'm 100 per cent ready."

Bomber coach Bud Riley, confident his offence can show drastic improvement over its last outing when it managed just one point and three first downs, said the return of Scott will make a difference.

"I don't know how sharp he will be but he'll make the other team respect him and the defence will have to be conscious of him," Riley explained. "He could add quite a bit more to our offence."

Scott's return is one of only two offensive changes made by Riley since the Bombers' last game two weeks ago, a 15-1 loss to British Columbia. The other sees Buddy Brown reinstated to take over at right guard.

Meanwhile, the Hamilton defence has been strengthened with the return of veteren Garney Henley to the deep safety position.

Henley suffered a broken nose Sunday in Hamilton's 28-28 tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders but he'll play and be looking for a record-breaking pass interception. His next interception will be No. 59 and move him ahead of former CFL record holder Don Sutherin.

The game will be televised on the CTV national network beginning at 9 p.m. EDT.

A Basketball Lesson

BOGOTA, Colombia AP — The Soviet Union dominated the secon half and swamped Canada 103-32 Tuesday night in an opening-round game at the women's world basketball championships.

Canada trailed by 17 points at the half, but the Soviet Union had 54-20 edge in the lop-sided second half. Carol Turney of Chilliwack, B.C., with 14 points, and Sheila Striker of Vancouver, with 11, topped the Canadian scorers.

In Tuesday's other games, Japan edged the United States 73 — 71, Mexico defeated Hungary 59 — 52, Czechoslovakia whipped Australia 62-42 and South Korea beat Senegal 100-33.

Now It's Bowling

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Sports entrepreneur Gary Davidson, whose last promotion was last year's bankrupted version of the World Football League, has a new venture.

Davidson and Max Muhleman, who teamed to create not only the WFL but also the World Hockey Association and the International Track Association, now are promoting what they call World Championship Bowling.

"In most sports the pros pull the amateurs," said Davidson, in announcing his newest venture Tuesday. "In bowling, there are over 60 million amateurs already."

This marks Davidson's return to sports promoting for the first time since the owners of the WFL ousted him during the 1974 season.

Last Hurrah For Lancaster

REGINA (CP) — After 15 years in the Canadian Football League, including one Grey Cup victory, a record 268 touchdown passes and a record 39,751 yards gained passing, Ron Lancaster had decided to quit.

In a brief interview Tuesday, the 36-year-old quarterback, now in his 13th year with Saskatchewan Roughriders, confirmed he will leave the playing-field at the end of this season.

Beyond that, he said, "I don't have any plans." He has made no decision on seeking a coaching job or leaving the football open."

It was a decision long in the making. For two years, there have been continual rumors of his imminent departure, but Lancaster only recently gave the Riders the official word.

Though bothered this month with a knee injury, Lancaster said it was not a factor in his retirement decision. He declined to add any further comment "at this time."

General manager Ken Preston, who has directed the club for 18 years, said he would not try to persuade Lancaster to change his mind.

"If he thinks he's capable, we'd be glad to have him, but I think we'll leave it up to him to make the decision."

So far, Preston said, no thought has been given to whether any other position with the club could be offered to Lancaster, who has been acting as an assistant coach.

Preparations are already under way, however, to find a successor to him.

"We have a couple of good boys on our negotiation list that we don't want to divulge," said Preston. Also available is back-up quarterback Randy Mattingly, a 25-year-old now in his second year with the team.

Lancaster's career passing records, which also cover the two years he spent in Ottawa before coming here, include a record 318 interceptions suffered, about 12 for every 100 completions.

But the 5-foot-10-inch quarterback has been dominant in play-calling. His knack of s[illegible]ing dramatic comebacks in the dying moments of a game has led to fans almost expecting what is locally called the "two-minute miracles."

During his years with Riders, the team has won 126 games, lost 70 and tied seven. They made the Grey Cup contest four times, the last in 1972, but won only once, in 1966.

With a pass-completion record of 53.8 per cent this season, Lancaster, an import from Wittenberg College who acquired non-import status here, is slightly ahead of his career percentage of 53.6.

Named all-Canadian quarterback in 1970 and 1973, he also won the Schenley Award in 1970 as most outstanding player.

Learning Is the Thing And Don't Forget It

Well, here we are, all set for the word to come in that Belleville Minor Hockey Association representative teams are about to launch their their third season in Ontario Minor Hockey Association AAA competition.

When city teams were campaigning in the AA category, the feeling was the youngsters were not matched against tough enough opponents. That certainly is not the case in Triple A company.

But there were signs last season that in some divisions at least, our skaters were showing the ability to hold their own with the kids from the larger centres.

Highlight of the season for our side, of course, was the performance of the minor midget squad. That team gave an excellent account of itself, expecially in post season playoff action.

This time around, those charged with the responsibility of running these OMHA squads, are looking to the new season with a more comfortable feeling than was the case in the past.

No, word has not been received that clubs in Kingston, Oshawa and Peterborough will be easier to take this time around. There is no reason to believe teams from those communities will be lacking in any respect.

But with the inclusion of operations in Kingston Township and Trenton in the AAA series for regular season play, that old problem of travel will be of less consequence during the 1975-76 campaign.

Except for Peterborough, the grouping could be called a highway 401 League.

And now, there should be fewer long hauls for most of the clubs entered.

How will Kingston Township and Trenton, destined to return AA classification once OMHA playoffs start, fare in this faster company?

No doubt there will be nights when officials of the minor hockey associations in these two centres will wonder why they ever made the move. But in the long run, Township and Trenton teams should benefit from exposure in the higher echelon.

Those in charge of these teams will need to learn how to keep their young charges up for games when defeat seems to be almost a foregone conclusion. But it can be an excellent training ground — for players, coaches, and managers alike.

There's nothing wrong with learning how to lose and to cope with it. The key word here, is LEARN.

SLICES — I like that idea of a hockey equipment exchange.

In case you missed it in Tuesday's Intelligencer, Tom Neill is willing to organize an exchange program.

No doubt there is plenty of hockey equipment lying idle in the city.

Put it to use.

Call Tom at 968-7571, after 6 p.m.

Belleville Olympics have been given permission to postpone their scheduled Bay of Quinte Soccer Association Trenton Challenge Cup game with Quinte Hellenic originally slated for Saturday.

Olympics have a Premier Soccer League date this evening at Sir Jame Whitney School with Hellenic. Kickoff is set for 6 p.m. Sunday, the club opens Buxcey Cup play with Kingston Portuguese the visitor at Sir James Whitney for a 2 p.m. match.

It's easy to see that a Saturday game would have been a little much and apparently BQSA officials agreed. The Trenton Challenge Cup fixture will be rescheduled.

Got a little long winded yesterday and as a result, missing from the column was information on the Brampton — Belleville Elliott Motors Ontario Baseball Association final series should the city team lose the flip for the odd game.

Should the coin flip go in Brampton's favor, there will be one game here (at Parkdale, Saturday at 1 p.m.) with the teams taking up the series in Brampton Sunday where second and third (if it is necessary) games will be played.

George Beer's Thurlow Midgets, sponsored by Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund, can wrap up the Ontario Baseball Association C title in Waterdown, Saturday. The Thurlow squad leads the best of three final 1-0.

And in OBA Bantam C semi-final play, the third and deciding game in the Thurlow-Merriton set goes Saturday, in Merriton.

Dettman Fires Winner to Sink Bruins

Late Comeback Lifts Bocats to 4-0 Record

SCARBOROUGH (Special) - Whitby Young Bruins scored three times in the first five minutes of the third period but even that wasn't enough to keep the high flying Belleville Bobcats from winning their fourth consecutive pre-season game here, Tuesday night.

The Cats scored twice in the third to earn a tough 5-4 victory. Pete Dettman, former defenceman with the now defunct Peterborough Lions, tallied the winning marker at 18:18 of the final 20 minutes of play. Scott Samis drew the assist.

Belleville made the trip with an abbreviated roster. Due to injuries, illness and suspensions, the Cats had only 14 players and two goaltenders in the lineup.

The locals jumped into a 1-0 lead just 27 seconds after the opening face off when Grant Goegan tallied on a pass from Mike Crawford.

Les Turner put the home squad back on even terms near the end of the first.

Belleville got the only two goals of the second period. Andy Ricketts scored the first from Tony Meagher and John Murphy and Robb Chase collected the second on a pass play with Samis and Paul Tilley.

Whitby rallied with three fast ones to start off the third. They came from Larry Graham, Ken Elson and Dan Joly.

Tilley, a teammate of Dettman's in Peterborough, lifted Belleville to a 4-4 tie at 14:31. His marker was unassisted. Then with less than two minutes to go Dettman fired the winner.

Belleville was assessed a dozen minor penalties in the contest, while the Bruins took nine minors and two five minute majors.

The Cats now put in a couple of home games before the regular season begins. Friday, Oshawa is in Belleville at 9 p.m. and Sunday Belleville is host to Kingston at 8:15 p.m. Both games are at the Memorial Arena.

Junior Chargers Blank Moira

Trojans Charge Past Centennial

Despite a late fourth quarter rally the Centennial Chargers could do little to hamper the strong attack of the Moira Trojans Tuesday as the Moira team rolled over the visitors by a score of 36-14.

In Tuesday's junior Bay of Quinte Football League contest, the Chargers were much more successful. The Centennial squad ran their record to 2-0 with a 20-0 win over Bayside Red Devils

In the game played at Moira, Centennail was running hot and cold, at times being able to contain the ground thrusts of the winners, but losing out in the passing department.

Moira, at the end of the first half of play, had compiled a 13-0 lead on touchdowns by Joe Molaski in the first quarter, which was unconverted and Larry Walsh in the second quarter. Walsh's touchdown was converted by Ralph Kollars giving the home team a good edge heading into the final two quarters.

In the second half, things did not go much better for the Chargers as they could rarely get within range of the opposition goal. An interception, at the midfield mark early in the third quarter, set the stage for Moira's third touch down. John Lowe took the handoff from quarterback Tony Bennett and ran the 50 yard distance for the major score.

Kollars was again accurate on the axtra point attempt which left the winners with a commanding 20-0 lead.

Centennial got on the scoreboard at the beginning of the final quarter when Rob Scully crossed the goal line. The highlight of the second half though, came in the form of two on-side kicks, one by each team.

Centennial kicked the first one, after Scully's major, resulting in a Charger first down although the ball did not travel more than seven yards. After the final Moira touchdown by Rick North which was converted, Moira decided to try a little razzle-dazzle of their own. Lined up for the kick-off, Centennial watched in amazement as the Trojans kicked the ball just hard enough for it to clear the tee. There, it was gobbled up by another Moira player.

The referee, awarded the home team first down, signaling an on-side kick, but later in the game changed his mind about the ball having to travel ten yards, just before Centennial was about to kick off. Doug Bastedo scored Centennial's second and final touchdown with less than a minute remaining in the game. Bastedo picked off a Trojan pass and scurried into the end zone. The two point conversion attempt was good as the clock ran out on the visitors.

The junior Chargers victory was their second straight by 20 points and left their defensive record flawless. They also shutout the opposition in their opening encounter.

Terry Thompson scored the first two Charger TDs on 3 yard drives up the middle. His first one came in the second quarter, while the second was one of two scored by his team in the third period. John Royer collected the other on a 21 yard gallop off left tackle.

Mike Curly found room in the end zone and hauled down a two point conversion pass to round out the scoring.

Industrial Golf Expects to Grow

Union Carbide, Stewart-Warner and Belleville Golf and Country Club were one, two, three in the Belleville Industrial Golf League standings.

Other entries in the league were Canada Cement LaFarge, three teams from Corby Distilleries, Motorland Chrysler, UIC, Belleville Fire Department, Brooke Bond and Westwood Parmaceutical.

The four-man teams, operating at Belleville Golf Club, Marysville, opened play in May and wound things up, Septmber 16.

A tournament was staged to close out the season, Sunday.

Leading the way in the low gross department were Bob Strahan, Al Ryan, Al Lyons, Bill Strahan, George Hammett, Wayne Pascoe and Doug Doolittle.

In low net, it was Jack Hughes, Jack O'Neil, Roy Garvin, John Bohan, George Clement, Randy Loewen and Walt Wickett.

Closest to the pin was Harry Ridley. Taking hidden hole honors was Steve Bakey and judged most honest golfer, Lanny Hagerdorn.

It is expected the league will expand for the 1976 season.

Union Carbide's Bob Jones will serve as president next year.

Quinte Zippers Victors

Zippers topped East Northumberland Secondary School (Brighton) 49-31 in the opener of the Bay of Quinte High School Girls' Basketball Tuesday.

Quinte led 22-19 at the half and, getting excellent results from a man to man defence, held Brighton to 12 points after the interval.

Anne Sullivan and Brenda Fisk headed the balanced Quinte attack, each connecting for 10 points. Checking in with eight each were Joan Meagher, Mary Ellen Graham, and Lynn Martin.

Top point-getter for the losers was Sheila Smith with 10

Which Way to Move?

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Toronto Giants, Seattle White Sox, Chicago A's. Those are strange sounding names but they are some of the combinations that could be occupying the thinking of major-league baseball owners assembled here today.

The owners will hear a report from the franchise committee created 10 months ago to deal with a multitude of the game's problems. Among those headaches are the overcrowded baseball population of the San Francisco-Oakland bay area with two clubs battling for attention from a section that seems able to support only one.

The solution, it would appear, would be to move one of the teams. But it is not all that simple. There are leases involved and breaking them could mean litigation, a problem baseball officials are all too familiar with in Seattle.

There was this team called the Pilots, who departed Seattle in 1970 after one season to become the Milwaukee Brewers. That left some unhappy people in Seattle and they initiated an anti-trust suit which is still pending.

The folks there would gladly forget the whole thing, provided baseball supplies the city with another team for 1976.

A Seattle group has offered $15 million for the Giants, whom Horace Stoneham wouldn't mind selling. But Stoneham's price for the club and related real estate holdings has been quoted between $16-$18 million.

Another solution for Seattle would be a northwestward move of the financially-troubled Chicago White Sox, another for-sale franchise. That would allow Charles O. Finley to transfer Oakland A's to Chicago and leave the bay area to Stoneham and the Giants, an intriguing solution.

But then, what happens to Toronto, which has made it's own bid to buy the San Francisco club?

And how about Washington, deserted twice by the American League but assured a team by commissioner Bowie Kuhn?

And what of New Orleans, with its expensive Superdome sitting in the heart of the downtown area?

Those are the dilemmas facing the brass assembled for this meeting.

However, when today's meeting ends, it is also possible that no moves will be approved.

WHITE WINS SERIES

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Dave White of Bramalea, Ont. clinched the Bulova Formula 100 championship auto racing series during the weekend, winning the seventh and final race ahead of Nigel Gough of Newmarket, Ont. It was White's third win of the season and left him with 85 points in the series. Gough finished second with 71.

GARRY MONAHAN

Caps Whip Sabres

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The sophomore Washington Capitals upset the Adams Division champion Buffalo Sabres 3-1 in National Hockey League pre-season action Tuesday night and manager-coach Milt Schmidt credits the intense competition for jobs on the Washington roster.

The Capitals used three goalies, all rookies, in the contest at London, Ont., and all played well.

"Those three guys really played well for us," said Schmidt. "Not a spot on this team is set and we have to take another look at the goalies."

Other NHL exhibition action Tuesday saw Pittsburgh Penguins beat New York Islanders 5-1 while Montreal Canadiens beat the Canucks 5-2 at Vancouver.

The Capitals won only eight of 80 games in 1974-72, their first NHL season.

The Washington goalies were Grant Cole in the first period, Garth Malarchuk in the second and Bernie Wolfe in the third.

Cole, who played for Barrie Flyers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league last season, stopped 18 shots to shut out the Sabres in the first period.

Derek Smith opened the scoring for Buffalo in the second period but Washington's Mike Marson tied it just 18 seconds later.

Rookie Brian Kinsella scored for the Capitals midway in the final period and Bob Gryp added an empty-net goal in the final minute.

Gary Bromley guarded the Sabres nets for the first 30 minutes and Don Edwards played the last half.

It was Washington's first win in four pre-season games and first ever over Buffalo.

At Uniondale, N.Y., the Penguins gained some revenge over the Islanders who knocked Pittsburgh out of the playoffs last season. Lowell MacDonald scored two goals to lead the Pittsburgh victory.

One of MacDonald's goals came in the second period when he beat goalie Bill Smith on a penalty shot.

Pierre Larouche, Jean Pronovost and Dave Burrows also scored for Pittsburgh and Gary Howatt got the lone Islanders' goal.

The Vancouver game drew 15,170 fans.

The Canadiens got goals from Glen Goldup, Jim Roberts, Doug Risebrough, Murray Wilson and Guy Lafleur. Gerry O'Flaherty and Dennis Ververgaert scored for Vancouver.

Garry Monahan of the Canucks suffered a severe gash to his left leg in the second period when hit by a skate during a goalmouth collision.

NFL Negotiations

No Settlement Is in Sight

CHICAGO (AP) — After 20 months of management-union negotiations, the same contract issues, highlighted by the controversial Rozelle Rule, continue to cloud the future of the National Football League.

Two days of collective bargaining discussions ended in a stalemate Tuesday with both sides agreeing that the same basic non-economic issues still plague a possible labor settlement.

With the breakoff in negotiations, the rank-and-file membership of some 950 players will vote beginning Thursday on management's latest contract offer, which representatives of the 26 NFL owners say will cost them about $30 million in new money over a five-year period.

Sentiment among the NFL union leaders, who met here in face-to-face confrontations with owners and into the wee hours among themselves, was that the contract proposal indicated no significant improvement on economic benefits nor a major change in the Rozelle compensation rule.

The union leaders, including the various team player representatives, also indicated that the proposal would be rejected in the vote by the membership.

There was speculation that New England Patriots, who prompted the meetings of Monday and Tuesday with their strike last week, would reject the contract proposal unanimously. But no one would venture a prediction if they would again walk out and refuse to play Sunday against Miami Dolphins.

Under the memorandum of agreement last Thursday, which brought about management's proposal Monday, there would be three days of negotiations after the offer was made and then five days for the players to vote, the results to be made public by Oct. 2.

At the time, however, the Patriots said they would decide if management had made a meaningful offer. It was understood that the New England team, which had a contingent of some 15 here at their own expense, was frustrated to the point of exasperation by what they believed to be management's unbending stance in the negotiations.

Other union leaders, among them Dick Anderson, the Miami Dolphins' player representative and a member of the executive board, didn't think there would be a strike because "the players can't afford to lose a season's salary."

The union officials said the owners' offer would be presented to the players for a vote without an official recommendation.

The negotiators agreed that management and the union are still far apart on at least seven issues, the same as they have been since the previous contract expired Jan. 31, 1974.

The issues, according to both sides, are the so-called Rozelle Rule on compensation for a player moving to another club after playing out his option; impartial arbitration on grievances; pre-season pay; union representation in the pension plan; an agency shop; squad size limitations, and bargaining changes in the NFL constitution and bylaws.

Sport Briefs

ROOKIE LOST

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie Jim Rice of Boston Red Sox might be lost for the rest of the baseball season due to a broken left hand suffered when struck by a pitch in Sunday's 6-5 American League win over Detroit Tigers. Rice, whose 102 runs batted in is second best in the league, was taken to hospital for X-rays. A hospital spokesman said he had the hand placed in a cast. Surgery may be required.

DEFENCEMAN TRADED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues announced Sunday they have sent defenceman Larry Sacharuk, 23, to New York Rangers in a National Hockey League trade for left-winger Bob MacMillan, 22. The Blues also announced that defencemen Don Whelden, George Tower and Mike Thompson, right wing Jim McCrimmon and left wing John Wensink were sent to the minors.

Reputation Becomes Weary

EDMONTON (CP) — The traditional portrayal of Presbyterians as stern and humorless gets "a bit wearying" for Rev. Ian MacSween of Strathcona Presbyterian Church.

"We've been cast in the role of the Victorian, teetotalling Calvinist.

"It gets a bit wearying after a while hearing generation after generation mouthing the same things."

Mr. MacSween, who has been a minister for 26 years, says Presbyterians aren't about to "shove beliefs down someone's throat."

"We've never made any claims that we have a corner on the truth, but we feel we hav a valid and distinctive witness to make to the modern world."

However, he added that Presbyterians—now celebrating their 100th anniversary in Canada—haven't wavered in their commitment to the teachings of John Calvin, John Knox and other Protestant reformers.

That tradition includes the necessity of creeds or a confession of faith and the presence of elders as rulers in a congregation. The minister serves as a teaching elder.

Baptism and communion are the church's only sacraments, and tabs are kept on church attendance.

With about 200,000 members, Mr. MacSween said the Presbyterian church hasn't kept up with population growth, but at least it isn't declining.

"Besides, what's so good about a big church? People seem to think big is better, but I'm inclined to disagree with that."

Ecumenism for Mr. MacSween means co-operation among diverse groups, not a destruction of diversity through church union.

Has Sight Restored Twice

REGINA (CP) — Francis Gartner has twice experienced what all blind people dream of.

His sight has been restored on two different occasions.

Blinded for 11 years following an explosion during a high school chemistry experiment, Mr. Gartner got his vision back two years ago after a series of operations in New York.

Tiny plastic cylinders replaced the destroyed tissues and finally enabled him to see well enough to read, do carpentry work and enjoy the antics of his four-year-old daughter Carina.

When his vision began to cloud after the operation, he was unable to read, couldn't ride his bicycle and became concerned he would lose the sight which had cost about $10,000 in surgery and hospital expenses to restore. The cost was shared by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB), the Lions Sight and Service Foundations in Saskatchewan and the Saskatchewan medical care insurance commission.

Arrangements were made through the CNIB for Mr. Gartner to visit his doctor in New York again and one trip to the physician restored his sight. The 10-minute opration involved cost only $50.

"When I first went into the doctor's office he said there was nothing he could do," said Mr. Gartner who processes x-rays at Regina General Hospital.

"Then he added more drops, discovered the problem and scraped off the film that had grown over the cylinders."

On his return from New York, one of the first things he saw was his new daughter, born the day after he arrived.

Mirabel Airport Now a Paradox

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP) — Mirabel International Airport is a paradox.

Although the terminal was designed to be as convenient as possible for passengers, several major inconveniences are anticipated after it opens Oct. 4.

While Mirabel becomes Montreal's international airport, the existing facilities at Dorval, nearer to Montreal, will be used exclusively for domestic and North American flights. During the 1980s, United States-Canada flights may also be moved to Mirabel.

Most passengers deplaning at Mirabel from Europe will have to take a bus 35 miles to Dorval to catch a connecting flight to such points as Ottawa, Winnipeg or Vancouver. The reverse is also true for passengers from those points who wish to use Montreal as the point of origin for a European trip.

Airlines have stated they will not book connecting flights with a time difference of less than 2½ hours.

Although the federal transport department is preparing facilities at Mirabel so passengers can catch direct flights to Ottawa, Toronto and Quebec City, an Air Canada official said in an interview that it is not yet certain these flights will be implemented.

The general feeling within the industry is that whenever passengers have a choice between Toronto and Montreal for beginning or ending a European flight, Toronto will be chosen.

Imagine an Ottawa resident holidaying in Paris. He can return by Air France to Mirabel and then take a bus to Dorval before catching a connecting flight home. An alternative is to fly Air Canada to Toronto from Paris and catch an earlier connecting flight home.

Mirabel will also present some problems for Montrealers. Those accustomed to a short drive from downtown to Dorval will be faced with a 35-mile trip that may last an hour, depending on the time of day.

Special roads to Mirabel are incomplete so the Laurentian Autoroute with two 25-cent toll booths must be used.

Bus service from Montreal to Mirabel is expected to cost $5 one way compared with $2.75 now charged between downtown and Dorval.

The Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission and the Laval Transit Commission won the contracts for the busing between those two cities and Mirabel.

The Montreal transit commission is strike prone. In cases of a strike, travellers will be treated to meter-rate taxi fares between downtown and Mirabel, expected to run $20-$25

Originally, a rapid transit system was to link Mirabel with Montreal. The project has not been scrapped, said manager of the New Montreal International Airport Office.

However, construction of such a system will be delayed until Phase II is implemented, Mr. Baribeau said. The second phase of the airport's master plan is expected to be constructed in the 1980s.

Phase I, which is what will greet Prime Minister Trudeau and assorted other politicians Oct. 4, consists of one passenger terminal, two runways, a cargo and maintenance area, the second highest control tower in the world (215 feet) and three service areas where passengers board or disembark from aircraft via passenger transport vehicles (PTV).

The PTVs are like buses which can mate with the terminal and then drive to the aircraft and mate with it. Passengers are loaded and unloaded from the PTVs without ever walking up or down stairs or facing the elements.

A hydraulic system allows the body of the PTVs to move vertically so they can mate with aircraft of varying heights.

Mirabel is the first airport in the world to be built exclusively around the concept of PTVs, said Miss Michele Gay, an information officer with the airport project office.

PTVs, which can carry 120 passengers, are in use in some other Canadian and foreign airports although no one airport was built to use them exclusively, Miss Gay said.

But an Air Canada official, familiar with PTVs, said he does not like them.

"No longer can passengers run in at the last minute and catch a plane," said the official, who declined to be identified.

"Once the PTV leaves the terminal, no more passengers can board the plane."

Use of the PTVs eliminates the necessity of having dozens of small waiting rooms by each gate and the long corridors connecting those rooms.

"A passenger will only have to walk 300 feet and that will be in a straight line," Miss Gay said.

The terminal, 300 feet wide by 1,160 feet long, is designed so that all lines of passenger traffic are in a straight line perpendicular to the street entrance of each airline's ticket counter.

Adjacent to the ticket counters are the security and customs booths which open onto a common waiting room. In this waiting room will be the doors leading to the waiting PTVs.

"It will work beautifully until the first major snowstorm of the year," the Air Canada official said.

During a major snowstorm when planes are grounded, thousands of passengers may be forced to spend hours waiting in an air terminal. He did not think the Mirabel terminal is large enough to handle such an emergency.

Mr. Baribeau said the terminal is designed to process 4,000 people in an hour, including a maximum 3,300 emplaning passengers or 2,900 deplaning passengers.

If Mirabel's services are taxed, a second terminal can be added when Phase II is constructed, Mr. Baribeau said. A third phase of expansion probably would not be built until the next century.

During the first year of operation, Mirabel is expected to handle about 3.7 million passengers. Dorval will handle about five million

By the year 2025, Mirabel is expected to handle as many as 530,000 aircraft movements and 60 million people annually. To accommodate such flows, as many as six terminals and six runways may be constructed.

Artichokes Replace Sugar Beets

MORDEN, Man. (CP) — Within four years, artichokes may be used to supplement the production of local sugar beets and imported sugar cane for sweetening soft drinks, a team of researchers has predicted.

After four years of study at the Morden Experimental Farm in southern Manitoba, the researchers have concluded the production of helianthus tuberosus—or the Jerusalem artichoke—as a commercial crop is entirely possible within the next four years if adequate financing for a refinery is forthcoming.

Dr. Mark Stauffer, a member of the federally-funded research team, said the artichoke can be used in a variety of ways and may eventually reduce the price of sugar at the retail level.

"It will give Canada a degree of sufficiency in production of sweeteners."

The vegetable is about twice as large as a sugar beet and about 1½ times as sweet. At the research station, the team has experimented with several varieties of plants to determine its growing capability.

The plant's taste is one of its favorable attributes, said Dr. Stauffer.

"It has the crunchiness of a carrot and a pleasant flavor that resembles the water chestnut. . . . It has extremely good potential as a new crop, particularly on the Prairies."

Size and shape vary according to the strain developed, Dr. Stauffer said. One variety has a knobby tuber, while another is shaped like a sausage.

As well as an alternative for sugar beet production, the Jerusalem artichoke is equipped with other handy characteristics, including a hardiness against winter weather, twice-a-year harvest potential and a low calorie level beneficial for persons on diets.

When the vegetable is refined into sugar, the sweetness is comparable to sucrose—the common table sugar—but with a lower caloric content.

BIRTHS

CULLODEN — Ron and Mary are pleased to announce the birth of a daughter, Stacey Lynn, on Tuesday, September 23, 1975 at Belleville General Hospital. Weight 6 lbs., 15¼ ozs.

McMURDER — I Kenneth Allan Wayne wish to announce my arrival on Monday, September 22, 1975 at the Belleville General Hospital. My proud parents are Karenanne (nee Madden) and Glen McMurder of Frankford.

HOLOWAY — Don and Donna (nee Auger) are happy to announce the birth of their daughter Angela Marie on September 14th, weighing 7 lbs.

IN MEMORIAM

MORRIS — In loving memory of a dear brother, Sandy A., who passed away Sept. 23, 1974.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Always tender, fond and true.
There's not a day dear brother,
We do not think of you.
—Never forgotten by sister, Clara Seames.

BADGLEY — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away Sept. 24, 1970.

Just as you were you will always be,
Treasured forever in our memory.
—In fond memory, Bert and Helen.

ARNOTT — In loving memory of a dear sister, Marguerite Jessie, who passed away September 24th, 1967.

You suffered much in silence,
Your spirit did not bend,
You faced your task with courage,
Until the very end.
God saw you getting weary,
He knew you needed rest,
His garden must be beautiful,
For He only picks the best.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by her family.

ROLLINS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Ronald Rollins who passed away September 23, 1973.

Time rolls on and I am reminded,
Of a day my heart was crushed,
When God took you, oh, so quickly,
And we all in gloom were thrust,
In the bloom of life, death claimed you,
In the prime of manhood days.
But I hope some day to meet you,
And to be with you always.
—Ever loved by Ina and family.

$36,900.00

Yes and worth every nickel of it. The location is good, in the Parkdale area. 3 bedrooms and a den or 4th bedroom, and the master bedroom is huge, 13 ft. by 20 ft. It is well worth your while to take time to check this one out. Give us a call tonight and we shall go and see it.

FIREPLACE

Yes, a fireplace is nice this time of year to take the chill off in this large living room. The high ranch style of this house is very useful, allowing for the two car garage in the basement. There is also a separate dining room, eating area in the large kitchen and 3 good size bedrooms. Almost 1,400 square feet of floor space. This home must be seen to be appreciated. A call tonight will get you an appointment.

PRICE

Be on the right end of the totem pole in the executive subdivision. In considering resale value it is always best to be in the lower price range of an area, not the highest. You will be pleasantly surprised what this house has to offer at this price level. A four bedroom high ranch bungalow. Phone tonight for further details.

NEW LISTING

And we are proud to add this one to our list. Three bedroom bungalow spotlessly clean, nicely decorated. You can move right in and make yourself at home. The large Hollywood style kitchen adds to the spacious feeling to this residence. Approximately 70 feet over all, including the two car garage. There are many nice features to this home. It must be seen to be appreciated. A phone call will get you immediate service, call tonight!

NEW YORK (AP) — A strike by Broadway theatre musicians over wage demands shuttered the nine theatres—each presenting a musical—of the 16 Broadway theatres represented by the league of New York Theatres and Producers. The other seven theatres, presnting dramas, opened as usual.

Members of the more than 200-member Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians voted unanimously Wdnesday night to strike after negotiations collapsed early in the day.

They picketed outside such dramatic shows as Equus and kept the curtain from rising on such musicals as Chicago, The Wiz, Grease, Pippin and Raisin.

Producer Alexander Cohen estimated the cost of Broadway's first strike in seven years at roughly 140,000. The last strike was a three-day walkout in 1968 by Actors Equity.

Picketing outside Pippin, cellist Wendy Brennan said: "We're going to stand here as long as it takes, even if it takes 2½ years"

But manager Steward Ross of the Royale, where Grease was playing said he didn't think it would take that long.

"I imagine it will be a short strike because, of the tradition of the theatre that the show must go on," he said.

LONDON (AP) — American rock music star Alice Cooper has pledged to "exile" himself from Europe. Britain excluded, after claiming his entourage was accused of stealing from a Munich, West Germany, hotel.

Cooper told reporters as he arrived here Thursday night that the hotel tried to charge his party of about 40 persons for two nights when it only stayed one.

He said that when the bill was refused, the hotel management "accused us of stealing towels, television sets an dother items from the hotel rooms. This was absolute rubbish."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cindy Birdsong, a member of the soul singing group The Supremes and her husband, Charles D. Hewlett, have agreed to terms for a divorce, Ms. Birdsong's attorney said Thursday.

Ms. Birdsong and Hewlett were married on May 24, 1970. It was her first marriage and his second.

Ms. Birdsong's attorney said the divorce action was filed last March on grounds of irreconcilable differences. He did not disclose details of the settlement, but said Ms. Birdsong would have custody of the couple's son, David, 2.

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet pantomime actor— described by Western observers as the best in the country and possibly on a par with Marcel Marceau—said Thursday he wants to renounce his citizenship and emigrate to the West because of Kremlin persecution of his work.

Boris Amarantov, 35, who has performed in the Soviet Union and abroad with a mime theatre that carries his name, said in a letter to Marceau: "I cannot, and have no wish to work any longer in this country." He asked Marceau to send him a letter of invitation to France.

Copies of the letter to Marceau, with whom he has worked, and one to Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny were given to Western reporters.

In his letter to Marceau, he said he could not accept that "the pantomime theatre I set up has been persecuted, closed several times, its inventory burned and meetings arranged where people tried to blacken my name and reputation in art."

In Amarantov's letter to Podgorny, he said: "In its five years of existence, the theatre has been dissolved three times and several dozen times has had to present its productions for official approval.

"I was without work, humiliated and the object of slander," he wrote. "I ask for permission to renounce my Soviet citizenship as I wish to emigrate in order to continue my creative activity."

What if your pay cheque was late?

Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.
Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.
For many of us this would be a calamity. Of course, you want to be paid promptly. All of us do. The boy or girl who delivers your Intelligencer will appreciate being paid promptly.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, Sept. 25

Aries (March 21-April 19) You'll have some doubts about the way you handle a serious situation today. Later, you'll see the decision you made was a wise one.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If you put on your old thinking cap you'll find a way to buy something without putting your budget in jeopardy.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) A problem facing you today will not take as long as you think to solve. Keep your schedule flexible. You might get a surprise invitation later in the day.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll fare much better in business matters than you did yesterday, especially if you go in with a positive attitude.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You can easily get others to go along with your way of doing things today if you guide, rather than push them.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The next few days can be beneficial careerwise if you keep your nose to the wheel. A job well done could increase your earnings.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You tend to look at the darker side at first today, but fortunately you'll realize every situation has many right facets.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Personal gain will come your way today through several unusual channels. The sources are not likely to be related.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're exceptionally sharp at negotiation today, if you put your mind to it. It's a good time for some horse trading.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be willing to be of service to others where you can. Your good deeds will be the seeds for a future harvest.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your personality doesn't come into full bloom till later in the day. That's when you'll collect your admirers.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You still have a lot of things going for you that aren't apparent to those you'll be dealing with today. That's why you'll come up a winner.

Opening lead—10 ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

There is no absolute rule about the correct play at many notrump contracts.

Once dummy's jack of hearts holds the first trick, South sees that if the diamond finesse is on everything will be fine. If it loses and East holds the ace of spades, he is likely to be down two tricks.

One declarer in an important team match decided to run the five club tricks right away on the theory that East and West might discard badly. They didn't! East signalled in spades and West never let a heart go. Then, when West got in with the king of diamonds he led a spade. East took his ace and returned a heart and set declarer two tricks.

The other South decided to start with the diamond finesse. West was in and led his seven of spades. The four was played from dummy. East thought a while and played the jack, whereupon South made his contract with an overtrick.

West blamed East for the debacle, but we rather blame West. If he had led the 10 of spades, East would have had no excuse, but that seven-spot lead could have been third best from king-10-seven.

Ask the Jacobys

A sad letter from Vermont reads in part: "Sitting South, I opened one spade with: ♠AK732 ♥K98 ♦2 ♣A1043. West bid two hearts. North and East passed and I went to two spades. This came around to East who doubled. We were in the soup then, but even more so when my partner rescued me in three diamonds. Will you comment?"

Our correspondent should have passed. It is always dangerous to rebid a five-card suit opposite a partner who has not bid anything.

Need Seen for History Of World's Common People

HALIFAX (CP) — A visiting professor at the Dalhousie University School of Library Science says the world needs histories of common people rather than those concentrating on the stories of kings and great men.

"The stuff of history is to see the faces in the crowd of common people," said Victor Neuburg in an interview. "A general history of the common people has to be done."

Prof. Neuburg is especially interested in the history of popular literature, which achieved widespread readership during the 18th century.

Much of this literature reflects the simplicity of an unsophisticated oral culture, and the "chatbooks" of the 18th century deal with the eternal themes of survival, boy-meets-girl and portrayals of common life.

The literature of today is "quite different" from that of the 18th century, Prof. Neuburg said. The turning point came in 1897 when Pearson's Weekly achieved a circulation of more than a million. This, he said, heralded the beginning of mass media.

The importance of popular readings must not be underestimated, he said. The revolutions in France and in America would never have taken place without large numbers of presumably educated thinking people.

Ukrainian League Still Survives

EDMONTON (CP) — P. J. Lazarowich has moved up in the world.

He started life in Canada more than 70 years ago in a home dug out of the earth. Today, he is a lawyer who lives in an apartment penthouse.

In many ways, Dr. Lazarowich epitomizes the ideals of the Ukrainian Self Reliance League of Canada, the organization he helped found in 1927.

The league, which held its biennial convention in Edmonton recently comprises groups women, youth, community centres and institutes. Dedicated to preserving and promoting Ukrainian culture, its motto is "Our strength lies within ourselves."

"Self-reliance and self-respect and self-help—that's what it means," says Dr. Lazarowich, who holds an honorary degree of canon law from St. Andrew's College in Winnipeg.

He has lived those words in making a life in Canada.

His family moved to Wakaw, Sask., from the Ukraine when he was two years old.

"It was rugged and primitive. My father brought only a small amount of money, but he brought a big family of eight youngsters. We had difficult times.

"My father bought a bush-and-stone homestead of 160 acres for $10. It was terribly hard. To do the work, he used a hand plow pulled by oxen.

"And at first we lived in a kind of mud hovel dug in a hill. The home was made of trees and logs, covered with straw and then covered with sod two inches thick: ordinary earth was put over it and it kept out most of the rain—but not all.

"We started out with absolutely nothing. After 10 years, we were self-sustaining and self-reliant."

The tall, white-haired Dr. Lazarowich said the league represents another ideal in addition to self-reliance.

"One of the early things the founds of this league were trying to establish was that new horizons could be opened to young people through education."

When Dr. Lazarowich went to school at 10 years of age he didn't know a word of English. By 1948, he was president of the Edmonton Bar Association. He received his bachelor of arts degree in 1927 in Saskatchewan and his law degree in 1931.

Dr. Leo Faryna, an optometrist member of the league, said it is an ancillary organization to the Ukrainian Orthodox Church.

"This organization looks after matters of cultural, educational and perhaps even political importance while the church looks after spiritual matters."

"One of our highest goals is to have our language preserved, developed and taught," Dr. Lazarowich said.

"And music," Dr. Faryna said. "If you don't have music, you have nothing.

"Ukrainian music is rather on the sad side; it often has a certain haunting pathos.

"That's because the Ukrainians have been oppressed by the Poles, Austrians and, particularly, the Russians. Their history is said. For centuries they have been struggling for independence."

Volcano Still Alive

MOUNT BAKER, Wash. (AP) — This steep mountain belches sulphuric steam day after day, a hot, noxious reminder that she, like her sister volcanoes to the south, is still alive. Further, she threatens the valley below.

A thousand miles to the south, the land mass on which Los Angeles sprawls creeps toward San Francisco. Two land masses, jerkily grinding against each other, one headed north, one headed south. If they continue, the two cities are only 20 million years away from a bizarre rendezvous.

But worse, and sooner—some say before the century is out—they face a jarring release of the stresses building between them, an earthquake of massive proportions.

And out in the mid-Pacific, Mauna Loa, still searing from one major eruption last month, threatens another. She shudders as one flank fills with hot magma—molten rock below the surface—above the town of Hilo, already built on Mauna Loa lava. Hilo's population is 26,000.

These warnings have rumbled out of the earth for the last six months in the United States, and a relatively small band of scientists have watched, knowing they can do little about them, and wondering how people can live in the shadow of these momentous events and not seem to care.

These practitioners of a venerable and now reawakening science, geology, have patterns today to make sense of myriad observable facts that all boil down to one:

The whole earth is on the move.

Men may rule the surface and build their cities and arrange their minuscule affairs. But below, gigantic forces out of their control are at work.

Huge plates of land, the continents and the ocean floors, glide like Stygian icebergs over the more-dense mass of the earth's hot heart. They rub against one another and collide, as India collided with Asia, the one thrusting beneath the other, raising the Himalayas.

The Pacific Ocean floor grows, fed by new material from the earth's interor, and groans and shoves under South America, only to be swallowed again.

Earthquakes and volcanoes: these are two surface events that disrupt the lives of men. They occur most frequently around the world's 280,000 miles of coastline—but that, too, is where two-thirds of the world's four billion people live.

They also occur inland, where, often, there are no ready explanations why. A moderate quake hit Minnesota in July. When it showed up on seismographs at the U.S. Geological Survey's headquarters in Reston, Va., scientists were bitterly chagrined at the range of their knowledge.

Trudeau Avoids Plowing Match Opening Due to Two Rhodesians

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — There were more furrows on brows than in the ground Tuesday after Prime Minister Trudeau abruptly decided not to attend the opening of the international plowing competition because two participants were from Rhodesia.

"This is why we like to keep politicians away from plowing," said Alfred Hall, general secretary of the World Ploughing Organization.

Norman Cafik, member of Parliament for Ontario riding, told the waiting crowd of about 10,000 at a farm north of here that Mr. Trudeau found himself unable to attend for diplomatic reasons.

But before returning to Ottawa, Mr. Trudeau was less subtle, saying he "didn't feel it was proper for the prime minister to open a plowing match in which (the Rhodesians) participate."

Officials of the plowing match said contestants are chosen by fellow plowmen in each country but do not represent their country.

But Mr. Trudeau said that "If four or five people say they're going to participate, and they're citizens of a country whose existence we don't recognize," they are unacceptable.

Mr. Trudeau, who was to have been the main speaker at the annual competition—being held in Canada for the third time since 1953, arrived at Toronto International Airport before he learned Rhodesians would compete in the meet.

Mr. Trudeau went from the airport to a meeting with Liberal party officials, then dined with Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, Mr. Cafik and others at a Toronto hotel.

The prime minister told reporters he understood that plowing match officials were surprised by the Rhodesian entrants, who he said "entered on other passports."

Mr. Cafik said in an interview that he had learned several weeks ago about the Rhodesian entrants but had understood that the external affairs ministry and match officials had solved the problem.

However, Mr. Hall, who is from Great Britain, and Bob Timbers, head of the local organizing committee, said they had not met anybody. Mr. Timbers added he did not learn Mr. Trudeau would not attend the competition until five minutes before the opening parade.

Reaction to Mr. Trudeau's refusal to attend the week-long competition was mixed. Competitors and officials were puzzled by the decision and many spectators were disappointed, said an association official.

"We have nothing to do with color, race or creed in this outfit," said Russell Morrison of Beaverton, Ont., vice-president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association.

Controversy also surrounded the means by which the Rhodesians entered Canada, following Mr. Trudeau's comment about their passports. Mr. Cafik said they were travelling on South African passports. South African visitors do not need visas to enter Canada.

Transit Talks Resume

MONTREAL (CP) — There was no bus or subway service in Canada's largest city today but negotiations aimed at ending a transit strike which has left Montrealers without public transit for seven days were to resume.

Provincial meditator Roger Pilotte met briefly with representatives from the city and its 2,250 striking transit workers early in the day and talks were to begin again this morning.

Negotiations were spurred by a resolution by the Quebec national assembly labor committee calling on the workers to return to work immediately or face a legislated settlement.

Vanier Police Chief Charged with Accepting Rub Club Bribe

VANIER, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief Claude Dwyer, for 29 years a policeman and named man of the year in 1971 in this Ottawa suburb, was held in jail Wednesday on five criminal charges, including one that alleges he accepted a $1,500 payment from a local rub club operator, who also was held in jail.

The Vanier Police Commission announced after the chief appeared in provincial court that the city's 35-member police force has been taken over by the Ontario Provincial Police, pending the outcome of the charges against Chief Dwyer.

Dwyer several times asked Judge Livius Sherwood during his arraignment that he not be placed behind bars.

"I can guarantee you, sir, I won't go anywhere. I didn't know there were so many charges," the visibly shaken Dwyer said.

The judge rejected his pleas after being told by Crown Attorney Andrejs Berzins that it was imperative to the police investigation that the chief be kept behind bars at least until Friday.

Gilles Bergeron, a part-owner of a Vanier body rub shop, appeared in court on several charges, including one of offering a bribe.

Both the chief and Bergeron also are charged with conspiracy to corrupt a police officer and conspiracy to cause a public official to breach his trust.

Maximum penalty on bribery charges under the Criminal Code is 14 years.

A spokesman for the Ontario Provincial Police said the charges resulted from a three-month investigation requested by Carleton County Crown Attorney John Cassells.

The spokesman added that more charges may be laid against the chief and Bergeron or other persons.

A hearing is scheduled Friday where the Crown must show cause why the men should remain in custody.

Ontario Opposes Airport Location

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis announced Wednesday that the provincial government absolutely is opposed to the construction of the Pickering airport.

He told a news conference following a cabinet session that the decision was made Wednesday as a result of negative information concerning traffic and energy problems associated with air travel.

Mr. Davis said the federal government went ahead with work while negotiations concerning cost sharing were not decided. He said there clearly is no need for an airport at Pickering just northeast of here.

Earlier, John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said the Ontario government will not provide any servicing such as roads and sewer and water for the airport.

Mr Davis and Mr. Rhodes said the government will oppose any expansion of existing facilities at Toronto International Airport at Malton.

The premier said he saw no legal means whereby Ontario would be able to prevent construction at the airport, but added he doubts whether the federal government has the right to provide its own services.

The NDP leader, Stephen Lewis, told a news conference earlier Wednesday after a caucus meeting that he would ask the Ontario government to stop airport construction. Mr. Davis said the cabinet's decision was made without awareness of the NDP move.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, whose party has opposed the airport for more than a year, said Mr. Davis's statement is "late in coming." Mr. Davis "seemed to be very elated about the airport three years ago," Mr. Nixon said.

He said he "can't see that Ottawa can go ahead" if the Ontario government opposes the project.

Mr. Rhodes said the Ontario government does not believe there is any need to expand existing facilities at Malton and that the government will do everything "legally and financially possible" to stop the construction at Pickering.

Natural Gas Accord Signed in 30 Days

OTTAWA (CP) — An accord outlining the agreement between the federal and Alberta governments on natural gas prices will have to be signed within 30 days, a spokesman for Alberta Energy Minister Don Getty said Wednesday.

Officials of the governments are working out detailed wording of the accord on prices, first agreed to by the governments in June and reaffirmed in a meeting in Edmonton Tuesday, said the spokesman in a telephone interview.

The governments agreed to a wholesale price of $1.25 a thousand cubic feet in Toronto effective Nov. 1, a 43-cent increase that will add about $65 to the average homeowner's annual gas bill.

The decision heads off an award made earlier by a provincial arbitration board that would have resulted in a Toronto wholesale price on Nov. 1 of $1.52 a thousand cubic feet, a 70-cent increase.

Both governments said last spring the award should not go into effect because it placed too heavy a burden on consumers.

Asked when the agreement would be signed, the Alberta spokesman said that with the arbitration award scheduled to go into effect Nov. 1.

Transit Workers Reduce Demands

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking transit workers agreed to reduce their contract demands Wednesday before their negotiating team began all-night talks with city representatives.

The workers voted against returning to their jobs under threat a legislated settlement may be imposed by Friday's special session of the Quebec national assembly.

Transit commission maintenance workers, cashiers and office employees went on strike last Thursday, halting bus and subway service.

A spokesman for the workers, members of the Montreal Transport Union—affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU)—said maintenance men have cut demands for an hourly wage increase to $1.42 from $2.65, but did not reveal any other reductions.

In Quebec City, Premier Robert Bourassa told a legislature committee that back-to-work legislation was drafted during a cabinet meeting Wednesday and would be presented Friday.

"The government accepts its responsibilities and the national assembly members should accept theirs," he said.

Century Place Predicts March Full-occupancy

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A Century Place spokesman Wednesday said 40 per cent of the building's floor space has already been leased.

Brian Holmes, managing director of Bell-Bridge Developments Ltd. owners of the building, said two major tenants "are all but official". Their names will be witheld until all negotiations are complete

These two — along with Bell Canada and Guaranty Trust — have leased 40 percent of the building's five floors, he said.

"We are also in serious negotiation with other clients who are capable of accommodating another 25 per cent of the building," said Mr. Holmes.

"By next February or March all of the building will be leased and filled with tenants," he said. "I don't think there's any doubt of that."

Within the next two weeks, a full time leasing office will be moved into the new structure to guide people through the building and arrange leasing information.

The $5 million Century Place building will be composed of two ground floors of boutique-type retail establishments topped off with three floors of office space.

Some of the major tenants are expected to megin personal decorating of their floor areas by January and be moving into the building by April or May.

PERCA May Become Charitable Group

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority (PERCA) will seek permission to be declared as a charitable organization.

The decision was made during a meeting of Authority members Wednesday night at the Macaulay Mountain recreation and education centre.

Resources manager Tom Prout said earlier this year it had been suggested an Authority foundation could be established to accept donations of money or lend and to establish a fund for specific projects.

He said this step would allow the PERCA to accept funds and it would also become eligible for grants through the ministry of culture and recreation.

Mr. Prout noted that it costs nothing to declare the PERCA as a charitable organization but it could cost from $500 to $1000 to establish a foundation.

Hearst's Inquiry Considers Robbery

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — An FBI spokesman said Wednesday that the agency is investigating an alleged link between Patricia Hearst and a bank robbery earlier this year in which a woman customer was killed.

Miss Hearst was arrested last Thursday, 19 months after she was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA). She is already accused of joining the SLA in robbing a bank here April 15, 1974, and faces a possible 25 years in prison.

But a report on CBS television Wednesday night said Miss Hearst now has been connected to a second bank robbery in Sacramento April 21 this year through composite drawings prepared by witnesses end marked bank notes found in the flat here where she was arrested with fellow-fugitive Wendy Yoshimura.

The FBI refused to confirm the report, but spokesman Frank Perrone said: "There is a pending investigation."

A team of psychiatrists is expected to meet today to decide Miss Hearst's mental condition.

Three psychiatrists and a psychologist were named Wednesday by Federal Court Judge Oliver Carter following the statement by defence lawyers that Miss Hearst's mental state is too fragile for cross-examination.

The lawyers submitted an affidavit in Miss Hearst's name saying she took part in the April, 1974, robbery because she had been terrorized and brainwashed by the SLA and that a gun was trained on her throughout the raid.

The group of specialists does not include Dr. Chalmers Johnson, a University of California expert on brainwashing who was appointed tentatively Tuesday by Judge Carter at the suggestion of Miss Hearst's mother, Catherine.

Dr. Johnson said earlier that he is inclined to believe Miss Hearst was an active urban guerrilla and not a victim of brainwashing.

"The one thing about brainwashing is that it isn't at all long-lasting," Dr. Johnson said.

But another psychiatrist appointed, Dr. L. J. West of the University of California, said:

"I am sure that her experience with the SLA was so shocking in its contrast with her previous life that it altered her capacities of judgment.

"If a person who has been subject to extreme or unusual stress commits an illegal act in the belief that it is necessary for the preservation of her own life, then that mental state has to be taken into account by a court, judge or jury."

Scotch and Hot Water Flu Remedy

TORONTO (CP) — A local health officer suggests one way to treat a new strain of flu expected next month is to take a bottle of scotch and a tartan-wrapped hot water bottle to bed.

Scottish flu—officially known as A Scotland 840-74—joins strains from Australia, Hong Kong and New Zealand which are expected to return to Ontario this year.

The idea of scotch to allay some of the misery comes from Dr. Edwin Abbott, medical officer of health in the borough of Scarborough, who says it may be a good idea "with the Scottish types."

But Dr. Abbott and other provincial health spokesmen say early prevention is still the best bet and they are stocked with vaccine.

The Scottish flu, like the others, is not a potential killer but people with respiratory problems may be more seriously affected.

News Briefs

Casts Airport Doubt

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand said today that Ontario's opposition to the Pickering airport project makes it "almost impossible" to build the airport. Although upset by the province's position, Mr. Marchand said he doubted the federal cabinet would take the province to court to ensure that services such as roads and sewers are provided to the airport site, just east of Toronto.

Some Strikes Unsettled

Students in some smaller school systems returned to classes today as their striking teachers accepted new work agreements. But in Boston and Wilmington, Del., teachers were defiant in their contract dispute walkouts.

TORONTO (CP) — A Ford of Canada Ltd. executive today predicted that Canadian farm equipment sales will exceed $1 billion this year for the first time in history.

Davis May Shuffle Cabinet

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis said Wednesday there might be a cabinet shuffle as early as next week. He told a news conference after a cabinet meeting that Wednesday's session would be "the final meeting of cabinet as it is presently constituted," adding he does not preclude the possibility of a shuffle next week.

SEATO to Be Phased Out

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The council of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) Wednesday agreed to phase out the eight-country body "in view of the changing circumstances." (SEATO) secretary-general Sunthorn Hungladoram of Thailand was instructed to prepare a plan to wind up the organization in an orderly and systematic manner.

Lalonde Urges Health Talks

VICTORIA (CP) — Federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde urged the provinces Wednesday to resume negotiations with Ottawa on new cost sharing arrangements for health services.

He told the Victoria Chamber of Commerce there has been some misinterpretation of the federal government's announcement in the June budget that it plans to change its financial formulas for health and hospital costs.

Mr. Lalonde said the federal government has no intention of backing out of the federal-provincial partnership for health which exists under national hospital and medical care insurance programs.

However, he added, Ottawa served notice in its budget that it is interested in more suitable health insurance arrangements that will provide high quality health care at a price people can afford.

Four Italian Planes Crash

BITBURG, West Germany (AP) — Four Italian Starfighter jets crashed during a NATO training flight today near the West German-Luxembourg border, killing all four pilots, the Italian Embassy reported.

The U.S.-designed planes crashed on a hillside about 12 miles south of the U.S. Air Force base at Bitburg five minutes after their morning takeoff, the embassy said.

Bodies of the four pilots were found amid wreckage strewn over a wide area of the heavily-wooded region. There were four craters in a row where the planes plowed into the ground from their formation flight en route back to their home base at Ghedi in northern Italy, the embassy said.

The cause of the crash was not immediately clear. A report by state police in nearby Luxembourg said one of the planes blew up in flight and the other three went down with it.

Two months ago, four Spanish military jets practicing for an air show collided and plunged into the Mediterranean off southeastern Spain, killing all five occupants. The planes were Spanish-made Saeta-type aircraft.

OPEC Fails To Agree

VIENNA (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) failed to agree on an oil price increase at a key session today as moderates led by Saudi Arabia walked out.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, told reporters he faced "terrible opposition" from Iranian-led price extremists seeking a more than 20-per-cent oil price boost from Oct. 1. The current price of oil is $10.46 a barrel.

Yamani has been trying to hold the increase to five per cent, and OPEC representatives appeared headed earlier toward a compromise agreement on an increase averaging about five per cent.

Type of Work, Low Pay Two Experience '75 Drawbacks

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — David Matthies, 26, senior supervisor with Experience '75 program says a longer working period and a higher wage is needed by summer students.

Mr. Matthies, who worked with a crew of 17 at the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority last summer, submitted his recommendations in a report of environmental enhancement projects undertaken here.

He noted that the rising costs of university and college education justify longer working hours and higher pay.

"Qualified people should be paid on the basis of their qualifications and past experience instead of receiving minimum wage which has been the case during the last five years," he said.

Mr. Matthies also observed that the method of allocating trucks should be re-evaluated, especially in the eastern region.

The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority alone could use "at least two more vehicles."

"The shortage of trucks not only hampers the work projects but also increased the danger of overloading the trucks with workers being transported to work sites," he remarked.

Mr. Matthies observed that supervisory positions have been phased out in many cases in certain authorities. He objected to this and stated that the supervisor and the foreman are vital to the program, both as necessary and valuable positions and as excellent opportunities for on-the-job training.

The senior supervisor also recommended that more involved developmental work should be attempted.

"Although necessary, maintenance work tends to create a great deal of disinterest in the program," he said.

Resources manager for the PERCA, Tom Prout, described the summer student program here as "fairly successful."

He said this year for the first time two handicapped students were hired and worked well in the program.

Future of Ski Run Topic of PERCA Study

PICTON — The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority's land use committee will study the possibility of operating the ski run at its Macaulay Mountain site this winter.

The decision followed lengthy discussion of future skiing at Macaulay Mountain during a meeting of the PERCA held Wednesday night.

Resources manager Tom Prout said that earlier this year the PERCA agreed to conduct a feasibility study of the ski operation if the Picton recreation committee this winter would take responsibility for the ski program. The town indicated no interest in this proposal and no study will be made.

Mr. Prout said the Prince Edward Ski Club is eager for a prompt decision from the PERCA as club members want to sell their equipment and close down the recreation facility.

He added that the PERCA has no investment in the ski operation except for some labor provided through summer students employed there.

South Marysburg member of the authority, Donald Walker said he is convinced the skiing operation was "grossly mismanaged" and he urged the PERCA to run it this winter on a trial basis for three or four days a week.

New Zealand Lifestyle Slower Rotarians Told

TRENTON — Have you ever hear of Mount Ngauruhoe or Mount Ruapehu. Perhaps you can pronounce Te Kuiti, Tauma'anui or Papatoetoe, all cities in New Zealand.

Elizabeth Corke, 29, a former local teacher and currently a hostess for National Airways in New Zealand can and she was in Trenton this week at the request of local Rotarians to address the weekly meeting.

The hardest things people have accepting about New Zealand, she said in an interview, are the 18-hour difference between there and Canada and the fact that New Zealand is just beginning its summer season.

"It is in the Southern Hemispere and people don't realize the seasons are the opposite of the Northern hemisphere," Miss Corke said.

She said New Zealanders are similar to Canadians because of the English influence but there is a more relaxed, slower pace to their lifestyle.

"She'll be right, a phrase that means do not worry in local slang, is very popular," Miss Corke said.

Miss Corke lives in Auckland, a city of 700,000, the largest in the country which has a population of about three million.

"New Zealand is an island — and is isolated but it is sensitive to the world economy," Miss Corke said. "Currently the country is fighting heavy inflation partially caused by the wool market (the country's largest agricultural industry) slowing down," she said.

Recreation plays a large part in the lifestyle, she said.

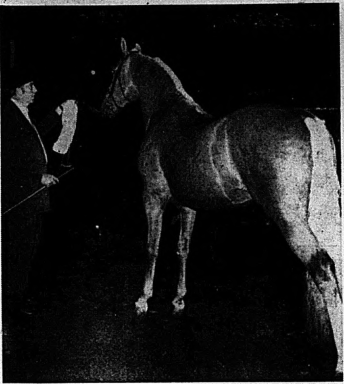
"In Aukland the beaches surround the city and you can go swimming and sailing right after work with little trouble," she said. "Many of the people own sailboats because they are relatively inexpensive and because the water is so close."

Geographically, Miss Corke said she thinks it is one of the most diverse areas she has ever been in.

"New Zealand is almost subtropical and it is the greenest place I have ever seen, she said. "Last Christmas we had an outdoor barbecue and I was very surprised when the hostess started serving a traditional holiday meal, including turkey and the trimmings, but I guess some things are the same everywhere."

Traveller

Elizabeth Corke, a Belleville woman now living in New Zealand was in Trenton to discuss the country with the weekly meeting of the Rotary club "Christmas is the same all over the world," she said.



Golden Opportunity

Horse enthusiasts in Prince Edward this week enjoyed an opportunity to discuss their hobby with three prominent Quinte area horsemen. A champion at the Canadian National Exhibition and the Royal Winter Fair, the Palomino saddle bred stallion, Bouquet's Bourbon Bob was shown by owner Charles Culmer before a group of 40 persons attending Picton's first horse clinic.

Official Count Narrows Margin

PICTON — Results of the official vote count for Prince Edward — Lennox riding Wednesday showed that Progressive Conservative incumbent James Taylor was re-elected with a 733 vote majority. Election night returns previously indicated a lead of 940 votes over Liberal Keith MacDonald.

District returning officer Mary Grimmon said Mr. Taylor polled an official total of 9.638 votes while Liberal candidate Keith MacDonald received 8,895 votes and NDP standard-bearer Jan Nicol a total of 3210 votes.

Reports on election night indicated James Taylor the winner with a total of 9,995 votes. Liberal opponent Keith MacDonald trailed with 9,055 votes.

The official count showed that New Democratic Party candidate Jan Nicol received 3,210 votes, 40 votes less than indicated on election night.

Proper Use of All Open Space Goal of Study

TRENTON — Dino Gettas, recreation director for the municipality, said he hopes the recently submitted master plan for the parks system can become the springboard for the redevelopment of the open space areas which would eventually reflect and serve the desires of the local population.

He said in an interview he hopes it would be possible for the park department to increase the help given to homeowners who are developing the potential of private lots and yards.

"Most people spend more time in their yards than in the town's parks and these are definitely open spaces," Mr. Gettas said. "As with our annual tree program, during which we gave away more than 350 trees last year, we can offer people advice on landscaping including shrubbery placement, berming or contouring the land and patio construction."

Mr. Gettas said the recreation department can take an active role in the development of all open spaces in Trenton, not just the land under its direct jurisdiction, to help resident utilize all available areas.

Two Hurt In Crash

BRIGHTON — A three-vehicle accident on Highway 2 near the town line sent two people to hospital and caused a total $1,900 damage Wednesday night.

In fair condition is Gladys Killbank, 59, of Brighton who suffered a broken ankle. Treated and released was John Knox, 26, RR 4, BBrighton

The Knox vehicle travelling westbound on Highway 2, was stopped to make a left turn when a car driven by Bernard Prichard, 17, Colborne, was in collision with the rear of it.

The impact spun the Knox car into the opposite lane where it was in collision with an eastbound vehicle driven by James Killbank, 57.

The Killbank vehicle sustained $600 damage, the Knox car $800 and the Prichard auto $500.

Dief The Chief at Centre Stage as Grits Grapple with Excess of Problems

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Last week was not a good one for Liberals in Canada.

First there was Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet meeting in a secluded Gatineau retreat. Despite its billing as a top level session to formulate vital national policies, it seemed more like a crawling away to lick their wounds.

Deserted by Gerard Pelletier and John Turner, publicly spanked by Beryl Plumptre and betrayed by the economists who decided that inflation was not licked after all, the Trudeauites were hardly in a position to sound off about leading Canada at last out of the economic swamp.

Then there was the Newfoundland election, a lacklustre campaign devoid of issues and almost devoid of personalities. Ed Roberts saw his chance of leading the province back into the Liberal fold thwarted, not by the vitality of Frank Moore's Conservative government, but by the determination of Joey Smallwood to keep politically active as long as there is breath in his healthy little body.

Smallwood's presence in the legislature as a reformed Liberal (if there is anything Smallwood isn't it's reformed) will even prevent Roberts from getting the public recognition due a leader of the official opposition.

Next there was the spectacle of 1,300 people, paying $10 a shot to jam into a hot, noisy ballroom to greet John Diefenbaker on his 80th birthday — a vivid reminder to the Liberals that despite 12 years of post-Diefenbaker Liberalism and twice that many years of pre-Diefenbaker Liberalism, the grand old man of Canadian politics is still a Tory.

The Chief was in a mellow mood that night. He didn't rail against the Grits. But they know it is only a temporary respite. When Parliament resumes on Oct. 14, Diefenbaker will be there with his barbed questions ready to deflate any pompous cabinet ministers.

Canadians love Dief because he is one of the few politicians left who is not embarrassed to invoke the name of God, to talk about the Dominion of Canada, to appeal to patriotism and to deride the fallacy that names on a paper called "detente" has ended slavery and oppression.

Late in the week there was the Ontario election. For more than 30 years the Ontario Liberals have chipped away at the provincial Tories — the Big Blue Machine as it has come to be called. Now that the machine is at last beginning to falter, the Liberals find themselves relegated to third-party status with the official opposition going to the New Democrats.

If the Newfoundland campaign was the dullest in recent years, the Ontario campaign was one of the liveliest and bitterest. Conservative Leader Bill Davis and Liberal Leader Bob Nixon went at each other hammer and tongs with Stephen Lewis' New Democrats picking up the votes of the people who were disgusted with such muck-raking tactics.

The Tories are bloodied but not bowed. Davis will carry on as a minority government. And the fact that the NDP came so close will probably scare all the wayward Conservatives safely back into the Tory camp at the next election.......

Finally, there was the rumor that Prime Minister Trudeau was wooing Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer to come to Ottawa and join the federal cabinet.

He would take the Industry, Trade and Commerce portfolio of Alastair Gillespie, so the rumor has it. But since Manitoba could hardly rate two cabinet ministers, it would be Defence Minister Richardson and not Mr. Gillespie who would get the axe.

Schreyer has plenty of ability and he would probably not find the transition from NDP to Liberal very difficult — Mr. Trudeau didn't — although his departure from Manitoba would probably mean the end of the New Democrats in that province.

Richardson has been a lightweight in the cabinet and it is not hard to imagine Mr. Trudeau wanting to replace him. If there is any foundation for the rumor, it is an indication of the desperation of the prime minister in trying to find strong personalities to beef up his team.

Last week was one the Liberals would like to forget.

Women's Year Discourse

Here we are in the declining days of 1975 — and of International Women's Year and where has all the "consciousness-raising" taken the women of our day?

Well, some of it (for shame!) is directed against men — the increasingly on - the - defensive male of the species, laboring under "this terrible sense of threat, this fear of the strength of women," as one member of a women's seminar put it recently; or as another saw it: "I'm always staggered at the vulnerability that I find underneath their (men's) facades."

A late arrival at the discussion was one who is not known for her lady-like discourse. — Dr. Bette Stephenson, past-president of the Canadian Medical Association. Her first words were: "I'm sorry, I'm just going to listen for a while. This is not a good day for me to talk about men because I'm sick of the male corporate structure. That's what caused my delay, a meeting with all the . . . that men fling around in the structured world they inhabit."

Mellowing somewhat after listening to the others, even changing her tune while still coming on strong with the lingo, Dr. Stephenson said: "I'm not really likely to sit here quietly and listen to a discussion which labels all men as deliberate oppressors of females because it damn well isn't true. We've been socialized in a way which has been in fact directed by our biology."

The Globe and Mail, where the discussion took place, distilled it all into a page, with Carole Taylor of CTV's W5 news show for one being quoted as saying in part: ". . . I still find that day after day it's part of our existence as women that we suffer insults. I suppose, in a sense, I'm not shocked any more to hear someone I might otherwise respect professionally say the most incredibly stupid thing about women. What I do is sublimate it. . ."

Men may get the picture, or maybe they don't, given the long years of misunderstanding of and alienation from women regarded more as objects than functioning and intelligent members of the human race; men brainwashed by the barrack-room dialogue of the school system, and separated from meaningful contact by traditional role-playing and essentially differing interests. Of course there is the so-called sexual revolution, but that has served only to reinforce the premise of women as objects in the male view of things.

By the same token, are women ready to reform society, rid it of its ills, not least the failure hitherto to have women assume a more positive role in affairs? Not necessarily, given the fractious scenes at the recent Women's Year gathering in Mexico City, and a United Nations report that increasing crime among women is "a new universal phenomenon."

Clearly it's a spin-off of the Women's Lib thing, a phenomenon of these changing times. Meanwhile, the consciousness-raising raising goes on. One example from the United States: women there are rallying behind individuals such as Lin Farley, director of the women's section of the Human Affairs Program at Cornell University who says that sexual harassment of women in their place of employment is widespread . . . literally epidemic."

Something women have tended to suffer in silence, this is now an issue that may not be treated condescendingly or as a joke much longer. That's the word from Ms. Farley and others now giving such subjects greater exposure.

Key to Jobs

With young people hitting the books again this is a time when private educational establishments like to woo young people into this or that vocation.

A staff member has received three information kits, one from a Scarborough "Continuing Education Centre," and having to do with technological and servicing jobs — from computer electronics to appliance maintenance — and two from the United States. The latter came from the Cleveland Institute of Electronics and a Locksmithing Institute in Little Falls, N. J.

All very interesting — and it just goes to show that there is something for everyone these days. All you need to do is match up job prospects, interests and personality and you are well on your way.

The Public Servants Issue Could Force Another Election

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Yesterday I noted that if Ontario Premier William Davis has his choice in the next election he will be going to the people with an issue.

The question is, can he find a good issue and then manoeuvre his way so that he can fight the election on it.

There is one such possible issue which is apparent now.

This is the right of civil servants to strike.

The government has been opposed to this right, while the two opposition parties to a varying degree have favored it.

It has the makings of a good issue for the government. It would have appeal to all sections of the public. And it seems likely that the majority of voters, fed up with strikes as they are, would probably favor the government position.

Also civil servants today are not all that popular, particularly with the extremist leadership they now have.

Actually the premier tried to get the strike right going as an issue in the recent campaign. But he was not able to get the other parties to take the bait.

Circumstances, however, could develop which would enable him to force them to take sides.

A new contract has to be negotiated with the civil service by the first of the year.

This easily could give the premier the opening he would need.

If the negotiations are rough and there actually is a walkout, or even if spokesmen threaten to strike, even if they make outrageous initial demands (and in the last bargaining they asked for a 61 per cent raise), he could work it so that he has an election issue.

With a strike, he could call the legislature to pass back-to-work legislation, and both opposition parties on their positions would be hard put to do anything but vote against it. This could mean an election as early as March or April.

If there were only threats or extreme demands, he could introduce new tough legislation which the opposition would be forced to vote against.

There are other areas of disagreement the government will have to deal with.

Among them are housing, rents and energy.

The opposition parties are quite close on these questions and could be forced to defeat the government.

But it is hard to see where the government could take a good political position on any of them. The civil service shapes up as potentially by far its best issue.

Opposition NDP leader Stephen Lewis is close to the leadership of the Civil Service Association and most probably will try and persuade it to act moderately.

Whether he succeeds could have an important influence on our political future.

Wage Settlements 'Disturbingly Large' Says Bank Governor

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

As hopes of an economic recovery in Canada become stronger, so do the fears that inflation will soar to unprecedented heights.

Bank of Canada Gov. Gerald K. Bouey, in a speech the other day, went about as far as he could in warning Canadians of the inflationary danger we face.

"We have been here before," he said, referring to 1970.

That's when the Trudeau government was faced with the rise in unemployment that followed its one and only serious effort, launched the previous year, to contain inflation.

By 1970, the political consequences of resisting inflation were beginning to seem threatening, so economic policy did an about-face. Expansion became the conventional wisdom, money supply was increased, inflation took off and unemployment dropped a little.

As it turned out, such stimulation was unnecessary because the economic cycle was already trending upward.

"Now we find ourselves back at square one with high unemployment rates, with higher underlying rates of cost and price inflation, and with higher interest rates," Gov. Bouey noted in his speech to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting in Saskatoon.

To be more specific, "square one" in this case means that Canada's real gross national product increased at an annual rate of 1.2 per cent in the April-June period of this year. Unemployment has risen to 7.3 per cent of the labor force, and inflation stands at 11 per cent by one measure, or nearly 14 per cent by another.

Rising economic activity is likely to boost the growth of real GNP to an annual rate of more than five per cent for the second half of 1975, says Robert Baguley, senior economist of the Royal Bank of Canada.

However, he adds, the bank's Trendicator—a composite index of leading economic indicators—suggests that unemployment is unlikely to move downward decisively until well into next year.

As the economy gathers steam, the inflationary pressures intensify.

Wage and salary settlements are, in Mr. Bouey's restrained term, "disturbingly large." (They are running about twice as high as in the United States.)

And the return of inflation to a near-record rate has increased the demand for money and credit to abnormal levels.

"Are fiscal and monetary policies being counted on to be sufficiently expansionary to accommodate an accelerating increase in costs and prices?" asked Gov. Bouey.

"Is the central bank expected to create enough money to finance whatever rate of inflation emerges?"

Obviously, that's not the role that the Bank of Canada should be playing now, in the opinion of its governor.

The question, in the weeks ahead, is whether Mr. Bouey's sensible concept of restraint will prevail, or whether the federal government—without a finance minister and apparently without a policy—will continue to drift.

If the answer is continued drift, then the result almost surely will be even more ruinous inflation. More unions will be demanding 70 per cent pay increases for their members, while their employers simply pass on the added cost—and then some—to their customers.

Mr. Bouey called on Canadians for a "sober appreciation" of our economic problems and a willingness to co-operate in their resolution.

Let's hope that our free-spending political leaders were listening and will respond.

Social Credit's Arnold Expresses Appreciation

The Editor
Dear Sir;

I wish to thank The Intelligencer for the fair and objective treatment I received during the election campaign which led up to yesterday's vote.

For me, and you, it was a long campaign. As your reporters well know, I was nominated back on April 12 and you were fair enough to staff the nomination meeting. Since then my supporters and I have attempted to keep active, and you have managed to keep up with us.

It was a rewarding five months. The wonderful friends I made in Belleville and Hastings County could easily encourage me to try it again four or five years from now.

Even though I was not successful in this, my first attempt to gain a seat in the legislature, I believe that the people who did support me Thursday are winners.

We have shown the three old line parties that there are several people in Hastings-Peterborough who want the system of Social debt changed to one of Social Credit.

My campaign pamplet carried a quote from Major C.H. Douglas, the British engineer who founded our movement some 60 years ago. Major Douglas wrote, "Social Credit is a new strategy to an old battle, the battle between the will to dominate of the tyrant and the will to freedom of the individual."

The people at Queen's Park have seen a great increase in the total Social Credit vote over the election of 1971, and they can not help but get the message that a growing number of people are sick of the tyranny of government debt and insensitive policy-making.

Our party has pledged that once a riding has a Social Credit candidate, it will always have a Social Credit candidate, so your readers can look forward to reading more about our struggle for freedom, in future campaigns.

If I have any regrets it is only that Ontario is now faced with the surety that our $17 billion debt will increase to about $35 billion by the time we have a chance to vote again.

MRS. NANCY ARNOLD,
Wasaga Beach.

Feminists Here Are Viewed as Humorless and Colorless

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Last spring's international conference in Mexico City on the status of women in the world didn't do much to enlighten us since it was largely in the hands of strident, politicized females.

As a result, if we travel, we will still be amused perhaps even enthralled by all the women we will continue to see in the strange costumes and attires made familiar in the picture travel books.

This old-fashioned response to women of the world imprisoned by custom, style and dress will be found more with the men than the women, since any conference on women's rights these days no matter how bad, has certainly got through to the world's women.

In any case, if women in Canada think they have a cause against exploitation and sexism, they are without making any further efforts on their own behalf, already liberated compared to the female sex in some of the world's oldest cultures.

Emergence out of medievalism and harsh exploitation is coming most slowly but with its own kind of inevitability for example in the Islamic world.

The leap from the veiled Arab female to the one in tidy western dress running a computer in one of the rich Arab nations' new industrial or educational institutions is, as they say, a quantum one.

Getting Mediterranean women out of those horrible black outfits imposed on the females of entire families when a death occurs, is another slow movement into modern times.

This is one we understand in Canada since our cities are filled with Mediterranean women, young and old, Italian, Greek, Spanish, Portuguese and Cypriot in origin who are forced into a stupid and for them, demeaning tradition from very conservative societies.

Perhaps the most important place for the emergence of women in the world, especially from the poor countries is through political action. Women have been close to all the world's much-touted social and political revolutionary leaders.

In Cuba the women close to Fidel in the jungle in the late '50s, hold key posts in his revolutionary regime in a nation which has truly "liberated" the woman from her domestic prison, an Hispanic heritage which made her master of her domicile even if effective nowhere else.

African women as political and social leaders are as dynamic as their men. And women in no-sexist roles, where the mention in public of the man-woman relationship gets a frown, has been one of the leadership achievements of the People's Republic of China.

It is interesting that in nations undergoing social revolution or intense domestic upheaval, the women are emerging as strong and influential alongside their men in a way they cannot do in developed nations.

The humorless, almost neo-fascist positions of North American women feminists, denying their femininity and denigrating their use of charm, are alien to the women's movements of the new nations.

Wander around the lobbies of the United Nations and you see a plethora of exotic native costumes, high-style from Zaire, Tanzania, Indonesia or Burma, women with college degrees, village medical or teaching experience, more than a handful of them, former urban and rural guerrillas.

Yet women in the world have a very long way to go. A UNESCO meeting in Persepolis, Iran was told 62 per cent of the world's total of illiterate human beings are women.

Suttie to Concentrate On Regional Health Service

Dr. Boyd Suttie, 47, has been appointed assistant deputy minister for community health services, the provincial ministry of health has announced.

Stanley W. Martin, deputy minister of health, said in a news release this week, "Dr. Suttie's appointment is an important addition to the ministry."

"His background and experience will contribute significantly to leadership responsibilities that the community health group has with the deliverers of health care services, implementation of health promotion activities and the increasing prominence of occupational and environmental health."

In his position, Dr. Suttie will oversee occupational health, health promotion, disease prevention and implementation of district health councils.

At present, Dr. Suttie is associate deputy minister of the Newfoundland department of health. For the past 15 years, he has had extensive experience in a wide range of health programs in Canada.

Previously, Dr. Suttie has been assistant director of hospital insurance and diagnostic services directorate for the department of national health and welfare and associate dean (pro tem) for community medicine at Memorial University of Newfoundland, where he has been responsible for teaching, services, research and university administration.

A graduate of the University of St. Andrews in Scotland with an M.B., Ch.B. in 1950, Dr. Suttie also holds a diploma in medical services administration from Edinburgh University and a certificate in health care administration from the London School of Hygience in England.

'All for One' Attitude Of Playhouse Perfo rmers

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Around about 1883 - 84 is not only a documentary play, it's an experience for the Pinnacle Playhouse cast.

The cast of eight, who prefer to call themselves the 'group' have contributed more than just their acting skills to this production. They've revised the original script adding their thoughts, feelings and interpretations of a hanging Prince Edward County so long ago.

The workshop-flavored drama is the contribution of not only the author and director — Bill Culp, but the entire group.

"Instead of taking someone else's material and adjusting to it, we adapted it ourselves," explained Steve Bone, one of the cast.

Commenting on the open concept of the play, another actor, Ted Bairstow, said it isn't really a difficult concept for the public to accept unless they come to the play with "preconceived ideas" about a drama production.

Mike Hanlay, another actor, said there isn't going to be much confrontation with the audience although there is a lot of audience-cast participation.

"There's music, singing and square dancing. It's going to be a real pleasure for the audience."

Sharon Poitras, one of the three females in the cast, said this play treats the audience as mature adults.

"After we started working together the cast became unselfish. In order to find our character we had to do some deep digging inside."

The group agreed there was no scene stealing or a chance for any on-stage competitions.

"Everyone seems to have their moment on stage because the group as a whole has decided this was the way to do it," said Ms. Poitras.

"Nobody knows how many lines or exits or entrances they have," added Mr. Bone.

The highlight of preparation for the rehearsals which began early in the summer was a trip to the house where a shooting in the play actually took place in Prince Edward County. Later, the condemned man's boots were brought to the theatre for their examination. "I actually tried the boots on," said Steve Forrester. It was unnerving; you realize this actually happened."

Mike Hayday said the play is of personal interest to him as a native of this area. "It says something about where we come from; how that lifestyle molded us," he said.

The curtains will rise at Pinnacle Playhouse Oct. 8 at 8.30 p.m. for Around About 1883-84.

Colorado Experiment: Year-round School

ARVADA, Colo. (AP) — While other youngsters lounge at the beach, take summer jobs or head for camp, hundreds of Jefferson County students remain in the classroom for what officials say is the way of the future year-round school.

The Colorado youngsters don't go to school continuously for 12 months, but the schools stay open all year. The children are divided into three groups and classroom work is spread across the year.

Year-round school still is an experiment in the county and it's aroused a heated controversy that may flare up again this September.

That's when the school board is scheduled to release an evaluation of the first year of the two-year project, called Concept 6.

"I like it," said Dee Davis, who has three children in year-round school. "We can go on vacation when there are no crowds."

But Jan Pratt, the mother of three teen-agers in the program, said, "I am really concerned about what effect this will have on my kids when they go to college." Mrs. Pratt thinks the system gives youngsters too much free time.

Bill White, director of instructional planning for the school district, co-ordinates the year-round program. He said 16 of 115 schools in the district now operate year-round, involving 15,000 of the district's 79,000 students. Eleven elementary schools, three junior high and two senior high schools operate for 12 months.

White said year-round school allows full use of buildings that would otherwise stand idle in summer. The main reason the experimental two-year program was started was to reduce overcrowding.

The Jefferson County system works this way:

Students go to school 86 days per semester. Then they vacation 43 days, attend classes for another 86 days, then go on vacation again.

School hours are basically no different than in traditional programs: about 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Vacations are in addition to traditional holidays such as Christmas.

White said the two vacations instead of one long summer vacation have a "refreshing" effect on students, making many of them more eager to learn.

"Either you've got a vacation coming up or you're just finishing one," White said. The youngsters can also accelerate their program in high school more easily and graduate early.

White said that several areas were so overcrowded that the alternative to year-round school was double sessions. Officials thought the 12-month school was worth a try.

Less Honesty, More Divorce

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Peter and Diane's marriage began falling apart four months after the wedding. But they did not initiate divorce proceedings for another 14 years.

Divorce is on the increase in Canada. Peter and Diane's case is only part of these statistics.

There were 36,704 divorces in Canada in 1973, of which 13,781 originated in Ontario.

"People just don't know how to relate," said Jack Watkins, a social worker with the Family Counselling Service here.

"Many people don't know how to give love or receive it. They find it easier to be critical or condemning than supportive."

An inability to show appreciation for the good qualities in themselves and their partners is one of the most common problems facing couples, said Dr. Simon Ramesar, director of Kingston General Hospital's Community Health Centre.

WANT HONESTY

"I think the majority of people want to be honest and straightforward," Dr. Ramesar said. "But they are afraid if they are, they will be criticized, ridiculed, rejected or subjected to public censure.

"For example, a lot of women have feelings of sexual attraction toward other men but they are afraid to tell their husbands. A lot of persons end up doing things in the false notion they should protect the other person's feelings. They hide within themselves how they are really feeling."

Adultery is mentioned by only seven per cent of Mr. Watkin's counselling clients.

Marriage experts say adultery is usually an effect and not a cause of marital discord, said Dr. Ramesar. However, he added, "sexual difficulties can cause marital difficulties and marital difficulties can cause sexual difficulties."

In Peter and Diane's case, Peter did have outside relationships during their marriage.

He said as an energetic, outgoing individual, he began going out with his friends when his wife worked on evening shifts and he eventually met another girl.

Although this affair broke up, he said, after more problems he started "running around" again.

"Our marriage started off wrong and just never got straight," he said.

"It was 80 per cent my fault because of the environment I grew up in. But she wasn't strong enough. She should have pulled the reins in. She was a real, quiet home-type. I was really gung-ho."

Now he plans on a second marriage. He advised couples not to follow his and Diane's pattern.

He said marriage partners should develop "pride" in their situation and have a lot of patience.

Ann Landers

'Pirate' Puts Down Nosy Lady

Dear Ann Landers: I identified strongly when I read that letter from the mother of the three-year-old child who had to wear a patch over one eye and strangers on the street kept coming over and asking, "What happened to the child?"

Our own youngster is now eight years of age. He had an eye problem last year and had to wear a patch for several weeks. One day when we were at the beach a nosy lady came over and looked at the boy with such pity it made me sick. Finally she asked the child, "What's the matter with your eye, dear?" Without a moment's hesitation he replied, "Nothing, lady. I'm a pirate."

Needless to say, the woman disappeared in no time flat. How's that for a snappy comeback? — From The Mouths Of Babes

Dear Babe: Beautiful. That son of yours sounds as if he's not going to have any trouble making his way in the world.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a harried women's editor for a daily newspaper. Many times you have gone to bat for members of other professions, so how about a little help for some of your own?

You wouldn't believe some of the "Requests To Print" that have hit this office. The handwriting is impossible to read, names misspelled, important facts and dates left out. Then we catch holy hell because the story wasn't "right."

Please ask your readers who send material to newspapers to observe the following rules:

Either type the message (double space) or write so we can read it. The person submitting the item should give his name, address and phone number in case more information is needed.

Stick to the basics in journalism:

Who, What, When, Where, Why. Stay with the facts. Don't editorialize or exaggerate. (It isn't necessary to say your daughter is marrying the best-looking boy in his class.)

And please get the material to us in time. Old news is for history books.

Thanks, Ann. — S.D. From Tupelo, Miss.

Dear S.D.: Here are your helpful hints for the public. I hope it makes your job easier.

Dear Ann Landers: It has taken me five days to get up the courage to write this letter. I have also spent several hours looking in the dictionary for words that might make my letter printable. The subject isn't dirty but it isn't one people discuss in polite society. Please help me.

I am a 22-year-old male who plans to be married soon. I have never been circumcised. My fiancee tells me that women who are married to circumcised men have less chance of getting cancer of the cervix. I checked this out and she is correct.

Can the circumcision be done in a doctor's office? I hate hospitals. Is it worth the trouble? — Wish My Folks Had Given Me A Briss

Dear Wish: Circumcision is the cutting away of the male foreskin. It can be done in a doctor's office under anesthetic. Yes, it is somewhat painful but it's well worth the discomfort. In Biblical times it was done as a religious ritual—and like many religious rituals it had a solid basis in hygiene. I agree, it would have been a lot easier if your folks had given you a briss, but forgive them, and vow to do better by your sons.

Dear Ann Landers: Mom and Dad are getting divorced. I'm a girl 12 and the judge says I can choose which parent I want to live with. Help me decide, please.

Mom is overprotective. She wants to know where I am every minute. Dad is more lenient but he spends a lot of time in his business and he wouldn't pay very much attention to me.

My brother Keith (age 17) chose to stay with Dad. Keith has a hot temper and punches me out whenever he feels like it. I don't need this treatment.

What do you say, Ann? — See Saw Marjorie Daw

Dear Marge: Go with your mother. A 14-year-old girl doesn't need a lenient, busy dad and a hot-tempered brother who punches her out whenever he feels like it.

Keep Warm This Winter

Ruddy Electric Consumer Division have a great boon for cottage owners or those of you who have a rec. room that's inclined to be chilly. Buy a portable base board heater. They come in two models, one 6000 watt and the other 9000 watt, depending on your needs. They are manufactured in Canada and you'll find them portable enough that you can use it in your rec. room when you're at home, or take it up to the cottage now that the days and evenings are becoming chillier. They are about the size of a portable humidifier so they won't take up much room and they only require to be plugged into one circuit. Visit Ruddy Electric at 291 Coleman St. an dthey'll be pleased to fill you in on all the details.

School Graduation Is Near

School graduations will be taking place soon and often we like to remember the young graduate with a personal gift. You'll find a wide selection of appropriate gifts at W. Wonnacott and Son Jewellers, 247 Front St. For the young lady, there are charm bracelets with a selection of all charms pertaining to graduation. There are pendants, pierced earrings, and crosses. You'll also find gifts suitable for either the young man or young woman. Identification bracelets are very popular. However, a treasured reminder for any young graduate would be a fine quality watch or ring. All will be suitably engraved and gift wrapped. The experienced staff at W. Wonnacott Jewellers will be pleased to help you choose this most important gift.

Good Savings On Draperies

Decor Studios in the Belleville Plaza have a great new collection of new and interesting wall covering samples. For those of you who have felt that papers and vinyls were not imaginative enough, you'll find different Oriental type wall-coverings of woven glass or cork. They also have a good selection of samples of genuine fabric wall coverings — everything from sliks and satins to burlap. There is something for every decor. If you've been considering new draperies for your home, from Sept. 26 to Oct. 11, you'll receive a 20% discount on all custom made draperies from Decor Studios. They have the biggest selection of materials in town from which to choose and in all colors under the rainbow. Consult with their professionals today about your drapery needs.

Visit Quinte Optical Soon

The management of Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E. are getting exasperated with the contractor that has been working on their building. Work seems to have come to a standstill and their sign still hasn't been put up. However they expect to have some definite information soon and apologize to their customers for any inconvenience. Remember, due to some confusion in the past over having a Trenton Optical in the town of Belleville, when their sign is once again in place above the door it will say "Quinte Optical". However, you will receive the same friendly, professional service from the same friendly, professional people. Visit Quinte Optical for all your optic needs.

Deal Now On A Datsun

If you're considering a newer car for your family now is the time to make that deal at Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St. W. They have very few 1975 Datsuns left on their lot, your selection would be limited, but as a result your trade-in value would be good. And remember, there is still a 5% sales tax rebate on the purchase of all new cars. Vader's sale of new cars has been really good in the past few weeks and as a result their lot is overloaded with good, late model used cars. They would like to move some of these used cars off their lot so you'll get a top deal on one of the late model cars. Don't wait. Don't hesitate. Make up your deal for a newer car now.

A Special Occasion or Just For Fun

There are many anniversaries celebrated in the fall and it's nice to go to a quiet intimate dining spot to celebrate that anniversary. You don't of course have to wait for your anniversary to drive to Picton and enjoy the delicious meals in the relaxed atmosphere of the century old home now known as the Inn on the Bay Tavern. You'll be able to enjoy a quiet drink before your meal while your eyes feast on the grand old architecture. If you're a lover of antiques, stroll through the downstairs rooms after your delectable meal and admire the lovely furniture which blends in with its decor. And perhaps you'd like to buy a memento of the occasion in their boutique before you leave. Make your reservations by calling 1-476-3114.

Sticks and Stones Better Than Names?

(Second column in a series of two about names.)

"Sticks and stones may break my bones,

But names can never hurt me!"

Generations of children have hurled back this smart reply in defense, when they've been taunted by their classmates, "called names" and made fun of.

But is it true?

I don't think so, now that I'm a few years out of the schoolyard and can afford to be honest. I think names have tremendous power over us.

Names like: "Fatty" and "Four-eyes" have caused far more grief than the cuts and scrapes of childhood warfare.

I suffered much more anguish over being called "Isa-Belly" than over bruises gained in skirmishes with any bully on the block.

Although we know that names are simply labels to conveniently set us apart, they tend to take on a greater importance than is logical. Names mean something to us because we attach ideas to them, we associate events, feelings and attitudes to certain groups of letters.

Don't you find that you're unable to hear certain names without certain persons flashing back into your memory? And don't you carry these feelings over to newly-met persons with these names?

Of course, our society helps along this sort of generalizing. There are names that come and go in popularity, and heaven help you if you're a child called Percy or Egbert during a phase when these are considered "fairy" names.

And I'd like to know how the baby girls of the 50s — the Kims and Kellys and Debbies and Shelleys — fare in 1975, as adults with "cute" starlet names (I suspect the Tabs, Rocks and Elvises have all gone underground!)

What's going to happen to the current trendy generation of toddlers with names like Sunshine and Freedom, Thor and Bilbo? Won't their destinies be shaped by public attitude — "You've gotta be kidding!" — to their names? Won't they perhaps be wishing they'd been called Dick or Jane . . . just as Dick and Jane are wishing to have more interesting, individual names?

Your name, after all, has a lot to do with how you feel about yourself, as much as how others feel about you.

Why else would it matter so much to some people when their names are mispronounced or misspelled? It must be that their very identities are tied up with what they're called.

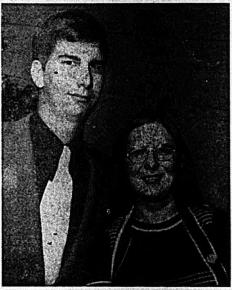
(I'm always fascinated by those who insist on the use of their titles such as "Mrs." or "Dr.", as if without those additions their names are incomplete.)

Names, even in our relatively sophisticated society, still carry with them a little magic, it seems.

So wouldn't it be much fairer if we got to choose our own names instead of being burdened with the ones our parents gave us because of their associations with the name? If you'd been able to choose, when you came of age at 18, what you'd be called for the rest of your life, would you have chosen the name you have now?

I doubt it.

I know that in my case, given that choice, this column would now be written by Scarlett O'Hara!



Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bond, are happy to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Linda Marie to Scott James Hemsley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hemsley. The wedding will take place on Saturday, October 11, at 3.30 p.m. in Tabernacle United Church.

People and Events

PARKDALE HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Parkdale Home and School Association will be held at the school on Monday, September 29, at 8 p.m.

The theme will be "Let's look at learning". Participating in the program will be Eric Runacres, Director of Education for Hastings County; Robert Horwood, Superintendent of Schools; Jean Hutchinson, Chairman of the Hastings County Board of Education; David Wilson, vice-Principal of Parkdale School; John Gibson, president of Parkdale Home and School Association.

The teaching staff will also be present and introduced to the parents.

HART'S-RIGGS' WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A very pleasant evening was enjoyed at Hart's-Riggs' W.I. Hall in Madoc Township recently, when the Institute celebrated its 20th anniversary.

The president welcomed the members and visitors, many of those present had been charter members.

The roll call was answered by each member and visitor giving a reminiscence of her childhood. Many interesting stories were told. Members had been asked to bring school pictures with names attached.

A birthday cake had been made and decorated with the institute crest by Betty LaPalm.

Mention was made of the book compiled by Ardith McKinnon and Garnet Pigden entitled "Way Back Then", which will soon be off the press. A tape of an interesting interview with Ida Parks was listened to. A paper was read by Linda Sexsmith, telling about the Tannery teams — boys and girls who had won championships for some years.

MARMORA CWL

A Meditation for International Women's Year was presented at the September meeting of the Catholic Women's League, Marmora. In examining the roles of the women taking part during the Way of The Cross some of the opportunities for spiritual growth that exist for women today were explored.

At the business meeting, members agreed to send financial aid to Father Tiffen in Armstrong, Ontario, a mission adopted by the league. Blankets and clothing will also be sent.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Betts

Betts — McQuaid

Cynthia Anne McQuaid and Kevin Douglas Betts were joined in marriage by Rev. George Ward in Bridge Street United Church in August.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.J. McQuaid and the groom is the son of Mrs. Frena Betts and the late Theodore Betts.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a chiffon gown with fluted pleating around the V-neckline and stand-up collar. Alencon lace was appliqued on the bodice, cuffs of the bishop sleeves and full skirt, and the hemline's wide flounce was also swirled with lace. A detachable chapel train fell from the waist. A four-tiered scalloped illusion finger-tip veil fell from a lace bonnet that featured a heart design and a pink satin bow. She carried red roses and white carnations.

Cheryl Sero, the bride's sister, was matron of honor in a mint green gown with caped sleeves and gathered bodice, tied at both neck and waist. She wore a matching picture hat and carried yellow daisies.

Sue Doran, Cathy Powers and Shari Betts, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids in canary yellow dotted voile gowns with square necklines and puffed sleeves trimmed with Swiss lace and ribbon. They also wore matching picture hats and white daisies.

Flower girl was Lori Betts, the groom's sister, dressed the same as the bridesmaids. Ring-bearer was Daryl McQuaid, brother of the bride.

The groom's best man was Gary Sero, and his ushers were his brother Jamie Betts, the bride's brother Wayne McQuaid, and Brad Christopher and Paul Reid.

A formal reception followed at the Legion Hall.

After a honeymoon to Niagara Falls, the newly-married couple moved to their new home at 96 Stanley Street.

British Study Virus For Anti-Insect Use

GUILDFORD, England (CP)—British scientists are working towards the possible use of viruses—agents of many diseases in animals and man—to kill harmful insects.

Dr. T. W. Tinsley of the Natural Environment Research Council's unit of invertebrate virology told the British Association for the Advancement of Science here that a team at his unit had been working for two years on four viruses that infect important pests - three species of army worm and a cotton-worm. hese pests cause enormous damage to crops in east Africa, the Mediterranean and North America.

The unit has been developing methods of obtaining large quantities of the viruses from their hosts and purifying them. It has perfected techniques of identifying a virus which, Dr. Tinsley said, meant that research on their effect could be done with new precision and sensitivity. Up to now, it had been impossible to know for certain whether an insect had been killed by one particular virus or by some other infection.

Discovers Way to Get Edible Eels Over Dams

OTTAWA (CP) — A biologist has solved the slippery problem of how to get millions of migrating, edible eels over dams on rivers.

Eels are considered a delicacy in Asia and some parts of Europe and bring the embryonic Ontario eel-fishing industry 75 cents a pound on the export market. However, until recently there was no known way of getting the eels over power dams and into waters where they can live and be caught.

But Russ Whitfield, an Ontario natural resources department biologist, has developed a ladder that allows eels to swim 90 feet up and over the Robert Saunders dam near Cornwall, Ont.

The ladder is a series of long, open-topped wooden troughs filled with fresh willow boughs. Each trough is a step angled at 12 degrees and the eels struggle up to the top of the dam in switchback stages.

At the top, they are netted by a three-man tagging team which uses a special tag designed by Vadim Vladykov of the University of Ottawa biology department. Dr. Vladykov has spent a lifetime studying eels and tracing them to their south Atlantic spawning grounds.

The problems of getting the eels over a dam and tagging them have nagged European scientists for years. The solutions put forward by the two Canadian biologists during a recent overseas tour are said to have amazed the Europeans.

Because the eels are so slippery, they are dipped into a chemical which temporarily knocks them out. This allows the tagging team time to attach a small jaw tag made of non-abrasive piano wire.

Every member of the Panasonic gang has special features.

Like the innovative Quintrix picture tube. You'll find it on such models as CT-324C, CT-914CA, and CT-974C with remote control, shown here. Where conventional picture tubes have only two lenses, Quintrix has a third. An extra prefocus lens for sharper, brighter viewing. And Quintrix delivers better contrast than we've ever had in a color picture tube before.

Another Panasonic feature is Quatrecolor. Which means you get a modular chassis for easy servicing, if ever needed. Q-Lock for one-touch color tuning. 100% solid state as in every Panasonic TV. And an Ultra Pana-Matrix picture tube in our Quatrecolor consoles such as PC-2645 and PC-2643, shown here.

Our 8" screen model? The CT-772C delivers pure, rich color. Features include Panabrite which adjusts color and contrast automatically when you change the brightness. Panalock automatic fine tuning, and 100% solid state...all in a lightweight compact portable.

CP News Roundup

Tremors Shake Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Earth tremors shook parts of eastern Turkey Wednesday where 3,000 persons were killed or injured in an earthquake Sept. 6. Hundreds of buildings collapsed Wednesday in the area of Lice, the semi-official Anatolia news agency said, but there was no official report of deaths.

Advises Caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Betty Ford said Wednesday she has advised her husband, President Ford, to continue meeting the public but to be more cautious after two recent assassination attempts. She said she does not fear for her husband's life. "I don't think he's in danger."

Hires Consultant

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Secret Service has hired a private consulting firm to outline what kinds of persons might be tempted to assassinate a U.S. president, assistant treasury secretary David MacDonald said Wednesday.

Changes Status

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Patricia Hearst no longer is listed as an urban guerrilla on a jail booking slip, San Mateo County Sheriff John McDonald said Wednesday that Miss Hearst had conferred with her lawyers and now lists herself as not employed. Miss Hearst had described herself as an urban guerrilla when she was booked into the jail after her capture.

Has Profile

OTTAWA (CP) — Keith Spicer, official languages commissioner, has confirmed that every federal government department and agency now has a detailed "linguistic profile" of its staff, listing employees' jobs, language requirements and attitudes toward bilingual training. The issue was raised several months ago by Stan Darling, who represents the Ontario riding of Parry Sound-Muskoka in the Commons.

Establish Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Cuba established a new trade Wednesday and ministers from both countries expressed hope that rapidly expanding trade will continue to grow.

Best in Show

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian life insurance companies received 26 awards of excellence, including three for best-of-show, at the 42nd annual conference of the Life Insurance Advertisers Association in Kansas City. The awards were for such categories as advertising, public relations and promotion.

Raises Rate

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Dominion Bank has raised its conventional residential mortgage rate by ¼ per cent to 12 per cent. The bank says it also has raised its National Housing Act mortgage rate by ¼ per cent to 11¾ per cent.

Will Expand Chain

OTTAWA (CP) — Becker Milk Co. Ltd. announced Wednesday it will open 15 milk and convenience stores in Ottawa during the next few months. The first two opened Wednesday.

Considers Ombudsmen

TORONTO (CP) — Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. of Hamilton is considering using ombudsmen to settle and arbitrate grievances between employees and management, says Donald Pepper, personnel vice-president.

Police Raid House

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A police raid Tuesday on a house in the nearby village of Maidstone resulted in the arrest of three men who were charged with possession of drugs and restricted firearms. Police say that two ounces of a chemical drug and 11 handguns and semi-automatic weapons were seized. The three men were arraigned in provincial court Wednesday.

No Room in Homes

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Lawyer Charles Ryall says that not one person sentenced during the last six months in provincial court here has actually gone to a reformatory to serve the term because all of the institutions are full.

"There is no room in the reformatories," he said Tuesday in provincial court. "Prisoners are being kept in the Niagara regional detention centre in Thorold."

Urges Resignation

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Leeds, Wednesday called for the resignation of Jean-Pierre Goyer from the federal cabinet. Mr. Cossitt said Mr. Goyer had hired a "hometown buddy," Yvon Gariepy, as master of the Royal Mint. Both Mr. Goyer and Mr. Gariepy are from St. Laurent, Que.

Nixon Faces Stiff Pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon is facing mounting pressure from two fronts for his testimony about intelligence activities undertaken while he was in the White House.

In separate actions Wednesday, the former president received an invitation to testify—and the threat of a subpoena if he refuses—from a Senate committee, and was directed by a federal judge to answer questions under oath in a civil suit.

The Senate intelligence committee voted unanimously to request Nixon's testimony on a broad and illegal plan for surveillance of domestic dissenters which the former president approved but later halted.

After a closed-door vote, the 11-member committee, headed by Senator Frank Church (Dem. Idaho), directed its chief counsel to begin negotiations with Nixon's lawyers for the former president's voluntary testimony.

One of Nixon's lawyers, Herbert Miller Jr., declined to predict how Nixon will respond.

Church warned that if Nixon does not appear voluntarily, the committee might "ultimately have to face the prospect of a subpoena."

A plan approved by Nixon in July, 1970, called for a stepped-up program of domestic surveillance, including mail interceptions. Five days later, Nixon revoked his order when the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover objected.

Meanwhile, in an unprecedented action, a U.S. District Court Judge ordered Nixon to give a deposition in a suit by a former National Security Council staff member whose telephone was tapped.

The suit was brought by Morton Halperin, whose phone was tapped for 21 months in 1969-70. He is seeking damages that could exceed $300,000.

U.S. District Court Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. ruled that only President Ford can invoke presidential confidentiality on Nixon's behalf and Ford has not done so. Smith directed that Nixon be questioned at or near his home in San Clemente, Calif.

East Coast Residents Lack Social Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Residents of Quebec and the Atlantic provinces apparently are not as well off as other Canadians in terms of social services, suggets a report released Wednesday by the Canadian Council on Social Development.

Statistics show some regions have fewer general practitioners than others, forcing residents to make more use of outpatient clinics and hospital emergency facilities, the report says.

"While 40 per cent of the patients from the Atlantic regions and close to 25 per cent of those from Quebec used these services for a medical examination, in other Canadian regions only 13.5 to 18 per cent of the total number of patients used them for this reason."

The 497-page report, which cost $62,000, involved a survey of about 2,000 persons on use of and attitudes to services.

The report also says while legal aid programs have proliferated in the last few years, they are "more easily obtainable in Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario, but conspicuously are less so in Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island."

Of persons surveyed who had legal problems, only 11.2 per cent took advantage of government legal aid.

The council, which put together the report with financial help from the federal health and welfare department, also said use of homemaker services is lower than expected.

Communist Countries Compromise Oil Prices

VIENNA (AP) — Representatives of the non-Communist world's major oil exporting countries appear headed for a compromise agreement to increase the price of crude oil an average of about five per cent.

Sources at a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) indicated this would be accomplished by a 10-per-cent increase in the basic price but with reductions in the additional charges.

Iraqi Oil Minister Tayeh Abdul Karim said all 13 OPEC members but Saudi Arabia were agreed on a 10-per-cent increase—about $1 a barrel.

Other sources said this would be accompanied by a series of reductions in surcharges for other oils that would in effect reduce the average increase for all OPEC oil to about five per cent.

Because the worldwide recession has reduced the demand for higher-quality oils, such producers as Iran, Iraq, Nigeria, Abu Dhabi, Libya and Indonesia have already cut their differential charges by varying amounts. Sources, however, predict the conference will adopt a uniform rate schedule.

Immigration Proposes Stiffer Regulations

OTTAWA (CP) — Future immigrants may lose housing aid and other social services unless they abide by agreements to live and work in designated mentary committee on immigration was told Wednesday.

Senior immigration department officials said Ottawa and the provinces are discussing the areas, the special parlia- possibility of a form of contract which would require new arrivals to remain for a prescribed period in certain areas or be denied access to social services.

The officials, headed by assistant deputy minister Jean Edmonds, told the joint Commons-Senate committee that both levels of government want to direct immigrants away from overcrowded big cities.

They talked of the contracts after Immigration Minister Robert Andras admitted he found the idea somewhat distasteful.

"Such suggestions are not easy to reconcile with the important principle that once we have accepted someone as a suitable permanent member of Canada's population, he should have essentially the same righ's that Canadians enjoy, includi the right of freedom of movement."

But he added he might be willing to accept a plan to require immigrants to settle in designated areas if the conditions of entry were fully understood and agreed to by the immigrants.

The officials said they are looking at a combination of incentives and penalties to direct new arrivals to areas where their job skills are in demand.

They said one method is to deny immigrants formal landed immigrant status until they arrive in the designated area. A tougher alternative would be to deny them access to social services unless they remained in the area for a fixed period.

$1 Increase in Oil Small Effect on World

OTTAWA (CP) — A $1 increase in the world oil price would only slightly affect the government's cost of subsidizing oil imports, a spokesman for the energy supplies allocation board said Wednesday.

Figures released by the board, which administers the federal program, indicate the increase probably will add only about $13 million to the cost of the compensation fund between now and the end of the fiscal year.

In the context of the total program, estimated to cost $1.3 billion in the year ending March 31, there would be no significant change, the spokesman said.

Earlier, Iraqi Oil Minister Abdul Karim said most members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), meeting in Vienna, had agreed to an increase of about $1 a barrel.

Canada imports and exports its crude oil at current world prices of about $11 a barrel while domestic producers pay an $18-a-barrel price frozen by the federal government.

An export charge levied on exports of 750,000 barrels of oil a day from Western Canada to the United States is used to subsidize the cost of the 800,000 to 825,000 barrels imported for use in Eastern Canada.

Strong Buyers Response Pushes Car Sales Up

DETROIT (AP) — Strong consumer response to 1976 models and a continued upswing in over-all car buying pushed domestic auto sales in the United States during mid-September to their fifth highest level for the period in history.

The four U.S. automakers reported Wednesday that sales in the middle 10 days of the month trailed strong year-ago levels by just sixth-tenths of a per cent.

The companies sold 192,033 cars in nine selling days in the Sept. 11-20 period, down from 193,184 in the same number of selling days a year ago.

More than a third of the sales in the latest period were new models, which originally were not scheduled to go on sale until late September.

General Motors Corp., the only company to report a gain for the period, said its sales rose seven per cent above the same 1974 span. Ford Motor Co. posted a nine-per-cent decline, Chrysler Corp. was off eight per cent and American Motors Corp. dropped two per cent.

The U.S. companies have sold 4,774,208 cars so far this year, a 15-per-cent decline from last year's depressed levels. GM is down nine per cent, AMC 16 per cent, Ford 19 per cent and Chrysler 25 per cent.

The companies are raising prices this fall by about $200 to $250 a car. Company spokesmen say the more modest increases have prevented a repeat of last year's consumer resistance to higher prices.

The 1976 cars accounted for 66 per cent of AMC's period sales, 45 per cent of GM's and a third of Ford's. Chrysler, which began new-model output only a week ago, sold no 1976 cars in the period.

GM sold 101,326 cars in the period, compared with 94,610 in 1974. Year-to-date GM sales of 2,502,794 compare with 2,759,069 in 1974.

Ford sold 57,415 cars in the period, compared with 63,093 a year ago. Year-to-date sales of 1,330,648 are down from 1,649,719 in 1974.

Chrysler sold 24,776 cars in the period, down from 26,805 last year. Year-to-date sales of 706,822 compare with 944,759 in 1974. AMC sales of 8,516 in the period compare with 8,676 last year. Year-to-date sales of 233,942 are down from 277,616 in 1974.

Pickering Airport Site Closed

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — Federal security guards closed all gates into the Pickering airport site Wednesday to keep out protesters who have promised to try to stop construction of runways.

Airport officials said guards in parked cars were at all eight gates leading into the 1,800-acre site to prevent a possible invasion by members of the anti-airport People or Planes (PoP) movement.

A spokesmen for the movement said last week that about 1,300 persons had signed pledges to sit in front of bulldozers to block runway construction.

Bulldozers and other construction equipment, scheduled to be on the site last week and again Tuesday, still had not arrived Wednesday and airport officials refused to say when they would be brought in.

Meanwhile, three members of PoP were spending their 10th day in a 119-year-old farmhouse scheduled for demolition.

Frances Moore, Anne Howes and Brenda Davies have vowed to stay in the house to save it from the wrecking crews.

"We have a fair bit of food and firewood here and some people are out getting some more for us now," Mrs. Moore said in an interview Wednesday.

Plan to Invest In Syncrude Oil

OTTAWA (CP) —Three governments plan to continue pouring money into the Syncrude Canada Ltd. oil sands plant in Alberta although no formal agreement has been signed making them part owners.

The federal government, Alberta and Ontario decided last February to join three multinational oil companies as partners in the venture, staving off a financial crisis that threatened to kill the $2-billion project.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says lawyers for the companies and the government still are working out the legal details of the contracts involved but the parties have agreed to continue to pay out money in the meantime.

So far Ottawa has advanced about $50 million of the $300 million it intends to invest before the plant goes into production in 1978, energy department officials say.

Alberta is investing $200 million in the plant and Ontario $100 million under the agreement.

Wages Beat Living Cost

OTTAWA (CP) — Employees average wages in most industries outran the rise in the cost of living in the last 12 months, figures released Wednesday by Statistics Canada show.

Average weekly earnings rose by 13.4 per cent to $204.27 in July from $180.07 in July a year ago. The June average was $203.16.

During the same period, the consumer price index—the most commonly used measure of the cost of living—rose 11 per cent.

The weekly earnings average covers all industries except agriculture, fishing and trapping, education and related services, health and welfare services and private households and public administration.

The highest average weekly earnings went to employees in construction industries, who earned $291.04 in July—14.2 per cent higher than the average $254.81 they received in July last year and up from $286.11 in June.

Next highest was forestry, where average weekly earnings rose 12.7 per cent to $226.23 in July from $218.39 a year earlier. But the July average was down from the average $254.85 in June.

Lowest paying were the service industries, where employees received an average $144.18 a week in July—11.7 per cent higher than $129.13 weekly in July last year and up from $142.09 in June.

LCBO Offers Good Buys

TORONTO (CP) — If you are a lover of good wine and also blessed with patience, the Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO) may have a good buy for you starting Saturday.

Capitalizing on current supply, market and economic conditions, the LCBO has bought about 60,000 bottles of 22 varieties of Bordeaux which will sell from $3.50 to $8.25 a bottle.

The catch, the LCBO said Wednesday in a news release, is that you may have to control your thirst for anywhere up to five years, for the wine has not yet reached maturity.

It also will have to be laid down at proper temperatures (10 to 18 degrees Celsius) before being consumed.

The wines will be available in about 100 liquor stores across the province.

"The main advantage of this purchase is that every Ontario wine lover has a chance to lay down a quality Bordeaux at very reasonable price," said Bob Galichon, LCBO's director of product control.

If your patience is not as good as you thought it was, drinking the wine too soon will not be harmful. But the wine will not be as good as if you had waited.

STAFF CUTS HURT

EVERYBODY

If you have a relative, friend or neighbor in a hospital, nursing home, or other health care institution, then there's something you should know. Staff cuts hurt everybody. They place a heavier burden on nursing staff, technologists, dietary and housekeeping staff. This hurts you. But most of all, staff cuts hurt your loved ones who need the best possible health care.
Expenses should be reduced. But let's cut out needless frills, not vital services.
The Service Employees International Union realizes that staff cuts hurt everybody. That's why we need your help. Write to your newspaper. Write to your Member of Parliament. Insist on legislation against hospital staff cuts. Remember, the S.E.I.U. needs your help for better health care.

30-mile an Hour Winds Delay Spraying of Insecticide in Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Gusts of wind up to 30 mile an hour delayed, until at least today, the aerial spraying of insecticide for mosquitoes carrying encephalitis in this area, a spokesman for the board of health said Wednesday.

Ideal conditions for spraying are winds about three miles an hour and a temperature about 21 C., he said.

Dr. Joseph Jones, medical health officer for Windsor and Essex County, had ordered an earlier scheduled spraying postponed Tuesday due to poor weather conditions. He said an optimum kill of mosquitoes must be achieved to prevent further cases of encephalitis.

Health authorities said Wednesday 74 persons had been examined for the disease so far and there were 25 confirmed cases of encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, identified as the St. Louis strain spread by adult mosquitoes.

No high schools in the area will be allowed to play outdoor football games until the spraying can be completed, despite a request by the Windsor Secondary Schools Association for special permission to play a game scheduled for today, the board spokesman said.

In St. Catharines, where one case of the disease has been confirmed and seven suspected cases examined, Dr. J. R. Burkholder, a health officer, said spraying of the Niagara Peninsula is unlikely. He said there were no new reports of the disease.

Lewis Wants Oil Freeze in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party in Ontario feels the minority provincial government "can proceed usefully for at least a period of time," the NDP leader, Stephen Lewis, said Wednesday.

Mr. Lewis called on Premier William Davis to freeze any possible increases in the price of natural gas until the Ontario Energy Board has a chance to study the situation.

You need 6" of insulation in your attic.
You can do it yourself, this weekend.

Tonight, go up to the attic and measure the thickness of your insulation.

If you don't have 6", you don't have enough.

If you don't have 6", you should add more insulation this weekend.

1 The high cost of heating is getting higher. In the past year or so, your fuel bill has gone up substantially. And it'll go up more. The only way around the situation is to use less fuel. And that means more insulation.

2 Insulation is an investment. Building codes are being changed and 6" of insulation in the attic will probably be the new minimum for all new housing. Make your insulation conform to the new standards and you'll be increasing the real value of your home and saving on the cost of heating, too.

3 What kind of insulation should you get? Fiberglas.* It's easy to install, readily available and inexpensive. It's also extremely efficient, rot and mildew proof, fire retardant and recognized everywhere as the best form of insulation.

If you already have some insulation in the attic you'll probably need Fiberglas friction fit batts.

They install without so much as a nail. Just stuff them between the floor joists in the attic, right over the insulation you have. Get your Fiberglas friction fit batts thick enough to make 6" when you add the depth of your present insulation.

Since you'll be adding to existing insulation, do not use insulation with a backing or a vapour barrier. (You could be creating condensation problems.) All you need is plain, unbacked insulation–Fiberglas friction fit batts.

4 If you have no insulation at all. You need Fiberglas kraft faced batts with a built in vapour barrier. You'll need it 6" thick (that's called R-20) and you apply it the same way–laying it between the joists in the attic floor. The vapour barrier (the paper side) always goes next to the warm side. So in the attic, it's paper side down.

5 The Fiberglas booklet. It tells all. Your building supply dealer has a free copy of the Fiberglas booklet for you. It's called "HOW TO FIGHT THE RISING COST OF FUEL BY IMPROVING YOUR HOME'S INSULATION". Ask for it and read it. It'll tell you everything you need to know about insulating your attic, rec room, cottage and give you other tips on conserving energy.

To do the average house should take the weekend. But it's an investment that pays dividends on every fuel bill you'll ever receive.

Remote Theatre

The Mull Little Theatre, on a small island in the Hebrides, off the coast of Scotland, is possibly the smallest professional playhouse in the world and one of the most remote. The theatre was founded 10 years ago by Marion and Barrie Hesketh who are graduates of the Central School of Speech and Drama in London. (CP Photo).

Hebrides Little Theatre Smallest and Most Remote

DERVAIG, Scotland (CP)—Possibly the smallest professional playhouse in the world, the Mull Little Theatre—on a tiny island in the Hebrides, off the coast of Scotland—is also one of the most remote.

Despite its unlikely location, husband and wife team Marion and Barrie Hesketh who run the theatre have seen it go from strength to strength since its founding more than 10 years ago.

To reach it, the traveller must go through the Scottish mountains of Argyll to Oban, then sail across the stretch of ocean between the mainland and the island of Mull in the Inner Hebrides.

The village where the theatre is located is near the northernmost shore of the island. It is housed in a little converted barn next to a stone house set high above the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Hesketh met in the early 1950s as fellow students of the Central School of Speech and Drama in London.

Shortly after, they were married and worked in several theatres in the north of England until Marion decided to become a full time housewife and mother. Her husband found himself a steady job with the Scottish Community Drama Association, work which took him all over Scotland.

He did not really enjoy it.

"I found that I could not answer—I mean answer properly—the questions I was always asked, especially about technique, and that began to worry me a lot," he said. "I could do things by instinct. I knew when something was right, but I could not explain to people why it was right and I reckoned that I needed to do a great deal of finding out on my own account."

But he loved working in the Highlands where the ceilidh (a Scottish gathering often lasting all night for singing and music-making) tradition still is strong.

"The Highlander has an oral rather than a literary culture and so he understands theatre. He takes to drama like a duck to water."

With the combination of their growing family of three sons, a modest legacy and the availability of the house at Dervaig, the Hesketh decided to settle on Mull and to found the Little Theatre as a two-person enterprise.

At the beginning, they combined the theatre with running a guest house, Marion tells how she and Barrie would serve dinner to the guests before the show.

"Then we would say, 'When you have finished your coffee, would you mind carrying your chairs over to the theatre' and rush off to change and put on makeup,' she said.

After the performance they would return, tired out and still in costume to deal not only with the supper trolley but also with the inevitable after - theatre discussions which they found even more exhausting than the performance.

So the guest house did not last long.

Said Marion: "If we had to be driven into the ground we decided we would much rather the theatre alone was responsible."

Since those days, the theatre has grown, financial hazards nothwithstanding.

The Hesketh have enjoyed the respect of both critics and public. Consequently several grants or awards have come their way.

The latest of these was a grant of $10,000 from the Scottish Arts Council for up-to-date recording equipment.

A great success in the early days was the adaptation of The Tempest in which the Hesketh played all the parts.

More recently they staged Chekov's Tatiana Repin using seven loudspeakers strategically placed all over the tiny auditorium, manipulating the sound so as to conjure up a sense of being in a great basilica.

Between them they taped all 25 parts and used the sound of a full-scale cathedral choir. No one appeared on stage, which throughout remained black curtained and bare except for the suggestion of a huge pillar bearing the figure of a saint, made in paper by Barrie.

Bank Manager Pans for Gold

EDMONTON (CH) — By day Blaine Brooks is a mild-mannered, no-nonsense bank manager, a member of the establishment.

But after leaving his office he becomes a fevered prospector, panning for gold until sunset on the banks of the North Saskatchewan River.

Mr. Brooks is just one of the growing fraternity of Albertans struck by gold fever.

"It's like being a member of a fraternal organization today if you're a panner," said Mr. Brooks. "You know, no one panning in these rivers is going to get rich, so it kind of takes the jealousy and competitiveness out of it."

On any given summer evening you're likely to see groups of panners along the river's banks. And when they meet, they trade stories, some just as tall as the tale about the big one that got away.

They talk about the man from near Edson, 115 miles west of Edmonton, who gets 30) colors, or tiny specks of flour gold, every time he pans. And they talk about the old man near Berrymoor, 70 miles southwest, who has made a living from gold panning for several years.

But most of the new part-time prospectors admit they wouldn't know what to do if they did strike it rich, highly unlikely in a province where most of the gold is amoeba-sized.

"I think it's the best hobby I've ever had," said Sam Currie, a senior Alberta Government Telephones employee. "I took a course in panning after I decided there must be something else to do in the summer besides fishing."

Mr. Currie has been panning since June, when he took a course from Frank Muran, an Imperial Oil Ltd. employee and part-time gold panner.

Mr. Muran has taught about 30 persons. He charges $25 for the one-day course.

Mr. Brooks took one of Canada's most-publicized gold-panning courses last spring. The two-day course is given by Paul Ajas, the police chief of Lacombe, at Red Deer College, and costs $30.

The course has been given for the last two years and a College spokesman estimates more than 200 persons have taken it this summer.

Mr. Brooks says he looks for a rocky area along the river because heavy gold and rocks tend to go together. He then digs a hole and takes a shovelful of dark, rocky dirt.

History Teacher Changes Job

OTTAWA (CP) — It's quite a leap from a career teaching history to one teaching skydiving, but 26-year-old Joe Chow has made it with ease.

It all began in 1969 when some friends at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., bet him a carton of beer that he would not make a parachute jump.

Although he had never been in an airplane, he made the jump, collected the beer and enjoyed the whole thing so much that his plans to teach history went down the drain.

Now a veteran of 1,840 jumps, Mr. Chow operates the Ottawa Sky Diving Centre. More than 1,000 parachutists have been trained by Mr. Chow, his wife and two other instructors since the centre opened in 1971.

Joe was born in China and his family moved to Toronto when he was six. His mother operated a restaurant for several years and never dreamed she would see her son plunge from an airplane 17,000 feet above the ground.

"My mother has seen me jump but wants me to quit," Joe said. "My whole family looks upon my present occupation with alarm."

The skydiver has never had an accident.

"People ask me if anyone ever chickens out, but only a few who are afraid through ignorance do."

Skydiving takes extensive training. "You learn landings are not as rough as they seem; you learn to climb out of a plane, to fall and to steer a chute."

Whale Waits Home

Guard Mark Shawver gives a young killer whale a bite to eat before it was shipped Thursday night to Hamilton, where it will await its new home in Niagara Falls. The whale was held at Pedder Bay, just outside of Victoria. The capture of the whale started a federal-provincial confrontation on the trapping of the large mammals for public display. It is believed this one will be the last killer whale taken from British Columbia waters. (CP Photo)

ENERGY CONSERVATION

If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem.

CANADA'S ENERGY PICTURE is really quite clear. We're on an energy binge and available resources are shrinking. Here is a report on where we stand now, where we're headed and the prices we'll have to pay.

Some experts say we must conserve energy to save ourselves. Some are sitting on the fence. Others still do not believe conservation can play an important role. Read the facts and draw your own conclusions:

MOST CANADIANS have been lulled by the good life. We drive big cars, plug in appliances to do our work, use throw-away products, flick on heating and air conditioning switches with thoughtless abandon.

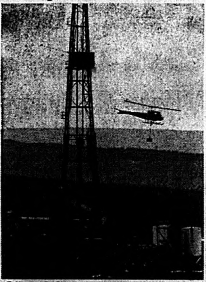
Between 1960 and the present, the average energy consumed by each one of us has almost doubled. Only the United States uses more energy per person than we do.

Yet we merrily roll along assuming there will always be more oil, more natural gas and more electricity to feed our growing appetite. Projections of current trends put our per capita demand in 2000 at about 2½ times today's consumption.

Here, briefly, are current facts on our resources, the costs of developing and delivering them, the environmental and social consequences of the way we live.

It's not much fun to read, but it may wake us up in time.

What's the resource picture in Canada?

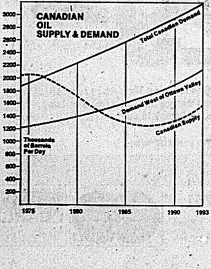


Oil and Gas

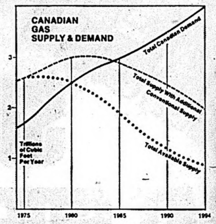
In terms of easily accessible oil and gas resources, our best years appear to be behind us.

The National Energy Board says that by 1977, there will not be enough crude oil production capacity in Canada to meet our national demand. We will be forced to become net importers of oil from other countries. And what price will they set?

By 1984, we may not even be able to meet the demand in the areas west of the Ottawa Valley traditionally served by Canadian oil; this despite active development of the difficult and expensive Athabasca Oil Sands.



Natural gas prospects are almost as bleak. The recent National Energy Board report on gas predicts spot shortages starting late in this decade and a gap between domestic demand and conventional supplies by 1984.



True, we hear about oil and gas discoveries in the Arctic and offshore, but these can't be depended upon. We don't yet know how much is there, how much can be delivered, when, or at what price.

Electricity

Most of Canada's readily available hydro-electric sites have already been developed or are in the process of being developed.

Nuclear power can supply part of our projected demands but economic uranium supplies are limited and reactor costs are rising. There are real constraints to the rate at which nuclear power can or should be developed.

As for other sources of electricity, they are currently based on non-renewable fossil fuels such as coal and oil.

Coal

Coal once supplied a large portion of our energy needs and we have large reserves left. Many deposits will be difficult and costly to develop. The environmental impacts are significant and the energy uses for coal are currently limited to direct heating and electricity generation. Research and development required for coal gasification and liquefaction processes will require long lead times and are sure to be expensive.

Other Sources

Undoubtedly renewable forms of energy such as solar, wind and biomass, as well as new technologies, will have a role to play as our current non-renewable sources fade from the scene. Without conservation and new research and development, however, it will be impossible for them to be developed fast enough to satisfy runaway demands.

Can we come up with $20,000 per family?

Twenty Thousand
$20,000

If we continue to gobble up energy at our present rate of increase, Canada will need twice as much in just 12 years. That means our energy-producing capacity must also double in 12 years.

Economists say this will require capital investments of some $110 billion between now and 1985. Money for new generators, dams, powerlines, uranium and coal mines, gas wells, oil wells and pipelines.

That works out to an investment of about $20,000 for each family in Canada.

Where will it come from? From money which would otherwise finance schools, hospitals, roads and other important projects. They'll have to wait.

And as we move to lower quality and more remote sources of energy, the costs go up. More energy must be used simply to produce energy. The Syncrude oil sands project, for example, is estimated to need about one barrel of oil out of every 4 produced simply to run the plants.

What's the environmental price?

We boast about Canada's clean air and water, about our lush countryside. Yet the mere act of producing and using energy threatens our atmosphere, water and land. Nothing escapes—crops, livestock, forests, wildlife, and indeed ourselves. Energy is a great polluter.

The more energy we produce and use, the greater the threat to our environment.

Energy conservation, when you stop to think about it, is the purest form of environmental protection.

How much energy do we need to enjoy life?

A good many Canadians now question the "bigger is better" dream. Have our higher incomes and greater wealth produced all we had hoped for?

Many Canadians drive larger, more powerful cars, but it takes us just as long to get to work, with more aggravations along the route.

We spend money on convenience-type appliances, yet we don't insulate our homes properly.

Our garbage bags are bursting with the waste of an affluent society.

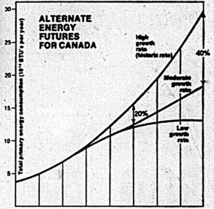
Other countries seem to have found comfortable standards of living without extreme energy consumption. In Sweden—a highly industrialized country with a climate and living standard like ours—they use one-third less energy per person than we do.

France, Germany, Finland, the United Kingdom, Denmark and Italy all use less than half our energy per person.

Is all our consumption and convenience really worth the price? A philosophical question, perhaps, but one we'll have to grapple with in planning Canada's future.

Efforts to lower our energy consumption — smaller cars, more mass transit, better built homes, more efficient industry, less waste production, more personal effort — will contribute to the quality of life as well as save energy.

What's the plan for the future?



Until recently, Canada's energy policy was straightforward: find and deliver enough energy to meet the expanding demand. But that's not good enough today.

Reducing demand is now as significant as expanding supply.

In the words of Donald Macdonald, Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources: "Conservation is now an important part of Canada's overall energy policy. This will be a permanent policy—not a contingency plan enacted in a crisis. We are developing a five-phase program to cope with these times of high-cost resources, to involve all Canadians in a program of energy conservation and to provide a stable energy future and high quality of life for all Canadians."

The goal is a 20% cut in projected consumption by 1985—an energy saving equal to three quarters of our current oil imports or the output of 10,000 conventional oil wells or 55 nuclear stations.

This will not call for drastic changes in lifestyle. It's possible with modest savings in daily living, industry, commerce and transportation.

Yes, it will take some effort. We're grown accustomed to waste.

But remember that as we cut back on gasoline and electricity and natural gas and home heating oil, we're also saving money for ourselves.

But this is just a bonus.

Energy savings now can improve our environment and way of life far into the future.

Is there really any sensible alternative? If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem.

Cox Stresses Concern for City Core

Belleville planning committee chairman Joe Cox has again urged for immediate efforts to "revitalize" the city's downtown core.

He made the comments at a meeting of Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee Wednesday.

In connection with a request to expand the Quinte Mall, Ald Cox said: "The downtown is really being left behind.

"We need some concept for its revitalization."

"If we had a strong down-

"If we had a strong downtown as well as a strong shopping mall, we'd be a much more lively, thriving community," he said.

Several weeks ago Quinte Planning Board staff were instructed to dust off a dated renewal study aimed at the downtown and asked to report back with an updated version.

A planner said Wednesday, time has not yet permitted this work to be completed.

Asked whether or not downtown regeneration is a city responsibility, Ald. Cox said "the prime responsibility is in the hands of the merchants and businessmen downtown."

"The city, where it is able, should contribute technical expertise through its staff and a percentage of the work should be paid for through the general tax rate," he said.

Stolen Vehicle Sought

TRENTON — Police are seeking a car stolen from Dundas Street West, Wednesday, after the owner walked away from the car and left his keys in the ignition.

The car is owned by Alex Wannamaker of RR 1 Wooler, who left the car parked and was returning when he told police he saw the vehicle being driven out of town across the Dundas St. Bridge.

The vehicle bears the licence plate EDO 862.

Damage Extensive

DEMORESTVILLE — A Picton man escaped injury Wednesday evening in a single-car crash about 1.5 miles south of here that caused $2,000 damage.

Police say Larry Robinson, 22, Ontario St., Picton, was northbound on County Road 5 when his car left the road on a curve, entered the ditch and struck a telephone pole.

Damage to the pole was estimated at $100 and $1,900 to the car.

Driver Flees Scene Of Mishap

PICTON — A Picton man was treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises early today following a two-car collision on Main St. near the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Injured was Edward Aide, 21, of Pitt St., who was driving west on Main St. when he was in collision with another car.

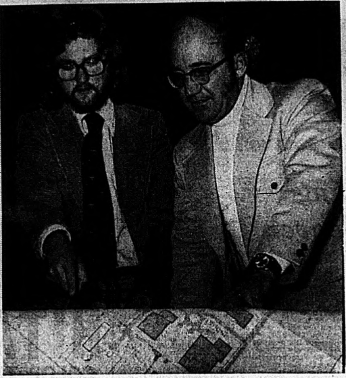
Driver of the second vehicle left the accident scene and is being sought by police.

Damage to the Aide car was estimated at $1,000. hTe accident occurred shortly after 2 a.m.

Error Hurts Slide Show

PICTON — A slide presentation by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority at the Prince Edward County fair this month was a failure because of an error at fairboard level says Ross Benway chairman of the PERCA's information and education committee.

Mr. Benway told authority members Wednesday at their regular meeting that the fairboard was contacted before the display was set up. A fairboard member forgot the request for space and the PERCA was forced to show its slides upstairs in the County Centre where school displays were exhibited.



Mall Plans Discussed

Belleville's planning committee, under the chairmanship of Ald. Joe Cox (left) gave its approval to large-scale expansion of the Quinte Mall Wednesday. The approval followed a Quinte Planning Board report authored by Simon Ainley which also approved the plans. The final decision now is in city council's hands.

Mall Gets Green Light For Major Expansion

By COLIN BRUCE

Staff Reporter

A request to expand the Quinte Mall cleared its first major hurdle Wednesday night by gaining the approval of city council's planning committee.

The subordinate planning advisory committee (SPAC) unanimously endorsed the expansion plan but not before Mayor Ben Corke lodged his concern on behalf of the city's downtown. In the lengthy report made to SPAC by planning board staff, it was stated the expansion will not be "detrimental" to the downtown core.

Mayor Corke interrupted the report presentation commenting, "to say the expansion will have no detrimental effect on the downtown is a lot of hogwash. Nobody can believe this . . . surely," he told fellow committee members.

The existing mall covers 233,000 square feet in retail space. With the addition of the proposed 125,000, the Quinte Mall will measure 95,000 square feet larger than the entire downtown retail space.

Mayor Corke said, however, "I'm not complaining, I'm supporting this proposal."

SPAC also considered proposals for highrise and industrial park development — leaving both proposals for the time being.

Because of official plan status, the land on the south side of Bell Blvd., slated for the highrise development requires a secondary plan.

Additional information is needed on the industrial sites to the west of the mall.

The committee will forward its approval of the project immediately to city council recommending council give the project final ratification.

Cambridge Leaseholds, owners of the mall, announced several months ago they intended expanding the shopping facility.

In anticipation of city authorization, the firm has already begun bringing the land to grade at the rear of the mall in preparation for an early spring construction start.

Also in preparation for the expansion scheme, city council this year put $100,000 into the capital works budget for construction of storm sewers into the development.

After explaining the capital works budget application, committee chairman Ald. Joe Cox was urged by fellow alderman Jack Ireland to be as considerate when the downtown comes looking for help with a parking garage.

Work on Sidney Firehall Might Begin Next Month

By AL ZABAS

Staff Reporter

Construction on the third fire hall in Sidney township might begin at Bayside as early as mid-October, Morden-Guthrie Ltd. spokesman John Guthrie said Wednesday.

The Belleville firm, awarded a contract to design the two-bay structure, has been working on final details of the firehall plan for the last three or four weeks.

Mr. Guthrie said Wednesday tenders could conceivably be called within " a day or so". The call for the estimated $40,000 building will close Oct. 14.

"It could start any time after that — literally on the 15th," he said.

Men from the new fire hall will cover the southern portion of the township. Two other halls — one at Batawa and another at Wallbride-Loyalist Rd. and the fourth concession — will cover the northern part of the township.

When construction begins depends on final tender approval by Sidney council, which has not yet scheduled a meeting for the week ending Oct. 17.

Mr. Guthrie said the hall design calls for a two-bay, all-concrete building with a mezzanine floor.

It will be built on land leased from the Hastings County Board of Education on Aitkens Rd. south of Highway 2.

Sidney fire chief Douglas Scott said Wednesday that, the new station will offer " much better protection for the majority of township residents", most of whom live south of Highway 401.

He said he is satisfied with the location of the firehall, and with the exception of an inadequate water supply, its siting is "exceptionally good." The water supply problem, Chief Scott said, is still a problem.

Both men and a 500 — gallong pumper are ready to move into the new hall, once it's complete, he said.

Volunteer fire fighters, living south of Highway 401 and formerly working from the other two fire hall, man will the Bayside station. The eight men, plus others who now are taking a basic fire fighting course at Loyalist College, will fill a station strength of 15.

The Cobourg Royal Canadian Legion Pipe Band will hold their annual Highland Ball Oct. 17 at Cobourg Pavilion. The group will also participate in Santa Claus parade and the annual Hasty Pees Military Ball in Peterborough. The band has 11 student members from Belleville, Trenton, Carrying Place and Brighton.

Venezuelan Students Guests at Pub Night

The 20 Venezuelan students who are taking special English courses at Loyalist College for the next nine months were honored as special guest during a student council-sponsored pub night at Loyalist Wednesday.

Art McFarlane, director of student services, said Wednesday it was a regular pub night but the first dance to which the new foreign students were formally invited.

He said there had been plans to have them as guests at the first regular freshman dance two weeks ago but the limited capacity in the cafeteria postponed the event.

Mr. McFarlane said the cafeteria capacity is 417 people and there are about 500 new Loyalist students this year.

Bob McBride was the feature artist for the event.

BOB McBRIDE

McBride Happier On His Own

Bob McBride, the former lead singer and guitarist for Canada's number one rock group Lighhouse says he doesn't miss the starlights and fanfare. He's enjoying makng his kind of music and playing to small audiences across Canada.

McBride's six-man band played Wednesday night at the Loyalist College keg and barrel dance honoring 20 Venezuelan student visitors.

McBride branched out from Lighthouse almost two years ago after a frustrating time with stage pressures and demands after what he described as "almost a nervous breakdown.

"Being a lead singer means you are the centre point of the band; you are the magnet between the audience and the band," he said during a stage break.

hTe dark-haired 28-year-old artist said the travelling circuit "doesn't get easier as you get older but you make adjustments."

The McBride Band, formed one year ago, is still undergoing what he terms a transition period.

He sees music as an entirely personal thing. "When you make people happy . . . if you're honest with them when you perform then you're down to a personal level," he said.

Measuring Up

Teddy Chen, a six-year-old Belleville resident, joined the 9th Beaver Colony Wednesday at St. Margaret-On-the-Hill Church, and waited patiently while Betty Fort, assistant district coordinator for the Cubs and Scouts Association of Belleville measured him for his Beaver jacket. Teddy is only one of approximately 50 boys to join the Beavers this month.

Loyalist Expects 8,500 In Extension Programs

Due to cuts in provincial spending, there are no new courses being offered in the extension program at Loyalist College this year, says Hal Butterill ,director of extension.

However, said Mr. Butterill, current courses will be enlarged to accommodate more students.

A total of 8,500 students is expected to enroll in night courses this year. About 1,400 of these students will attend classes at the main campus of Loyalist. As of Tuesday night, 745 students had enrolled.

The extension program covers four counties — Hastings, Lennox and Adddington, Northumberland-Durham and Prince Edward. Within these counties night courses are being offered at 25 other schools in conjunction with Loyalist.

There are another 25 separate locations such as fire halls where courses are being taught. Each location is supervised by a part-time teacher. There are about 600 of these teachers.

There are six different fields in which courses are being offered, as outlined in the recently-issued community education tabloid.

These are credit courses, advanced interest courses, general interest courses, associate courses, co-operative courses and auditing courses.

Credit courses can be taken to improve skills or formal education, providing they fulfill the prerequisites. In addition to courses offered through the extension division, students may enroll for individual courses offered during the day.

Advanced interest courses do not have credit status. Specific skills are included in the courses which are designed to meet specific needs.

General interest courses are offered in any area of knowledge whenever community demand is identified.

Associate courses are offered in association with professional organizations. In many cases, the courses are given credit status.

Co-operative courses are organized and staffed by an outside organization.

Registration for night courses is being held at each location where they are taught. The final date for registration is October.

Permits Remain Steady

AMELIASBURG — Permits issued for the construction of residential and farm buildings in the township so far this year amounts to $2,442,330, municipal clerk William Nightingale reported Wednesday.

The clerk pointed out the total compares favorably with the 1974 total for the same period.

He disclosed most of the activity developed in July to September following a slow spring start. He said there was still a fair number of permits being issued and interest shown in property already severed.

The clerk also revealed he was finding property owners paying their taxes with more promptness than in previous years.

No Word Yet on Official Plan Status

By COLIN BRUCE

Staff Reporter

It has been more than a year since Belleville mailed its official plan into the provincial government for approval, and it looks like there isn't any sign of getting it back for a while yet.

Frank Stokmans, deputy planning director for the Quinte Planning Board, said during an interview Wednesday the plan has been circulated throughout all the government departments and a letter is expected any time regarding the document.

"They (province) could ask all kinds of questions and say they don't like the plan and ask for changes or they could say it's fine," he said.

"If they ask a lot of questions, it may take a hell of a long time before we get the plan back."

In the meantime, the planning board has spent the last week combing through 80 pages of zoning bylaws that are designed to enforce the official plan.

Once the staff have gone through the bylaws, they will be mailed back to the consultants for final touches.

Once the consultants have finished their work, the bylaws will be sent directly to the city's subordinate planning advisory committee.

Mr. Stokmans made these comments following a planning meeting in which the status of the official plan was never questioned.

The meeting was dominated by talks of Quinte Mall expansion.

Decline in Building Doesn't Worry SPAC

Belleville's building permit picture was given only cursory notice at a municipal meeting Wednesday although August permits are well down from the year before.

In assessing the $1.5 million in this year's August total, compared to slightly more than $6 million for August last year, Mayor Ben Corke pointed to Procter and Gamble's $3.8 million permit last year as one reason for the difference.

"In an accumulative sense (all permits to date), we're doing pretty well," said Mayor Corke, speaking at a meeting of the city's subordinate planning advisory committee.

It was not immediately known what the total permits to date totalled for 1975.

Mets Lose 1-0 in 11

'Desperation Swing' Spoils Bid by Seaver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Strange things happen in baseball these damp, September days when they are playing out the string and guys like Joe Wallis get their shots at the big time.

Wallis, recently called up by Chicago Cubs from the American Association, found himself standing between New York Mets ace Tom Seaver and glory Wednesday at Wrigley Field. Seaver had gone 8 2-3 innings without giving up a hit in the scoreless game and Wallis hadn't gotten the ball out of the infield in three trips.

Two quick fastballs ran the count to 0-2. A hanging curveball was next and Wallis lunged at it and lined a single into right field.

"It was a desperation swing," admitted Wallis, whose previous claim to fame was going 3-for-4 in the minors against Denny McLain. "He fooled me with two fastballs and and I was looking for another one."

Eventually the Cubs won the game 1-0 in the 11th. Wallis was around to get a walk in the 11th but both Seaver and Cub starter Rick Reuschel departed after 10.

"Five years ago losing a no-hitter would have been a big emotional letdown," said Seaver. "Today, I just wanted to get the next batter out. If I get the no-hitter, I get it; If I don't, I don't."

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati Reds beat Houston Astros 6-4, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 8-1, Los Angeles Dodgers routed San Diego Padres 14-0, Montreal Expos beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-2 and Atlanta Braves edged San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 11 innings.

Seaver has never had a no-hitter but he's had five one-hitters. He's lost three no-hitters in the ninth. Wallis, who was playing right field in place of ailing Jerry Morales, joins Chicago's Jimmy Qualls, who broke one up in 1969, and San Diego's Leron Lee, who spoiled another in 1972, on Seaver's personal hit parade.

The Cubs' run in the 11th came off loser Skip Lockwood, 1-3. Rick Monday led off with a single, Wallis walked, Jose Cardenal sacrificed the runners along and Andy Thornton was intentionally walked. Then Lockwood walked Bill Madlock to end the game.

TOM SEAVER

Pete Rose singled in two runs and Dave Concepcion singled in another in the sixth inning to put Cincinnati ahead of Houston.

Dick Allen drove in three runs and Dave Cash and Greg Luzinski collected three hits each for Philadelphia. Larry Christensen, 11-5, went the distance with a six-hitter and struck out eight. Larry Demery, 7-5, took the loss.

Steve Garvey drove in six runs with two home runs, a single and a double to pace Los Angeles' 18-hit assault on five San Diego pitchers.

Don Carrithers, 5-3, spaced nine hits and Larry Parrish hit his 10th home run of the season for Montreal. Gary Carter doubled home a run in the sixth when the Expos wrapped it up with three runs.

Dusty Baker singled in the tying run in the 11th inning and then scored Atlanta's winner on a bases-loaded walk by Gary Lavelle. Gary Matthews had five singles for San Francisco.

Franchise Situation Remains Unresolved

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Baseball's tangled franchise situation remained unresolved today but San Francisco Giants may be a step closer to financial stability.

The condition of the Giants is closely tied to the multitude of problems that faced the major league owners at their one-day meeting here. But Chub Feeney, president of the National team's red-ink headaches could be over shortly.

"They feel their cash problem can be solved with the sale of their Minneapolis (real estate) property," said Feeney. "Otherwise, the league has offered some assistance." Feeney said the sale was expected to be completed within the next week.

The Giants' problem has been the result of declining attendances which baseball feels is due to an overcrowded franchise population in the San Francisco-Oakland area. That question, as well as the financial well-being of other clubs and the desire to return baseball to Seattle and Washington, D.C., were among the questions facing the franchise committee which reported to the owners here.

A's Shell White Sox And Clinch Pennant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland A's have finally clinched baseball's American League West Division pennant.

The A's, who usually nail this thing down earlier, took an agonizingly long time before collecting their fifth consecutive pennant with a 13-2 victory over Chicago White Sox Wednesday night.

The defending world champions had the opportunity to wrap up their West championship last weekend, but lost three straight games. Meanwhile, the runner-up Kansas City Royals won all their games and kept the suspense going.

"It was a lot tougher job this time," Oakland manager Alvin Dark admitted.

Reggie Jackson concurred: "We had to prove more this year because we lost Catfish Hunter. There was a lot more pressure on us. If we'd lost, everyone would have said we couldn't do it without Cat. Cat's a great pitcher, the best. I wish he were here. But I'm just glad it's over with, and it's going to take a great team to beat us in the playoffs."

The Royals went down fighting, beating the Minnesota Twins 4-2 just a couple of hours before Oakland took care of the White Sox.

In the other American League games, Baltimore Orioles beat Detroit Tigers 8-1 and Milwaukee Brewers turned back Cleveland Indians 10-3. A doubleheader between Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees was rained out.

Jackson hit home runs his first two times up to launch the A's to their big victory. Jackson raised his home run total to 34, tying him with Milwaukee's George Scott for the league lead.

Oakland pitcher Vida Blue coasted to his 21st victory of the season behind the 13-hit A's attack. He left after six innings.

George Brett's tie-breaking single in the eighth inning helped Kansas City beat Minnesota. The victory kept the Royals' record a perfect 8-0 against Minnesota in Kansas City this year.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer notched his 22nd victory, beating Detroit with strong batting support from Paul Blair and Lee May. The victory moved the Orioles within 3½ games of first-place Boston in the American League East and kept the Red Sox "magic" number at four.

The second game of the header at Baltimore was postponed and will be made up as part of a twi-nighter tonight.

With the score tied 1-1 in the fifth, Baltimore scored five times to chase loser Joe Coleman, 10-18. Blair and May each contributed a two-run single to the rally. Blair also drove home one of Baltimore's runs in the sixth off Lerrin LaGrow.

"I really don't like our chances, but we're not dead yet," Blair said of the Orioles' pennant hopes. "We still have a long way to go. Boston's not losing for us. We're trying to keep pressure on them and win every game but if they keep winning, we're going to run out of chances."

George Scott drove in four runs with a double and his 34th homer, leading Milwaukee over Cleveland. Jim Colborn, 11-12, was the winner, getting the benefit of five runs in the first two innings.

Bombers Outlast Ticats

Ealey, Beaird Lead Charge

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quarterback Chuck Ealey and rookie running back Steve Beaird combined for 289 yards rushing to propel Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 34-32 victory over Hamilton Tiger Cats in an interlocking game Wednesday.

Ealey, who completed just two of 11 passes, scrambled for 146 yards against his teammates of last season. Beaird rushed for 143 yards and scored three touchdowns.

The victory, the first in four games for the Bombers, vaulted them past Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions into sole possession of third place in the Western Football Conference with five wins and five losses.

In losing its seventh game of the season, Hamilton remained one point behind third-place Toronto Argonauts in the battle for the third and final playoff spot in the Eastern Football Conference.

Terry Evanshen caught two touchdown strikes from quarterback Jerry Keeling to score Hamilton's only offensive majors. A fumble recovery by Bob Krouse in the end zone in the final quarter, a safety, and three field goals, two converts and a single by Ian Sunter accounted for the rest of the Ti-Cat scoring.

Bob LaRose hauled in a 44-yard touchdown strike in the second quarter, and Bernie Ruoff booted a field goal, four converts and three singles for Winnipeg.

CHUCK EALEY

Aside from passing, Winnipeg dominated the game statistically with 22 first downs and 409 yards in net offence. Hamilton had only 15 first downs and 315 yards.

The Ti-Cats appeared on the way to their third triumph of the season after piling up a 15-1 first-quarter lead with the help of brisk winds that reached 17 miles an hour.

But with the wind at his back in the second quarter, Ealey tossed a 44-yard scoring strike to LaRose at 1:35. Beaird bulldozed over from the six-yard line three minutes later, and Ruoff booted a field goal and a single to give Winnipeg a 19-15 lead at the half.

Sunter connected on a 49-yard field goal attempt early in the third quarter to reduce the Bomber lead to a single point, but Winnipeg's ground game got rolling minutes later when Beaird rambled 26 yards for a touchdown at 4:55.

Sunter again split the uprights at 6:53 from 47 yards, but Beaird plunged over from the two-yard line with three minutes left in the quarter to give Winnipeg a 33-19 margin as the teams entered the final quarter.

Hamilton staged an abortive comeback against the wind in the last quarter when Keeling's aerial game yielded results The Ti-Cat quarterback hit veteran Garney Henley with a 35-yard pass and Lawrie Skolrood with a 29-yard toss before striking paydirt with an 11-yard strike to Evanshen.

Krouse's fumble recovery when Ruoff bobbled a good snap in the end zone at the 10:48 mark shaved the margin of difference to just two points, but Ealey used his ground game effectively to preserve the victory.

Hamilton enjoyed an overwhelming advantage in the passing department as Jerry Keeling connected on 13 of 22 passes for 194 yards. Ealey's two completions netted the Bombers just 62 yards through the air.

The Ti-Cats gained only 121 yards on the ground compared with 349 by Winnipeg.

Angelo Santucci was Hamilton's most effective runner with 94 yards on 18 carries. Ti-Cats' Lawrie Skolrood was the game's leading receiver with 72 yards on three catches.

JIM WOOD

Stamps Fire Wood

CALGARY (CP) — Jim Wood was fired Wednesday as head coach of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference and replaced by offensive coach Bob Baker.

Gary Hobson, general manager of the club, told a news conference he was disappointed with the progress of the team so far this season and decided to replace Wood.

Hobson said the decision to replace Wood at this time will give him a chance to evaluate Baker, 46, as a head coach and hopefully improve the team's chances of making the playoffs.

Wood, 37, finishing the second season of a two-year contract with the Stampeders, said after the announcement he was shocked at the decision. He said he still had the confidence of both the players and the fans and that the team would have made the playoffs.

Wood said he will decide within the next few days whether to remain with the team in some other capacity.

RODGERS INJURED

MONTREAL (CP) — Johnny Rodgers, the offensive star back of Montreal Alouettes, suffered a cracked rib Tuesday night in the Als 31-29 loss to Edmonton Eskimos in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Offer by Management Falling on Deaf Ears

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only two of the 26 teams have cast their votes thus far, but it appears the National Football League players are on the verge of throwing management's latest contract offer for a loss.

And once again the threat of more player unrest looms ever larger in a contract dispute going on for nearly 20 months. Despite the negative reaction to the offer, though, the chances of another players' strike appears slim.

On Wednesday, Houston Oilers voted early—and unanimously—by a 43 to 0 count to reject the latest proposal by the NFL Management Council (NFLMC), the owners' bargaining arm. And Buffalo Bills issued a 42-to-1 vote in opposition.

The offer submitted last Monday in a meeting in Chicago between the NFLMC and NFL Players Association was termed by the owners "our best shot." But the NFLPA simply passed it on to its union members without a recommendation—and there were reliable reports that Kermit Alexander, president of the union, and the rest of the NFLPA leaders were almost wholly against it.

The union leaders had said Tuesday, when the talks broke off, that the teams would probably start voting today.

But the Oilers and Bills, clubs which refused to join last week's five-team walkout led by the New England Patriots, got the jump on the other 24 teams—and it appeared they were setting the tone for the voting.

Spokesmen for several other teams expressed opinions that, when their ballots were counted today, the votes against the owners' offer would be similarly overwhelming.

"I feel certain it will be rejected because it was not recommended by the union," said Atlanta Falcons' player representative John Zook. But when asked if the Falcons would strike, Zook replied: "I would doubt that."

Player rep Skip Butler said that, despite Houston's blanket rejection of the management offer, the Oilers would still play their home opener against San Diego on Sunday.

Buffalo player rep Reggie McKenzie said simply that the Bills "rejected the contract, but we have no plans to strike at all."

If the players, by a simple majority, reject the contract offer, they'll have to decide whether to strike for a third time in 14 months, try to negotiate again or continue to play without a contract as they've done since Feb. 1, 1974

Derby County A 2-1 Winner

LONDON (Reuter) — Manchester United was knocked out of first place Wednesday in the English League First Division for the first time this season, losing 2-1 Wednesday to Derby County, the defending champions.

Two goals by Charlie George, transferred from Arsenal, pushed Derby to fourth place where it trails the leaders by one point.

Queen's Park Rangers were the new leaders on goal average ahead of Manchester United and West Ham United.

Manchester City maintained its unbeaten home record with a 1-0 win over Stoke City with England striker Rodney March scoring in the 67th minute.

Coach Has Problems But He Doesn't Mind

It would appear Belleville Bobcats' first-year coach Meehan Bonnar is confronted by a problem.

But it is the type of problem coaches refer to as a good one.

Although the ranks of the Metro Junior B Hockey League team have been thinned recently by injuries, suspensions and sickness, it is a fact Bonnar has a flock of talented skaters to pick from when it comes time to trim his roster to the maximum allowed.

Impressed with the ability being shown by skaters who have turned out with the squad in the early going, Bonnar admits it makes for a tough task when it comes to making those final decisions.

There's no doubt the club has been producing in preseason contests. With four games played and the exhibition schedule winding up with home dates Friday and Sunday at Memorial Arena, the Bobcats have yet to taste defeat.

Bonnar's charges are 4-0 as they head for this weekend's tests and final preparations for the official opening of the Metro Junior B season.

Jim (Snipe) Matthews liked what he saw in Cats' most recent victory, a 5-4 squeaker Tuesday over Whitby Bruins.

"Our guys proved they can come back in that one and it's a good sign," offered Snipe.

The club's general manager, Snipe reports that the sale of season tickets is going well and things generally appear to be shaping up in fine style for the 1975-76 campaign.

Naturally, club officials are making a determined bid to ice a top flight contender able to improve substantially on last season's club, which finished fifth in the Eastern Division.

Cats start playing for keeps, Tuesday, making their first league start on the road against the Whitby Bruins. The Belleville team's first home game is Friday, October 3 when Kingston Voyageurs will be the visitors on Memorial Arena ice.

SLICES — It looks from here as if Belleville Olympics would be wasting time and money appealing the suspensions of player-coach John O'neill and defender Charlie Nestorovski.

Bay of Quinte Soccer Association first vice-president, Dudley Hillier says his group has it in writing that Nestorovski did indeed play in a September 7 Premier League game in Kingston while under suspension. And the man who supplied the information, says Hillier, is no less an authority than Premier League president, J. Buxcey.

Pickering Panthers of the Metro Junior B Hockey League's Eastern Division have signed centre Bill Glover of Trenton for another season.

Glover was sixth in the team's list of point-getters in his first season, collecting 42 points on 12 goals and 30 assists during the 1974-75 campaign.

Olympics Settle For Second Place

Held to a 2-2 draw by Quinte Hellenic in a hard-played Premier Soccer League match Wednesday at Sir James Whitney School, Belleville Olympics missed a shot at first place in league standings but clinched second spot.

Kevin Kirby, given time for two tries on a scoring opportunity, clicked on his second drive to account for the equalizer for Olympics.

Zdravko Fundic's accurate shot from just outside the penalty area on a free kick with one minute remaining in the first half shot Olympics ahead before the interval.

But Hellenic stormed back and John Prianis made it 1-1.

Olympics roared to the attack but were stymied by solid work from Hellenic's defender Sandy Duchart.

Midway through the half, Andy Vineris connected from a scramble in the goal mouth and Hellenic was in front.

Then Bob Watson set Kirby up for the final score of the game.

Young Nelson Ofori was a standout on the wing for Hellenic. Watson and Chris Johnson were the pick of Olympics.

Two players from each team were cautioned by the referee for rough play.

LOCATION IN DOUBT

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — The 1978 world Soccer Cup finals could be held in Spain if Argentina is unable to hold them, says Joao Havelange, president of the International Football Federation. There has been speculation that the finals might be moved because of the political and economic situation in Argentina.

Quinte Alone in First Place

Saints Turn Back Centurions

Quinte Secondary School senior Saints took over undisputed possession of first place in the Bay of Quinte High School Football League standings, Wednesday, turning back Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurions 13-8 in a game dominated by the defences.

The win brought Saints' record to 2-0 while Centurions slipped to 1-1.

Centre Hastings gained a split on the afternoon's play when the Junior Centurions turned back Prince Edward Collegiate Institute 26-6.

Flanker Al Rutherford and running back Scott Bowes accounted for Quinte touchdowns.

Rutherford, named the outstanding offensive player in the game, kicked a single to round out the winners' scoring.

It wasn't until late in the game that Centurions got on the scoreboard. A screen pass from quarterback Scott Simpson to Cliff Reid was good for a major. Simpson hit Joe Brooks for the two-point conversion. But it was too little too late.

Saints opened the scoring on a 50-yard pass and run play as quarterback Rick Culkin hit Rutherford for the major.

Bowes, continuing his solid running for Saints, rambled up the middle on his drive to a touchdown. The scoring play was set up by another well thrown pass. This time, Barry Beer hit Rutherford.

"Quinte kept us pinned in our own end for most of the game," said Centre Hastings coach Barry Pyear.

"We just couldn't move the ball and to make matters worse, we found ourselves punting into the wind most of the time."

One senior game is scheduled today. In it, Trenton High School Tigers are at Bayside Secondary School Red Devils.

In the junior contest at Picton, Centre Hastings opened up a 12-0 lead in the first half and outscored the home side 14-6 after the interval.

While Kelly Welsh sparked the Centurions' attack in the first half, it was Justin Hanley taking over in the second 30 minutes.

Welsh opened the scoring on a 24-yard off tackle romp and helped himself to his second major on a similar play from four yards out. Neither touchdown was converted.

Picton got on the score sheet in the third quarter, narrowing the gap to 12-6 when Peter Kempenaar hit Kevin Ferguson with a 24-yard TD strike. The two-point conversion was wiped out by a holding penalty.

Then Hanley took over.

Twice he skirted the end from in close to cross the goal line and ensure his team's second win in as many starts.

The third Centurions' major was followed by a two-point conversion on a pass from quarterback Jamie Mantle to Wayne Willenson.

The win was good for a share of first place. Centre Hastings and Centennial Secondary School lead the way with four points each. Friday, Trenton High School is at Napanee and District Secondary School and Centennial is at Moira.

DECLARED WINNER

TORONTO (CP) — David White of Bramalea, Ont., was officially declared winner of the 1975 Bulova championship for Formula 100 cars Wednesday. White captured the seven-race series with 85 points after nipping runner-up Nigel Gough of Newmarket, Ont., in last weekend's final race card at Mosport, 70 miles northeast of here. White's total elapsed time for the feature event was 30 minutes, 53.300 seconds.

SUFFERS LEG CUT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Left-winger Garry Monahan of Vancouver Canucks will be sidelined for at least six weeks with an injured leg, a spokesman for the National Hockey League team said Wednesday. Monahan suffered a deep cut to his left leg during the second period of an exhibition game against Montreal Canadiens here Tuesday.

GAME POSTPONED

MONTREAL (CP) — An Ontario - Quebec Intercollegiate Football Conference game between University of Ottawa Gee Gees and Concordia University, scheduled for Ottawa Friday night, has been postponed to Sunday afternoon, a Concordia spokesman said Wednesday. The game was scheduled to be play at Mooney's Bay, but the field is unplayable and the game now will be played at Lansdowne Park at 2 p.m.

PARIS (AP) — Rene Thomas, the Frenchman who won the Indianapolis 500 in 1914, is dead at 89, his family announced Wednesday.

Hockey Basics Are Emphasized

The Belleville Basic Hockey School is back intact for another year. The school, run by local enthusiasts, has the same priorities as it did two years ago when it originated — 'To teach youngsters the basics so they might develop their own talent properly'.

"There's been a bit of confusion between our school and the McFarland Conditioning School," said director Sy Bochnek, "but now that we're ready to start taking applications, the problem should get straightened out quite quickly."

The hockey conditioning camp, being run by former Belleville McFarland players, is strictly to help players get in shape for the upcoming season. The Basic Hockey School is geared to teach youngsters the fundamentals of the game.

This year the school is handling, what it refers to as advanced basics. Participants range from 8-14 years of age.

The first semester is from October 10 to January 2; the second from January 9 to March 19. Both are 12 weeks long and classes take place every Friday afternoon.

The instructors are the same as last year with one exception. Dr. Lionel Dockrill is the chief instructor and his assistants are Lionel Botly, Sy Bochnek and Clive Williams, the new member of the group.

The cost of the program is $22 per boy. Applications will now be accepted at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. If any further information is needed contact Sy Bochnek by phoning 962-8934.

College Sports

Full Program At Loyalist

Loyalist College is back for another semester and with the return of classes comes Loyalist's slate of athletic endeavors. This year, though, the slate is fuller than it has ever been.

While Loyalist dropped out of inter-collegiate hockey, it broadened its scope of activities in the Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association.

"We dropped hockey mainly because of the cost," explained athletics director, Rob Stinson, "hockey was a particularly expensive sport to operate."

Because hockey has been eliminated, the extra money was put toward other sports. As a result, Loyalist has representative teams in the men's soccer, basketball and volleyball, women's basketball and volleyball and golf, tennis, archery, curling and badminton.

Men's volleyball and women's basketball are additions to the inter-collegiate schedule and men's soccer, although there was a team last season, is being covered by the athletics budget for the first time.

Loyalist sports don't end at the EOCAA level. There is a complete list of activities at the intramural scale. Those range from Monster Ball to Curling.

ROB STINSON

Also included in the athletics budget is an Outdoor Education program which takes students on camping excursions and canoe trips.

MANAGE NEXT YEAR

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank Robinson, major league baseball's first black manager, will manage Cleveland Indians for a second year. Phil Seghi, general manager of the American League team, made the announcement Tuesday. Robinson said recently he'd like to return as manager but without his playing role. He was active as designated hitter early in the current season, but he dropped out under a combination of a muscle injury and improved hitting by other Indians.

COMPLETE TRADE

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Cowboys of the World Hockey Association Tuesday acquired centre Vic Mercredi completing a trade that sent Claude St. Sauveur to the Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League last week. Mercredi was Atlanta's second choice in the NHL's 1973 junior draft. He played the last two seasons with Omaha of the Central League. St. Sauveur had been Calgary's sixth leading scorer last year when they were known as the Vancouver Blazers. He scored 24 goals after a 33-goal season as a rookie the year before.

LEAGUE HEALTHY

NEW YORK (AP) — World Football League executives met Tuesday to review an audit of each team's financial operations. President Chris Hemmeter said the league was healthy. He said marketing possibilities, expansion in 1976 and operations of the league in 1976 and 1977 were discussed at the meeting of the WFL board of governors.

Hatskin Orders Investigation

TORONTO (CP) — World Hockey Association chief executive Ben Hatskin announced Wednesday that he has ordered a full league investigation of the signing of 17-year-old Greg Roberts by New England Whalers.

Roberts, who will not be 18 until Oct. 2, has signed a conditional contract with the Whalers. The move is in direct violation of a league-adopted WHA bylaw, said league vice-president Bud Poile, who added the league's board of trustees would be called into a meeting on the situation as soon as possible.

It was reported the meeting would be held Monday in Toronto and that Whalers president Howard Baldwin would be censured for signing the American-born brother of Doug Roberts, who played last season for the National Hockey League Detroit Red Wings.

The signing appears in direct opposition to an unwritten agreement between the WHA and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that no junior hockey players under 20 years of age would be signed to professional contracts.

However, Toronto Toros signed forward Mark Napier and Houston Aeros inked the under-age John Tonelli during the off-season.

League punishment for the signing of an under-age junior could be as harsh as a $100,000 fine and the loss of first-round draft choices for the next five years. The Toros lost draft choices for the next two years and will have to give a player to the team with the worst record in the league this season. No action against the Aeros has been made public.

Baldwin contends that because the younger Roberts is an American citizen, there could be no agreement—and thus no violation of rules—with the CAHA.

Roberts played last season with Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League.

THOMPSON RETIRES

BOSTON (AP) — Forward Brian Thompson of Boston Bolts has retired, the National Lacrosse League team announced Wednesday. The 28-year-old native of Huntsville, Ont., is the 10th leading scorer in league history. He had 119 points, including 46 goals last season, despite missing 12 games with injuries.

SUFFERS INJURY

OTTAWA (CP) — Leslie Cliff of Vancouver has been dropped from Canada's Pan-American Games swimming team because of a shoulder injury. Doctors said she has a torn muscle in her right shoulder. Head swimming coach Gaye Stratton said a replacement will be named in a few days.

Boucha Still Has Problems

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Henry Boucha of Minnesota Fighting Saints says he is seeing only two pucks these days—and knows which one to go for.

Boucha was hit with the butt end of a stick by Dave Forbes of Boston Bruins on Jan. 4. Forbes was charged with assault, but his case ended in a hung jury and the charge was dropped.

Boucha, then a member of the National Hockey League's Minnesota North Stars, complained of double vision after the fight and had an operation on his right eye.

The 24-year-old winger from Warroad, Minn., has since jumped to the Saints of the World Hockey Association, but the double vision persists.

"I'm adapting to seeing two pucks," Boucha said. "I'm learning which one to go after."

An examination at the Mayo Clinic showed that his eye exercises this summer were wasted. Last month, he underwent surgery again.

He still has another vision problem. When he glances to his right, the right eye doesn't move.

"There's nothing wrong with the eye—it's just that the muscles in it are weak," he said. "Doctors are confident they can correct the problem, but it may take another operation, maybe two."

He is hoping the second operation will allow him to play well enough this year.

"I don't have nearly as much trouble seeing the puck as I used to have. I used to see three of them."

You Know Who Says Frazier Falls Early

MANILA (AP) — Muhammad Ali styled himself as a "modern day evangelistic fighter" and predicted Wednesday he will score an early victory in his scheduled 15-round heavyweight title defence against Joe Frazier.

Frazier said he has nothing more to say about the fight here next Wednesday. (Tuesday night in North America).

"He's got to fall so let it be," Ali said. "I'm tempted to predict the round, but it puts me on the spot. But it will be early."

Frazier's workout followed Ali's, and the challenger held a public question and answer session with reporters afterwards. It was brief.

One of the first questions was: "Ali says he is the messiah of boxing. How do you feel about that, Joe?"

"As of now I'm gonna be silent," said Frazier. "I'm all worked up and I'm afraid I might say something wrong. I chewed five nails this morning and I might bite this microphone off."

Earlier Ali was anything but silent.

After finishing his workout, he told the fans:

"I'm going to get out of boxing as the champion. That's my mission. Frazier's not an enemy. He's just a victim of circumstances. He's just a brother in the way."

MEETING ENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — World Football League owners concluded a two-day meeting Wednesday, and president Chris Hemmeter said that "no problem exists as to our present 10 teams completing the 1975 season." Hemmeter said the WFL has received four expansion applications for 1976 and 1977. He said he expects to make an announcement later this week or early next week.

Tony's Backs To Wall

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Larry Christie's two-run single in the eighth inning led Hamilton Waxman Scrappers to a 2-0 victory over Oshawa Tony's in their Ontario Fastball League finals Wednesday night.

The Scrappers lead 2-0 in the best-of-five series. The third game will be played in Hamilton Saturday night.

With two out in the eighth inning, Cookie Appleby walked, Ed Neudorf doubled and Ted Deruiter intentionally was walked to load the bases. Christie singled to centre field to bring in the two Hamilton runs.

In the bottom of the eighth, Bob Young and Bob Smith singled for Oshawa, and Bob Solomon walked to load the bases with two out. The next batter, however, struck out.

Neudorf pitched eight innings for Hamilton and struck out 15. Wally Dick finished the game and put three out.

Losing pitcher Wayne Colley struck out seven.

Capitals Are Becoming Giant Killers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For the second night in a row, Washington Capitals, who last season won only eight of 80 games, have upset one of the National Hockey League division champions.

The Capitals, who Tuesday beat the Adams Division champion Buffalo Sabres, followed up Wednesday night by taking a 4-3 exhibition victory over Philadelphia Flyers, last season's Patrick Division titlist and Stanley Cup champions.

Other NHL pre-season action Wednesday saw Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Sabres 3-1 while New York Rangers defeated Boston Bruins 4-3 and Vancouver Canucks beat Montreal Canadiens 6-3.

It was the Capitals' second win in five pre-season starts and Philadelphia's second loss in three games.

The Flyers took a 3-1 lead in the first period on three consecutive power-play goals by Don Saleski, Rick MacLeish and Orest Kindrachuk.

But Tony White, who had Washington's first goal in the first minute of play, added a second score in the second period and Greg Joly added another goal to tie the score.

Mike Marson's goal early in the third period provided the Capitals' victory.

At Toronto, a capacity crowd of 16,485 saw the Leafs beat the Sabres on goals by Blaine Stoughton, Errol Thompson and Dave Williams.

Richard Martin, a member of Buffalo's French Connection line which has been disconnected, scored the Sabres goal.

Sabres coach Floyd Smith said he has temporarily disbanded the high-scoring line of Martin, centre Gil Perreault and right winger Rene Robert to see if he can come up with some other successful combinations.

The Rangers had a two-man advantage over the Bruins late in the second period when Walt Tkaczuk scored the winning goal for New York.

It was the Rangers' first pre-season game and provided a successful debut for rookie coach Ron Stewart.

Rookie Dale Lewis, Steve Vickers and defenceman Ron Greschner scored the other New York goals while Phil Esposito scored twice for the Bruins and rookie Doug Gibson added a single goal.

Rookies Jim Wylie, Rick Blight and Glen Richardson scored late in the final period to give Vancouver the win over Montreal.

Dennis Ververgaert, Bobby Lalonde and John Gould scored the other Vancouver goals and Jim Roberts, Pete Mahovlich and Steve Shutt scored for the Canadiens.

Hungary Tops Canadian Team

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Hungary defeated Canada 67-55 in the women's world basketball championships Wednesday night and maintained its hopes of advancing to the final round.

It was the second defeat for Canada in the tournament.

High scorer for the Canadians was Pat Tatham of Kitchener, Ont., with 14 points. Carol Turney of Chilliwack, B.C., and Coleen Dufresne, of Dorion, Que., each added 12.

In other games Wednesday, the United States beat Australia 63-52 and Brazil defeated Senegal 87-48.

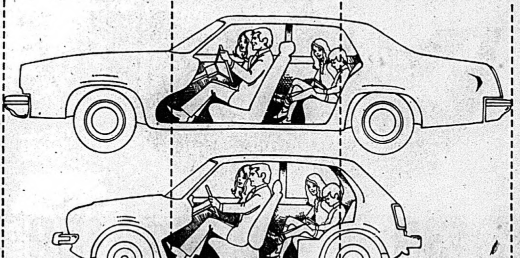
First we built a mid-size car inside. Then we built a sub-compact around it.



Most cars are built the other way around. Body style first; passenger comfort second. Which is why in the back seat of so many cars, your head slants forward. Or your knees meet your chest. Or you shift positions sitting over the hump every time you hit a bump.

At Honda, we've virtually eliminated these problems. Because we designed our car from the inside out. What we ended up with is a sub-compact car with as much room as some mid-size cars. The experts have described our car best.

"Many makes talk about small on the outside, big on the inside, but Honda has done it." (Road and Track).

How'd we do it? Our car's shape is trapezoidal. A rectangle that's wider at the bottom than the top for all kinds of good reasons. For example, we give you more room where you really need it. More leg room on the floor and more seating room.

Another part of our roominess story is also a performance story. We gave our car front-wheel drive, not just to eliminate the hump inside, but for its excellent road-hugging ability.

Then we mounted the engine sideways to provide even more space. This also places the engine weight directly over the drive wheels for better traction. For added comfort, we equipped the Civic with a McPherson strut suspension, independent on all four wheels, for a stable yet cushioning ride.

The Honda Civic is more car than you'd expect. It's fast and yet it's economical to run. In fact, in the 1975 U.S. Environmental Protection Agency gas mileage test, the Honda Civic recorded a remarkable 49.2 miles per gallon for highway driving and 33.6 miles per gallon for in-city driving. Now, just try and find another car that performed as well.

Ballard Bidding For NBA Rockets

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Ballard, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, says he has sent an associate to Houston in an attempt to purchase the National Basketball Association Houston Rockets.

"I'm so interested in getting the franchise I sent Ruby Richman to Houston to negotiate on my behalf," said Ballard, whose Maple Leaf Gardens owns the National Hockey League Maple Leafs and rents ice time to the World Hockey Association Toronto Toros.

Richman is a basketball enthusiast who was involved with Ballard in previous attempts to bring a pro team to Toronto.

In a telephone interview from Houston Wednesday night, Richman said: "I'm pretty confident we'll get the franchise. The majority stockholder, Irwin Caplan, who also owned the Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association, definitely has the franchise for sale."

Richman said the asking price is $8. million but he doesn't plan to pay that much. He said that if the Gardens buys the Houston club, it will be kept in Houston for the coming season and moved to Toronto next year.

Transfer of the club would require league approval.

Ballard said he had negotiated unsuccessfully with three other NBA clubs but declined to name them.

Partners Back Out

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Radio station CKNW says San Francisco businessman Mel Swig has failed to produce a $1.5 million guarantee for purchase of California Seals of the National Hockey League.

The radio station says Swig was supposed to guarantee the $6 million purchase of the Seals with a $1.5 million down payment due Wednesday.

Swig told the station in a taped interview from San Francisco that two partners backed out because of revised United States tax laws.

"We had a couple of people, very important people, back away at the last minute," said Swig, "and that's our problem."

Swig said $900,000 was available for the purchase of the Seals, who now are operated by the league.

Ballet Ys

"BALLET FOR THE PEOPLE"
MONDAY, OCT. 6, 8 p.m.
CENTENNIAL SCHOOL AUDITORIUM
PALMER ROAD, BELLEVILLE

The Company's dance approach is explained by their name — Ballet Ys — meaning ballet of the times. They combine classical ballet technique with modern dramatic dance styles to produce a unique art form. Ballet Ys is particularly audience-oriented; the company tours continually starting this fall at National Arts Theatre in Ottawa, taking full concert productions to people in small communities.

Your Horoscope

By BERNIDE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, Sept. 26

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your promises today will lack your usual sincerity. Remember: You'll hurt someone more by reneging on a pledge than if you didn't make it at all.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You won't have your head together in business today. Because of your lack of awareness, something of value will be lost.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) It's not like you to carry that little green-eyed monster on your shoulder. But he'll be perched there when someone you're fond of casts her eyes elsewhere.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll be very disappointed if you expect things to fall in your lap effortlessly. You get nothing for nothing today.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Usually you're very straightforward in conversations with pals. Today, you're apt to try to camouflage meanings.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Self-doubts could sidetrack some influences that would prove very favorable to your career. Have faith in your ability today.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're going to make some unfortunate alterations in plans today, because you place more credence in the ideas of others than they deserve.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid trying to pull another's chestnuts out of the fire today. You'll find it costly and unrewarding.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's not wise to expect too much of others today. Even those exceptionally fond of you can only perform within certain limitations.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Steer clear today of one who has reason to be jealous of your achievements. This person is inclined to throw stumbling blocks in your path.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you want to accomplish today what you set out to, don't be timid. You must be bold and forthright, but not reckless.

Pisces Feb. 20-March 20) Keep confidential matters within the family today. Loose talk will be played back and it will be distorted in the transmission.

No Assembly Line For Artist-Jeweller

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A dedication to her own artistic standards influences the work of jewelry designer Susan Bailey.

She is best known as designer-maker of a necklace presented by the city of London to the Queen on her visit here in 1973.

Her mother, Daisy Bailey, a local artist, taught the skill of making jewelry to Susan and her sister Margaret.

"I always like to do things with my hands. I like to control things in a small area and that's why I enjoy doing jewelry."

For years, she has retained the same attitude and approach — to suit an individual, seeking to know the personality and physical requirements of the potential wearer in making the jewelry.

"I just can't stand to make 50 rings — or a number of other things — and send them to a store to be sold," the artist said.

Her jewelry usually is in silver because gold has risen so drastically in price.

She seeks advice from books or professionals if she is unsure of required technique.

She never follows fashion trends in materials or designs because trends never last.

"If you have something that is well-styled and suits you, you can wear the dress or coat for years. The same is true of jewelry; it has to suit you and if it is right for you, it will go with many costumes."

She may sketch a dozen or more designs to show a potential client, with the person's personality in mind.

"Invariably that person will choose the one I like the best," she said.

When she began to make jewelry, she was influenced by her environment on a farm, near the city, such as making vegetable forms.

But, recently Susan has designed more abstract creations.

Besides making and designing jewelry, the 25-year-old artist patterns batik for clothes for her 14-month-old-son Aaron, weaves rugs, hangings and drapes, engages in pottery and tends her fruit and vegetable garden.

"I like making functional things — cups, plates."

These she makes in many different shapes and her love of color and design influence the making.

For art always has been and is part of living for Susan Bailey.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Dinadan, the worst knight and bridge player, knows his limitations. He steers clear of challenges at both sword and card play. When Lancelot opened one notrump, Dinadan raised the peerless one to three instead of showing his five-card heart suit.

The defence started with four club tricks. Then, East shifted to a spade. Lancelot, who had discarded one spade from each hand, rose with his ace and started on diamonds.

He had no reason to try a finesse for the jack of that suit. When it failed to drop, it was all up to the heart suit.

Lancelot stopped to analyze the opening lead and decided that if West had been dealt a five-card major suit he would have led it. Hence, his distribution would be 4-4-2-3.

Thus hearts were going to break 4-2. After that analysis it was no problem to finesse against the jack of hearts and score the notrump game.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Iowa asks, "You are playing duplicate with a strange partner. He responds three spades to your one-club opening. You pass with a minimum hand with a singleton spade. You miss a club slam and he informs you that his three-spade bid was super-forcing. What system was he playing?"

One of which we have never heard and certainly not one that is normal in the great State of Iowa.

Maritimes Still His Favorite Spot

VANCOUVER (CP) — After sailing thousands of miles around the world and resting at anchor off Spain, the Canary Islands, Venezuela and Hawaii, David Allardice says the Maritime provinces and Quebec's Gaspe Peninsula are among his favorite places.

The 28-year-old real estate man from North Vancouver has been sailing his 41-foot yacht Rebel around the world for 2½ years and says the people of Canada's East Coast villages are among the friendliest he has met.

"Along the Gaspe we were not only welcomed wherever we stopped but we were given fish and other provisions and always invited to someone's home for dinner," said Mr. Allardice, who recently stopped here on his way to Alaska. "In some places the people spoke no English at all, yet all we had to do was make an effort with our high-school French and everything was great.

"I don't think the East Coast of Canada gets the attention it deserves from yachtsmen. There's no more beuatiful place in the world, and you couldn't hope to meet finer people."

Mr. Allardice said he and his mates have been treated to dinners by Maritime lobstermen and he fondly remembered the hospitality of Prince Edward Island and the Cape Breton Lagoon.

For Mr. Allardice, yachting is the only way to travel—"when you calculate hotel bills and airfares and such, and count up the adventures and sights and the people you meet."

While the calm and friendly nature of the Canadian coastal villages provide one incentive for sailing, Mr. Allardice can recount other stories that would excite the memories of any old salt.

There was a giant sawfish which duelled with the sloop's steering equipment. Another time the vessel went on a reef. And he recalled encounters with giant sharks and gales that threatened to strip away the Rebel's sails.

Mr. Allardice braved these adventures and fared well despite the fact that he learned the basics of sailing only a few years ago and since then has often set sail with inexperienced crew members.

"John Grant (of North Vancouver) joined me in Halifax last year and it was his first sailing trip," said Mr. Allardice. "We headed for Bermuda and went straight into a tremendous storm . . . couldn't put any sails on for days while the wind howled. At one point great bolts of lightning were hitting the sea around us, and with our aluminum mainmast we felt like we were sailing a lightning rod.

"In the midst of all this John said to me, 'My God, is sailing always like this?' "

It's only part of the story, said Mr. Allardice.

Toronto Handles More Air Traffic

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que. (CP)—Montreal may possess the world's largest international airport site, but the city's longstanding rival, Toronto, will continue to handle more passengers, experts here agree.

Benoit Baribeau, general manager of the New Montreal International Airport project office, said the number of passengers being handled in Toronto will continue to grow faster than in Montreal, but not necessarily at the expense of Montreal

Both airports have their own market," he said.

Toronto's market potential is larger because Ontario's population grows faster than that of Quebec and because Toronto is closer to all of Western Canada.

Montreal's international airport, Mirabel, which opens Oct. 4, will serve more of a "local market' than will Toronto, Mr. Baribeau said.

A Montreal air transport economist, who refused to be indentified, said he believes Toronto traffic will continue to grow faster because that city is becoming "the" international centre of Canada.

Businessmen from Europe and the United States will increasingly opt for Toronto as the Canadian city in which to do business, he said.

Toronto traffic will remain strong for decades because of many of its residents' strong ethnic ties to countries such as Great Britain, Italy and Greece, he said.

These bonds generate a lot of traffic that is largely unaffected by fare increases.

"When these people travel abroad they stay with friends and relatives. Therefore, the over-all cost of travelling is not high."

Travellers starting from Montreal, he said, usually do not fall into this class.

"They are generally more the average kind of tourist and are more affected by air fare increases."

Everyone agrees air fares will continue to increase.

Airline executives have predicted Mirabel will lose passengers to Toronto because a traveller returning from Europe to Mirabel has to transfer to another airport, Dorval, 35 miles away, to catch a connecting flight westward or to Quebec City. That situation does not exist for passengers transferring in Toronto.

In 1973, Montreal handled about seven million [illegible] and Toronto handled 9.5 [illegible]. Last year, Montreal's load increased to eight million. Although the 1974 figures are not yet available for Toronto, during the first nine months of that year the passenger flow almost reached the level for all of 1973

Fitness Class Starts

VICTORIA (CP) — Provincial Health Minister Dennis Cocke will start special 10-week courses on how to keep fit, lose weight and stay slim while eating well, after a suggestion was received to form a diet club at the legislature to help workers trim off the flab. The courses will run during the lunch break and provincial nutritionists will meet with the Speaker to discuss changes in the legislative dining room menu.

Prison Forces Psychiatric Exams

OTTAWA (CP) — The prison system forces prisoners to take psychiatric treatment whether they want to or not, a Victoria law professor said Wednesday.

"A prisoner soon learns that if a court thinks he needs psychiatric treatment and he doesn't agree to it, the chances for his early parole are almost nil," said K. B. Jobson.

Prof. Jobson told about 125 delegates to a conference on health and the law that this understanding of possible parole restriction creates an atmosphere of coercion for the prisoner.

He also said that British Columbia may be the worst province for the denial of the prisoner's human rights.

Prof. Jobson said B.C. prisoners can be transferred from an ordinary penitentiary to the penitentiary-hospital at Abbotsford without their consent.

Treatment at the centre, which be said was supposed to be based on consent, can be given against the prisoner's wishes.

He said B.C.'s Mental Health Act allows patients at both civil and prison hospitals to be certified, which removes any need for a doctor to get a patient's consent for treatment.

"Certification in effect strips the individual of his autonomy for the time being and justifies assaults upon his body and person," Prof. Jobson charged.

He says there is no need for certification for B.C. prisoners because the law was designed primarily to keep wandering lunatics off the street and provide them with treatment.

Rhodesians Free To Stay Here

OTTAWA (CP) — Five Rh desian farmers whose presen at a plowing competition resulted in protest action b Prime Minister Trudeau ar free to remain in Canada.

An immigration department spokesman confirmed this Wednesday when he said the five are here on valid British or South African passports and he knows of no reason to expel them.

They are not in a prohibited ass of citizen as defined by he immigration act, the pokesman said.

On Tuesday Prime Minister rudeau was on the way to pen the International Plowing Championships at Oshawa, Ont., by plane when he decided he could not attend an event attended by representatives of the breakaway British colony with a white minority regime. Canada does not recognize Rh desia.

Meanwhile, his office sa Wednesday that it had advan warning of the Rhodesian a tendance but the prime ministe did not see it in time before h left Ottawa.

A spokesman said that th fact that the Rhodesians wer attending the match was put i the prime minister's briefing book Monday night.

But the prime minister did have time to read the book ll he was on the plane Tues y.

xternal officials repeated st statements that the Rhodeans would not be admitted to anada with Rhodesian passorts and that they should be arred from the competition.

The Rhodesians arrived in Canada with three British and wo South African passports.

Taped Conversation Shows Hearst as a Revolutionary Feminist

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A private conversation recorded by authorities shows Patricia Hearst as a still-ardent revolutionary feminist" who does not want freedom on bail if she is to be "a prisoner in my parents' home."

The partial transcript of the jailhouse conversation with childhood friend Patricia Tobin was released in court documents and made public Thursday. It apparently left Patty's parents shaken.

Her mother, Catherine, usually composed, called reporters a bunch of ghouls" as they sought comment on the excerpted transcript. And she and her husband, Randolph Hearst, cut short a jail visit with Miss Hearst Thursday night.

The conversation, recorded last Saturday at the San Mateo County jail, opens with Miss Hearst saying:

I'm not making any statements until I know that I can get . . . bailed out, and then if I find out that I can't, for sure, then I'll issue a statement.

But I would just as soon give it myself in person and it'll be a revolutionary feminist perspective totally. . . ."

And so this creates all kind of problems for me in terms of a defence."

Miss Hearst already faces a variety of state and federal charges including bank robbery and kidnapping.

Police said they are checking weapons seized when Miss Hearst was arrested to see if they were used in a double murder that left a radical prison reform leader dead.

Wilbert (Popeye) Jackson and a Vallejo teacher were shot to death June 8 with a pistol similar to ones found in apartments where authorities say Miss Hearst and her comrades were living.

The conversation with Miss Tobin was detailed in documents sent to a court-appointed committee of psychiatrists charged with examining Miss Hearst's mental competency by U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter.

The transcript was provided the court by U.S. Attorney James Browning. It varies from the view of Miss Hearst contained in her affidavit filed earlier this week.

Airport Decision

Expansion Concern Focuses on Malton

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

An announcement Thursday by federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand shelving plans for an airport at Pickering, Ont., brought relief to many opponents of the plan but anxiety to some who fear a possible expansion of Toronto International Airport at Malton.

Although Mr. Marchand said there were no plans for expansion at Malton, the council of Peel region, whose residents would be affected by such growth, said it will request a meeting with the region's two federal MPs and five members of the provincial legislature, including Ontario Premier Davis.

Lou Parsons, regional chairman, said that "if they decide to expand Malton, the protests at Pickering will look like a picnic."

Federal security guards closed gates into the Pickering airport site Wednesday to keep out protesters who had promised to try to stop construction of runways.

After Mr. Marchand's announcement, provincial Transport Minister John Rhodes said the federal government should place more emphasis on rail travel and short-take-off-and-landing aircraft instead of building the Pickering airport just northeast of Toronto.

The provincial government would be prepared to help finance improved passenger train facilities, he said.

Mr. Rhodes had announced Wednesday the Ontario government would not provide servicing, such as roads, sewers and water, for the Pickering airport. Premier Davis later announced the provincial government opposed construction of the airport and would oppose expansion of Toronto International Airport.

Mr. Marchand said Thursday the provincial government's decision against providing servicing makes it almost impossible for the federal government to proceed with the planned $204-million, one-runway international airport at Pickering.

Transport department officials said they knew of no other major airport in the world being scrapped.

Mr. Marchand said the federal government still is convinced the airport is needed and plans for the Pickering project may be resurrected later. Meanwhile, if the existing Toronto International Airport became congested, aircraft would have to go to the new Mirabel International Airport near Montreal.

Prime Minister Trudeau said the move to stop Pickering obviously will mean more jobs and business for Mirabel.

However, Mr. Rhodes said a Montreal-Toronto-Windsor rail corridor should be developed to end congestion of short-haul lifts from Toronto International Airport.

Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said he supported the Ontario government's decision to oppose the Pickering project.

Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, said an alternative to the Pickering site would be at CFB Borden near Barrie, Ont., where the federal government owns about 12,000 acres of land.

In Brampton, Ont., Peel regional council said it wants clarification of the provincial and federal governments' position on construction of an airport in Pickering and expansion at Malton.

Padlocked gates and security guards blocked some roads on the site of the proposed airport at Pickering, Ont., Wednesday, although the future of the project is in doubt. The Ontario government announced it opposes the airport and will not build access roads. (CP Photo)

Saudi Arabia Alone in Oil Price Demands

VIENNA (AP) — Iran says nine of the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) meeting in Vienna are seeking a "moderate" increase of 10 to 20 per cent in the price of crude oil, leaving Saudi Arabia virtually alone in trying to hold the increase to five per cent.

Iranian Oil Minister Jamshid Amouzegar said one or two other members of the OPEC are demanding "pie-in-the-sky" increases of 25 per cent when the current nine-month price freeze expires Sept. 30.

Negotiations were continuing today, the third day of the OPEC meeting, and some delegation sources thought a compromise might be reached tonight. Unanimity is required for any decision by the group.

Thalidomide Used For Leprosy

NEW YORK (AP) — Thalidomide, the sleeping pill that deformed thousands of babies, has become a Jekyll-Hyde drug. It damaged babies. Now it is helping victims of leprosy.

When pregnant women began taking the drug about 15 years ago, many of their babies were born with missing limbs or other defects.

But thalidomide now is proving effective in controlling a reaction that strikes many lepers, bringing intense pain, high fever, damage to nerves, disfiguring outbreaks of skin sores, and sometimes blindness and death.

Leprosy, not highly contagious, can be controlled or cured with dapsone or other drugs. But many patients are hit with severe attacks that put them in hospitals in serious condition.

Given thalidomide, within 12 to 24 hours "many patients tell how wonderful they feel. It often works like a charm" in controlling the reaction.

Emergency Law May End Montreal Transit Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Talks between the transit commission and a common front of striking workers broke down Thursday night, clearing the way for discussion of back-to-work legislasembly.

A special legislature session was scheduled for 10 a.m. EDT today to vote on the emergency law, already drafted by the cabinet.

About 100 MUCTC cashiers, intially involved with the common front, settled Thursday for a separate contract giving them a two-year, 36-per-cent wage increase and a cost-of-living clause, identical to that signed by bus and subway drivers following a recent 12-day walkout.

Meanwhile, traffic tried commuters' patience for the ninth day Thursday. Some bicyclists and pedestrians were seen wearing gauze masks to counter high pollution levels resulting from traffic jams and overcast skies.

Jacques Beaudoin, president of a common front of Montreal Transit Union locals, said Thursday he could not predict how the unions would react to legislation, saying the decision would be left to a membership vote.

Locals disregarding the legislation would be liable for fines of $50,000.

It is not known which issues caused the talks to break down, but Mr. Beaudoin said before negotiations ended that the commission's last offer—a 29.2-per-cent wage increase over two years plus a cost of-living indexation clause—"would not be acceptable to my union members."

He also said little progress was made in negotiations on working conditions, overtime pay and job security.

Report Says BTC Will Lose On Industrial Park Bus Run

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Transit Commission could lose a minimum of $2.86 on every passenger using any prospective bus service into the city's northeast industrial park.

Figures outlining the potential commission deficit were contained in a report submitted to the BTC Thursday as it again considers a bus run to serve the park's 540 employees.

But the deficit figure is likely "optimistic". BTC manager Lewis McMullin told commissioners.

He said his calculations were based upon an estimate that five per cent of park employees would use a bus service.

Commission experience in supplying a "front-door" transit service to Northern Electric Co. Ltd. would tend to indicate the five per cent forecast is unrealistic.

Mr. McMullin said only 1.5 per cent of Northern Electric's 830 workers use transit.

To supply the park with a bus run, morning and night, an expenditure of $95 (for five hours of service) or $76 (four hours) would be chalked up by the commission. Return from fares decrease commission costs marginally.

High costs are partly due to the staggered starting and quitting times of employees in the park's 28 plants, said Mr. McMullin.

Commissioners accepted the manager's report, based on a survey of park employers, with little discussion, preferring to consider possible service next month.

Over a year ago, the BTC experimented with service into the park for a month. However, use by the end of the month had dropped to 1½ passengers per bus run and the commission dropped the experiment.

BTC chairman Marylea Burtt said "the problem is that the industrial commission would like to sell the industrial park to industry by saying that bus service is available."

Student Employment Centre Sought Here

By LORIE JOHNSON

Federal permission will be sought for a permanent student employment officer to serve Belleville and Hastings County, following an employment committee meeting Thursday.

Until now, Belleville has been served by a student employment centre operated in summer months only.

Belleville is situated in a "growth area", said Jim White, manager of Belleville's Manpower Centre, explaining the increasing demand for a student employment officer.

Over the past 10 years there has been a 500 per cent increase in student registration, said committe chairman, Jim Staveley.

During the past summer, 2,200 students registered for part-time summer employment at the temporary office, said Mr. White.

A permanent student employment centre is already being operated as a pilot project in Thunder Bay by the provincial government.

The employment committee plans to study the operation of the Thunder Bay student office. This will not be done until they have received word from federal authorities.

The permanent student employment officer would approach local industries to acquire more temporary summer jobs for students.

Belleville's Manpower Centre was one of the first in Ontario to start a summer student employment program, said Mr. White.

During the past summer, about 1,100 students were placed in temporary employment. Mr. White said the progam was well promoted through poster contests and banner-painting.

Gun Club Plans Shoot

PICTON — The Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club will hold its annual black powder shoot on Sunday, October 5 beginning at 12:30 p.m. Five competitions are offered, the first for .22 rifles, iron sights, ten shots at 50 yards off hand. Second competition is for large bore hunting rifles, while the third competition is open for any scoped rifle, eight pounds overall weight maximum.

The fourth competition is for any black powder rifle using black powder loads, and the final competition is for any black powder rifle using black powder loads, five shots off hand at 50-yards.

Park Grant Approved

TWEED — A provincial grant for $3,000 for the village of Marmora for Marmora Approved Park has been announced by Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources.

The park comprises some 22 acres of land on the east bank of the Crowe River.

Hike Sought

PICTON — Members of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority have voted to seek permission from the Ontario Municipal Board for a $10 increase in per diem rates.

Authority members now received an honorarium of $20 per meeting and have voted in favor of a $10 increase.

Hotel May Get New Owners

TRENTON — The owners of the Gilbert Hotel here, destroyed by fire last March, are seeking suitable tenants to reopen the business in its present building.

Gerald Weaver, an official of Quinte Realty Ltd., said estimates have just been finished "and the contractors say it is more feasible to renovate the building at present construction costs than it is to build an entire new structure."

Mr. Weaver said Thursday the delay in making a decision about what to do with the building was caused partially by wild rumors about the cost to renovate the building.

Some applications have been received from prospective tenants who wish to develop a dining room and hotel at the site, but Mr. Weaver said it takes time to check out their financial references.

Auxiliary Plans Blood Clinic

PICTON — A blood donor clinic will be held at Picton United Chruch Hall on Tuesday Oct. 14 from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 6:30 to 9 p.m. The clinic is sponsored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Future of Main Street Topic of New Survey

By MARG HAYLOCK

PICTON — Planning background studies of the Picton-Hallowell urban area will be presented to community residents at a public meeting Oct. 8 in the Parish Hall here.

The Prince Edward County planning board will introduce questionnaires with emphasis on the role and appearance of the central business district.

The secondary plan for Picton and Hallowell was presented to the county planning board at its regular meeting this week. The study shows the projected 1988 population for the urban area will be about 8,664 persons, an approximate increase of 2,675 residents. The figure is based on growth attributable to industrial development that is expected to create jobs.

The study shows 835 new residential units likely will be needed if the population figures rise as predicted.

Planners are concerned by the conflict of normal highway through traffic on Main Street coming from Highways 14, 33 and 49 ~~with the ordinary~~ traffic of the business district.

The report states, "The business district role of this street is of great economic importance for the economy of the town of Picton. Therefore, the protection and facilitation of this role of Main Street becomes a matter for planners to decide."

The study includes an appriasal of buildings in the Picton-Hallowell area and it is noted that only 23 are in "poor condition." This description covers major structural defects. The majority of buildings in fair and poor condition were found south of Mary St., on Church St. near Bridge St., on William St., on Ferguson St. and along Union St. and the East Lake Rd.

It was observed that most of these buildings cannot be improved without major expenditures.

Subdivision Proposed

PICTON — Waring's Corners just west of here proposed as the location of a sub-division by Mrs. Ruth Denton, has been suggested for development for the second time.

Originally, a plan for the Waring Estates was forwarded to the Prince Edward County planning board and county council. A number of community residents fought the proposal and plans were dropped.

This week a consulting municipal engineer, R.J. Burnside, met with the Prince Eward County planning board to request that 30 acres of the Waring farm be included in the Picton-Hallowell urban study. He acted on behalf of Mrs. Denton who now is living in the farm house on the property in question.

Mr. Burnside said the land is well delineated, serviced the municipal water supply and has ready access to Picton.

He added that Mrs. Denton has no formal plan for development of the property and no plans can be made unless the land is included in tthe study area.

If the property is included in the study, then plans will be prepared and submitted on the basis of the land's designation.

It is expected the planning board will decide on the engineer's request at its next meeting.

Summer Program Coast Guard First

TRENTON — The Royal Canadian Coast Guard with headquarters at CFB Trenton conducted a summer employment program for university students for the first time this year and reports it produced excellent results for the 23 male and one female engaged in the undertaking.

Capt. H G. Bould, commanding officer of the Coast Guard Centre in reporting on the success of the endeavor Thursday, noted the students enrolled received instruction at four stations, Longueille and Lake of Two Mountains in Quebec, and Rossport and Port Severne in Ontario.

In flated rubber boats were used in the water exercises included in the training tests.

Meanwhile, since April 1, regular units attached to the centre at Trenton in operations with the rescue coordination centre at CFB Trenton participated in more than 1,000 calls from aircraft and boats in distress in the Great Lakes area.

In an emergency, the coast guard provides water craft for surface sweeps with the air arm from Canadian forces bases supplying "eyes in the sky" for them.

Currently, the Great Lakes area is serviced by eight coast guard search and rescue cutters with a back-up force of seven larger federal transportation ministry ships.

Murray Residents Favor Arena

TRENTON — Murray township council will decide at the next monthly meeting whether the municipality will join Brighton village and Brighton Township in building a $400,000 arena.

Of the 43 who turned out a Murray Cintennial public school Thursday night to discuss the project, 32 voted in favor of the proposal.

At the meeting, it was pointed out Murray's share of the expenditure would be 25 per cent — or $100,000—and it would cost each ratepayer approximately $75 if the debt was paid off in one year.

The handful who objected to council accepting the obligation complained about having to drive the extra distance to Brighton where the facility would be located.

The village of Brighton has agreed to provide the site, water and sewer services as well as 50 per cent of capital for the project.

At present, Murray parents interested in their younsters' participating in sports pay $35 a year for each child enrolled in the community athlitic program in Trenton.

Authority Sites Part of Tour

MARMORA — Two busloads of municipal officials and interested persons toured the Crowe Valley watershed Thursday as guests of the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority.

Visitors saw the biggest dam in the watershed — at Marmora — and the smallest, at Steenburg Lake and were surprised at the number of recreation and conservation areas which have been developed by the authority.

In the morning stops were made at the new Belmont dam, the Crowebridge Conservation Area, Allan's Mills, and the 400-acre nature park on Crowe River.

After lunch there was a visit to the new Marmora filtration plant following which the buses headed north to St. Ola Lake, headwater of Beaver Creek, an important tributary in the system.

London Gold Bullion Market Dips as IMF Countries Sell Their Holdings

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Gold has been losing much of its glitter in the few weeks since member-countries of the International Monetary Fund (IFM) decided to sell some of their holdings on the open market.

The recent price of $128.75 (U.S.) per ounce on the London bullion markekt was the lowest in 20 months.

That couldn't have been what the world's monetary experts had in mind at the IMF annual meeting in early September when, on behalf of their governments, they agreed to:

—Abolish the official price of gold.

—Refrain from pegging the price of gold for the next two years.

—Prevent any increase in their collective holdings of gold.

—Provide that the IMF dispose of one-third of its gold stock by returning one-sixth to the member-countries that supplied it, and selling one-sixth on the open market.

The profit from the open-market sale—that is, the difference between the old official price of $42.22 and the selling price—is earmarked for the benefit of developing countries

At the end of August, bullion dealers in St. Swithin's Lane in the City of London were quoting gold at $159.80. At the low point of its subsequent decline, the free-market price had fallen almost 20 per cent in less than four weeks.

It is probably typical of experts in a field as esoteric as this—international finance—to lose sight of the primal forces of supply and demand that operate in the day-to-day world.

There's not much evidence that they anticipated the wave of gold selling by anxious investors and speculators in London, Zurich and elsewhere.

Nor did they seem to anticipate the possibility that the Soviet-owned Woschod Handelsbank in Zurich would contribute to the selling pressure with offerings of gold from the mines of the U.S.S.R.

The experts who met in Washington may have thought that the decline in the free-market price of gold, from its high of about $200, had been halted at the $160 level around Labor Day. Even some professional traders had been forecasting that the price would fluctuate in a band between $160 and $80.

In any event, the continuing slump in the free-market price has substantially reduced the value of the major powers' gold reserves, and the extent of their planned aid to developing countries.

That doesn't mean, however, that the role of gold is coming to an end.

In this age of eroding currencies, plenty of people will continue to buy gold as an anti-inflationary investment hedge

And the gold stocks that are held by the major powers' central banks may well be used more realistically—rather than being treasured solely as national symbols.

With the artificially set official price of $42.22 eliminated now, central banks will be less inhibited about carrying out transactions in official gold among themsives.

Whether the IMF agreement will lead to any other practical benefits remain to be seen. This year's agreement reverses, contradicts or abandons many features of the monetary reforms that were negotiated at the 1973 and 1974 IMF annual meetings.

What is clearer than ever before, however, is that there are no one-way streets for speculators.

Gold is our most ancient and widely accepted store of value, but even it cannot be bought without financial risk.

The 'Business' Image

Mayor Ben Corke's announcement of two new industries with a hiring potential of 115 jobs reflects the brisk pace of the Belleville commercial scene in recent years.

There is the evidence of the eye too, as the city moves forward at a clip that is the envy of other centres.

Aside from quantity, though, what of the image of the business world generally? The suggestion is that it is somewhat tarnished and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is concerned that the public obtain a more positive impression of what essentially is the lifeblood of our society.

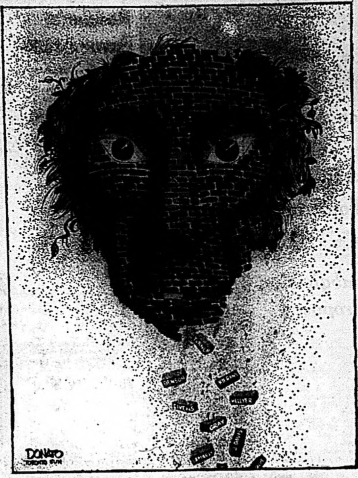
Business, Canadian Chamber of Commerce president E. R. Olson said in recent days, "continues to be a convenient scapegoat for those who seek to explain away the problems of modern and complex society."

Among Chamber counter moves, Mr. Olson (speaking at the annual convention in Saskatoon), mentioned further public-information programs to explain the mechanics of big business. There will also be extensive representation to Ottawa relative to the proposed federal inquiry into the concentration of corporate power.

Locally, Chamber of Commerce manager Don Sutton points to the "Salute to Manufacturing" at the Quinte Mall last spring as "just a beginning."

Another initiative of the national body: circulation of a questionnaire at the convention, to poll businessmen's views of themselves. The answers, if made public, could make interesting reading. In the Robbie Burns context of seeing themselves as others see them, on the other hand, flattery might not be the main element. And yet, in terms of the initiative and professionalism needed to keep the economy moving, they are an essential cog in the economic machine.

The pity is the increasing polarization between management and labor, as manifested by the collective bargaining process — with strikes, increased wages without corresponding increases in production, and one of the highest rates of inflation in the western world.



Cabinet Shuffle Task Faces Prime Minister

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

Ottawa — Prime Minister Trudeau, in his eight years as government leader, has added some exotic names to the list of authors whom politicians quote. But these days he is probably muttering that well-known Robbie Burns line about "the best laid plans of mice and men."

Mr. Trudeau named his first cabinet back in 1968 with the promise–or the threat–that he would be juggling portfolios frequently to keep his ministers on their toes. In fact he has been the most conservative of prime ministers in that regard, only making changes when circumstances forced his hand.

When Parliament rose for the summer in July, Mr. Trudeau announced there would be no cabinet changes until next summer–not a surprising statement in view of his record.

Apparently he made the statement without checking with his ministers. They have now forced his hand and he faces a major cabinet overhaul whether he likes it or not.

It was not a great surprise that Gerard Pelletier left and his going in no way reflects on government policy. He has been a most reluctant parliamentarian and it was a little sad at times to see him going through the motions when he enjoyed it so little. He took his cabinet responsibilities seriously–maybe too seriously.

His departure was obviously timed to fill the vacancy in the Paris embassy. It gives him a prestige position to move into although he might not find the protocol of diplomatic life any more congenial than Parliament.

Finance Minister John Turner's departure is another matter altogether. While political considerations no doubt had a part–how much longer could he sit around waiting for Pierre Trudeau to leave centre stage–there was also the very real clash of views on economic policy. Mr. Turner could not, with a clear conscience, remain in a cabinet that rejected his concept of dealing with an ailing economy.

The Trudeau government's way of dealing with most problems–despite its Francophone tinge–is the old British idea of "muddling through." Keep a stiff upper lip and ignore the economic problems and in due course they will go away. John Turner knows they won't.

The other minister that Mr. Trudeau may have to replace is Jean Marchand. Mr. Marchand offered his resignation recently after being convicted of leaving the scene of an accident. But Mr. Trudeau couldn't very well accept it on that basis.

If no convenient hole opens up for Mr. Marchand in the near futuse, he may have to fall back on that old standby "for reasons of health", which would not be all that far from the truth.

An interesting sidelight on Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet-making, is the faith he has in the ministers he inherited from Lester Pearson

Mitchell Sharp, Allan MacEachen and especially Bud Drury, are called in to hold the fort whenever some minister runs into problems. Mr. Drury will now keep a fatherly hand on the helm of the finance department until Mr. Trudeau picks a successor to John Turner.

Maybe someday he will get a chance to baby-sit the prime minister's office while the party finds a successor to Pierre Trudeau.

America's Underground

Warnings of an underground guerrilla movement in the United States and particularly in California are not new.

As far back as April 1970 an Associated Press article discussed the phenomenon in the wake of a rash of political bombings at that time. The two abortive attacks on President Ford are simply further manifestations of such activity and the sinister prospect of more to come.

That women increasingly are involved is indicative that the equality thing is extending to crime too.

Back in June a woman called a newspaper office, warning that the Bureau of Indian Affairs offices in Alameda, Calif. would be bombed by the New World Liberation Front.

Charles Bates, FBI agent in the Patricia Hearst case, has been quoted as saying this group has claimed responsibility for at least 15 bombings in California. Whether any link exists between the NWLF and the Symbionese Liberation Front which first kidnapped Miss Hearst and then converted her to political activism apparently has not yet been established. It is believed however that the NWLF was first mentioned in a "communique" by SLA member William Harris who is also in custody.

What seems to be happening is that these underground groups (the AP article in 1970 even showed radicals at target practice in Berkeley, Calif.) are becoming bolder. It could be the beginning of further anxious times on the American domestic scene.

Hotrodders

Police should keep a sharp eye out for hot rodders on Front Street.

They will find them mostly on the stretch from the Four Corners to the Dundas Street bridge.

One young man pulled out from the curb recently, and gunned his poweful vehicle around a truck which was double-parked, then roared on. If anyone had been venturing from behind the truck, or across the pedestrian walk near the City Hall, there could have been trouble.

This kind of thing, in addition to the continuing carnage on the highways, with many a young person meeting an untimely death, or suffering severe injuries, is one of the reasons why insurance rates are high for all of us.

NDP Gains via PC Default

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The spotlight these days is all on the NDP.

The Lewis party's big win in the seats and elevation to the role of official opposition was the big dramatic development of the election.

When second moves in, however, more sobriety could take over.

And there is joy unbounded and optimism rampant in the party camp.

For although the NDP election was a good one and the party is at a life-time peak, the present situation is not one that calls for unparallelled joy.

On close inspection it is evident that the party still has a tough road ahead before it can ever gain its ultimate goal of winning office.

The fact is that though it nearly doubled its holding of seats, so far as support is concerned the party didn't do all that much better than in 1971.

Figures show that its gains were mainly through default.

At time of writing official returns aren't in but rough calculations show the NDP vote this year was probably just a bit more than in the last election.

Where it made headway was that the total vote was down from 73 per cent to under 65 per cent and therefore its steady basic vote paid off in many more seats.

The big difference would appear to be in PC backing, where it would seem that some 300,000 normal supporters this time didn't vote. (About 100,000 from the evidence, switched to the Liberals).

What this could mean is that the NDP didn't really make the inroads it would appear to have at first glance.

It undoubtedly picked up some new support. But its basic support is more constant than that of the other parties, and most important it is a support that gets out and votes. So that the pick-up probably wasn't monumental.

As to the future there must be reservations. For it would appear that in this election the party probably got just about nearly every vote and every seat that was possible to it. It ran second in only 23 ridings, as against 53 for the Conservatives and 49 for the Liberals. And in only a few of these was it close.

Although it almost certainly will pick up some new credibility support from its new stature as the official opposition and the size of its representation one would say it still has a long way to go before it can hope to form a government.

Election Aftermath

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

When Premier Bill Davis assembles the tattered remnants of his party for the reopening of the provincial parliament things will not be the same. Tory arrogance is apt to be a commodity in short supply.

A rejuvenated Opposition is likely to press Mr. Davis to honor all those goodies he passed out in the hopes of catching votes. We can expect to see the hard-pressed Tories toss out even more in the hopes of re-establishing their credibility before going to the people again.

Most heartening feature of the election was the resistance of the voters to being bought with their own money. The Davis government has been told in no uncertain manner that most people don't want them.

Locally, despite the exhortations of The Intelligencer editorials, the funny hats and hullabaloo of the Tory machine and the visits of ranking Tory hierarchy, they failed.

Hugh O'Neil will now tread the unfamiliar steps of Queen's Park, Carson McLaughlan who ran an excellent campaign and emerged as a very knowledgeable and personable candidate has firmly established himself as a new political personality. Tory hopeful Robin Jeffrey, according to one Letter to the Editor, was to "sweep to Queen's Park on the wings of victory" and a possible cabinet post. Instead she ended up fluttering back to the kitchen in search of her cookbook. Such is politics

Conservative Philosophy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In reply to the "armchair" critics, in particular W. Hockley whose sneering remarks about the Progressive Conservative Party and their candidate in the recent election, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, have been in the worst possible taste.

Coming from the same country as yourself Mr. Hockley — not the same area I am sure — I too can sneer if need be, but would rather turn the other check.

I was brought up to believe that the Conservative Party stands for God, King and Country; not bad principles and not ideologies or theories, but a way of life. We could all stop, sit and think occasionally how we can help to make this a better place to live.

Quinte Fray In Retrospect

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

My congratulations to Mr. O'Neil for winning in a predominately Tory riding.

My condolences to both Candidates Jeffrey and McLauchlan; it was a good fight.

My sympathy to Mr. Hockley as he will have to find someone else to tear apart.

Religious and Racial Friction an Increasing Blight

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Among the world's smaller multi-racial societies, Lebanon and Switzerland, with perhaps countries like Malaysia not too far behind, were set as workable models of what could be done when different races and religions lived side-by-side.

Examples of how not to survive were always Northern Ireland even before the outbreak of the present record bitter hostilities in 1969, and Belgium where French and Flemish communities have been at each other's throats for years.

It would seem no small multi-racial national community is now safe from the threat of civil war and dismemberment.

The Lebanese internal war accentuated by external Middle Eastern events, is a deep tragedy, Malaysia for the time is quiet, benefiting as it does from an unprecedented industrial boom.

But underneath, traditional jealousies by the less-aggressive Malays toward the business-like shopkeepers and millionaires of Chinese origin are simmering as they have since the Malayan peninsula and the island of Singapore were British crown colonies before 1941.

The Commonwealth Caribbean islands were given as examples of where racial tensions either could flare up under independence status, or be subordinated to the new national goals.

In Jamaica, Guyana, Trinidad and Tobago blacks, East Indians and some whites and Syrians still do not live in racial harmony In Guyana, blacks and East Indians engaged in close to racial war in the early 60s.

And Jamaica's internal problems with racial strife are little heard about or understood abroad because the outside observer of Jamaican public life is aloof from them.

Again the Caribbean divisions are more than racial, indeed are often mainly economic, with the blacks seeking prestige and power through the political process and the East Indians emerging as shopkeepers, entrepreneurs and in the professions.

In a way they hold the same position in Caribbean societies as the Chinese do in South East Asia because they are the movers in business who are impatient with the bureaucracy and high-handed ways of the local politicians.

I refer to these smaller places rather than to a giant of a nation like India, because one anticipates racial and religious differences like economic ones, can be worked out more easily in smaller national communities.

But the concept of the small nation as an ideal laboratory for racial and religious pace is unfortunately, no longer a valid one.

Switzerland seems to be the hold-out. But even there, troubles have ben brewing in a country of four official languages, French, German Italian and the dialect Romansch yet where immigrant workers have raised resentments.

All this would suggest more hard times for the larger multi-racial and religious communities like India, and certainly the white African ones, where blacks have such low representation in the status quo even though they are by far the majority race.

Timbrell Attacks Ontario's Oil Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Dennis Timbrell, Ontario energy minister, accused the federal energy department Thursday of using "scare tactics" to attack the province's price freeze on oil and gas prices.

In Ottawa Thursday, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said that if Ontario extends the freeze beyond Nov. 15, oil companies may cut production and Ontario may run short of fuel supplies.

"Whether it was conscious or not, the minister is using scare tactics which really, I'm surprised he'd stoop to," Mr. Timbrell said in an interview.

Mr. Timbrell said Ontario's inventory of fuel supplies shows it is "in good shape this winter."

There were one or two oil refineries in Ontario which had cut production, but this was done because of increased competition from refineries outside the province.

Ontario extended the oil freeze until Nov. 15 and appointed a one-man royal commission to investigate oil prices. Premier William Davis has said the province will take another look at the freeze when the commission reports.

Mr. Timbrell said he expects the report to be completed before Nov. 15.

Mosquito Spraying Delayed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Spraying operations to kill mosquitos carrying the encephalitis virus were delayed again Thursday by wet, windy weather, amid growing controversy over the effectiveness of the program.

Dr. Stephen Smith of the University of Waterloo biology department, who has just submitted a brief on mosquito control to the federal government, said in an interview that the proposed spraying is totally unwarranted.

He said cool weather has reduced the density of the mosquito population and the type of mosquito spreading the disease is a "container type" which breeds in containers such as old tires and in water-filled basins.

The chance of eliminating them was slight because they would not come into direct contact with the insecticide.

Ray Burkett, acting field manager for the Winnipeg mosquito abatement program, said spraying had been effective there.

He said between 20 and 50 per cent of mosquitoes tested prior to the spraying were carriers of the virus, but that after the spraying the count was nil.

Charles Coutts, a consultant for the Windsor and Essex County health unit, said the spraying was to be carried out between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. when the mosquitoes are generally airborn, thus eliminating the container problem.

Dr. Joseph Jones, medical officer for the unit, said he believes the source of the virus no longer is in the city and that the spraying program might eliminate the encephalitis problem.

Birds—likely house sparrows and red winged blackbirds—were the suspected virus carriers. They were being bitten by mosquitos which then transmitted the disease to humans.

Dr. Jones said he is determined to keep the DC-6 aircraft loaded with 3,600 gallons of Baygon insecticide here either until weather conditions improve or frost kills the mosquitos. The cost of keeping the aircraft here is $980 a day.

There have been 74 suspected cases of encephalitis, 19 confirmed cases and two encephalitis-linked deaths in the Windsor area recently.

Working Poor To Get Help

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's working poor will receive an income supplement for a 14-month trial period beginning Nov. 1, pending approval from the province, the city's social services department announced Thursday.

The program would help persons who have steady jobs but still experience financial hardships, usually because of family size, R. R. Tomlinson, commissioner of social services, said.

It would also give incentive to heads of families who are employable but receiving city welfare, he said. The supplement would be a family's normal welfare assistance less 75 per cent of its net income.

A family of four, for example, would receive $428 on welfare. If the father worked 40 hours a week at the minimum hourly wage of $2.40, his net salary, after deductions, would be $403 a month.

About $302, or 75 per cent of the net salary, would then be deducted from the total welfare assistance for an income supplement of $126, bringing the monthly income to $529, Mr. Tomlinson said.

The minimum supplement would be $20 monthly. A family with a father earning $544 a month would get this amount. If his earnings exceeded $544, his family would not be eligible.

Further eligibility are that applicants must live in Metropolitan Toronto, be fully employed by an employer other than the city and have no more than $500 plus $100 in liquid assets for each dependent.

Mr. Tomlinson did not estimate the number of eligible families. Figures just released for August show about 1,200 employable family heads received general welfare assistance for themselves and their families.

Metro Council has budgeted $1 million for the pilot project, which will be increased to $1.4 million because the trial period has been extended. Families must apply for the supplement, Mr. Tomlinson said. Once the $100,000 allocated to the program for one month is exhausted, no more applications will be accepted.

Catholic Teachers Get 22 Per Cent Hike

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The 360 teachers employed by the Sault Ste. Marie Roman Catholic separate school board will receive salary increases this year averaging 22.03 per cent.

A one-year agreement retroactive to Sept. 1 raises the maximum salary to $22,100 from $18,200 and the minimum to $8,200 from $6,500.

Terms of the agreement, ratified earlier this week by the board and Ontario English-Catholic School Teachers Association, were announced Thursday.

Additional benefits bring the total increase to 23.13 per cent. The agreement covers both elementary and high school teachers.

The contract includes a sabbatical leave plan, a one-day paternity leave and other leaves.

The 435 elementary teachers in the public school system settled their contract with the school board last May. Their agreement raised minimum salaries to $7,400 from $6,290 and maximum to $22,100 from $19,190. High school teachers have yet to agree on a contract with the board.

Immigrant Union Wants Identity Cards for Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — The people who man the country's border posts are calling for tougher immigration laws, including an annual limit on immigration and special identity cards for foreign students and transient workers.

Leaders of the 3,000-member Manpower and Immigration Union told the special parliamentary committee on immigration policy Thursday that the government must impose an annual immigration quota small enough to avoid any major increase in the population.

The union, an affiliate of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, agreed with the two-million-member Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) that immigrants should not be forced to live in worker-scarce parts of the country.

Both organizations appeared before the Commons-Senate special investigating committee which is preparing a report on the government's immigration green paper of last winter.

The quota should be non-discriminatory and mark a definite step away from expansionist immigration policies of the past, a union brief stated.

Railway Workers Ask Wage Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Railway workers employed by CP Rail and Canadian National will be seeking wage increases amounting to about $2 an hour in upcoming contract talks, union sources said Thursday.

The present average wage of the 98,000 workers belonging to 17 organizations comprising the Associated Railway Union (ARU) is $5.02 an hour.

Union officials have been predicting a tough round of negotiations.

Wood Stoves — A Hot Item

Back in the days of rationing, Jardine's Home Hardware in Tweed was alloted one half of one wood stove a year to sell.

"That was 1942 and our wartime quota was ½ of a stove — but they sent us one a year anyway," recalls Les Jardine.

In those days everybody had a wood stove and business in cook stoves and box stoves was fairly brisk.

After the war, though, it began to drop off and by the early 1960s, Les Jardine had just about decided to stop carrying wood-burning stoves which had been a specialty of his hardware store for many years.

"Then people began demanding those Franklin stoves for fireplaces," Mr. Jardine says, "and we started selling a few more."

A little later the snowmobile industry opened up cottages in the winter and, "business got a little better".

Today, Jardine's sells 10 times the stoves it did a few years ago, thanks, largely to both the cost of fuels and the fear people have that oil might be unavailable.

"In many cases people have wood going to waste on their property and they figure with the price of things they might as well use it."

On the other hand many persons fear an oil shortage or even extended electric power failure which makes any furnace useless.

"They want something to fall back on," Mr. Jardine says.

Consequently, sales are booming.

"Woodstove business is up 1,000 per cent," he says, adding that he's glad he didn't discontinue the line a few years ago.

There are box stoves at $100 and up, pot belly stoves and Franklin fireplaces in both the traditional cast iron and a less expensive, lighter weight steel and cast combination. There are five or six different kinds of Franklin stoves in the store, including a "good copy" from Taiwan which sells at $150 less than the Sackville, New Brunswick "Enterprise" classic.

Jardine's is even handling new wood cook stoves now which sell at more than $400.

For those who wish efficiency more than atmosphere, there's the famous Ashley heater with its low fuel consumption and automatic thermostat. They are sold for about $200 for the bottom of the line economy model to $450 for the largest, most modern looking wood heater.

"People have come from as far away as New York to buy wood stoves here," Mr. Jardine says, and adds that he routinely back-orders stoves which are still in relatively short supply despite the fact that manufacturers have increased production recently.

People who used to have wood stoves are going back to them for supplementary heating and young people, raised in homes with gas, oil or electric heat, are turning to the fuel they can grow in their own back yard, Mr. Jardine believes.

"There's a whole new generation changing its thinking about things . . . these kids are very excited about wood stoves."

People and Events

ST. MICHAEL'S CWL

The members of St. Michael's Catholic Women's League attended a mass celebrated by Rt. Rev. J.P. Sullivan before their recent fall meeting.

Muriel Brennan, president, outlined the year's coming events, and Claire Gorcey introduced guest speakers Susan Ackerman, Norma La Croix and Alana MacDonald who spoke on "Woman and her nature". Catherine Follwell thanked the women and presented them with books by Jean Vanier.

QUEENSBORO UCW

Dorothy Lees, leader of Unit Two of the Queensboro United Church Women, conducted the worship service at the recent meeting held in the Sunday School room. Jean Holmes talked about the Book of Ecclesiastes for her part of the program.

Unit One also met in the Sunday School room, with Goldie Holmes at hostess, and Jean Tokley in charge of a program about usefulness.

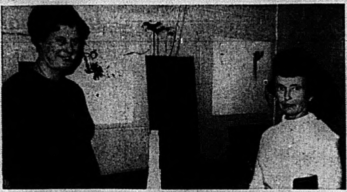
OAWST MEETING

The September general meeting of the Ontario Association of Superannuated Women Teachers was held recently at Helen Calnan's cottage after a pot luck luncheon.

President Helen Calnan conducted the business portion of the meeting at which Edna Walsh was elected first vice-president and Ethel McDonald second vice-president for the coming term.

After considerable discussion, a resolution was passed to increase pensions for superannuated teachers, at the same rate as for all pensioners, geared to the cost of living.

Plans were made for future meetings of the book review, crafts, bowling, bridge, chit-chat and euchre groups.



Ruth Ward, left, and Barbara Nelles, look over crafts.

Fire Fighters At Roslin W.I.

The September meeting of the Roslin Women's Institute took place in the home of Annie Bates with 14 members present. Helen Chisholm was in charge of the meeting, and the roll call, answered by amusing memories of school days

Captain Bob Pearce and Pete Bourgeau of the Thurlow Volunteer Fire Fighters and Quinte Rescue Squad, showed a film of their equipment and two other fire information films. They answered a number of questions about fire prevention.

Bridge Street UCW Tea Held to Help St. Thomas

The women of Bridge Street United Church held a tea and display of arts and crafts Thursday to raise funds for St. Thomas' Church Building Fund.

Guests were received by Ruth Ward and Barbara Nelles.

Olive Root was in charge of admissions and Velma Leslie was in charge of the kitchen.

Tea pourers were Nancy Miller, Ferne Williams, May Sanders, Ruth Ward, Myrtle Reid, and Robin Jeffrey.

Paintings, sculpture, tatting, weaving, drawing and other crafts and arts by members of the congregation were displayed.

LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT - EXTENSION DIVISION offers
A NEW MODERN LANGUAGE TRAINING LABORATORY
Only Recently Available in This Area
REGISTER NOW – LEARN THE SATISFACTION OF FLUENCY IN SECOND LANGUAGE

FRENCH CREDIT COURSES

A six year program (12 sequential semesters of 60 hour coures). These coures are Federal Government accredited by the Public Service Commission of Canada and are accepted as a credit course for a liberal elective in any Arts, Business or Technology program taken at Loyalist.
One of the most modern language laboratories in Canada is in operation, which greatly complements our language program, and has been in operation since February, 1975. In addition, social events conducted entirely in French, are a function of the course.

FRENCH - VOIX ET IMAGES DE FRANCE
"Voix et Images de France" is an audio visual and audio-lingual method of learning French as a second language. Films strips and language tapes are used as teaching aids in the classroom. The film strips present visual, cultural settings for the accompanying native French conversation on the tapes. The course is conducted entirely in French and follows a natural sequence of learning which requires the student to master all the sounds of the language, both orally and aurally, before he is presented with the problems of reading and writing. The first two years of study deal with a concrete, everyday vocabulary. As studies progress, students are gradually introduced to the more abstract language of ideas and sentiments and are less dependent on visual aids. As fluency is developed by discussion and questioning in the classroom, it is imperative that students registering in the program plan to attend classes regularly. Although student materials are available for review or clarification of content covered in classes, no means are available to review language manipulation that is missed by lack of class attendance.
EVENING CLASSES:
To commence the week of Sept. 29, 1975
SECTION 1 — VOIX ET IMAGES 1 Code: 008-081A
A beginner level course designed for students with little or no knowledge of oral French. Tuesday and Thursday - 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.
VOIX ET IMAGES 2 Code: 008-082A
The second semester of beginner level studies. Prerequisite: Voix et Images 008-081A or comparable language studies. Tuesday and Thursday - 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.
SECTION 2 - VOIX ET IMAGES 3 Code: 008-083A
The first level of intermediate studies. Prerequisite: Voix et Images 008-082A or comparable language studies. Tuesday and Thursday - 8:30 - 10:30 p.m.
VOIX ET IMAGES 5 Code: 008-085A
The third level of intermediate studies. Prerequisite: Voix et Images 008-084A or comparable language studies. Tuesday and Thursday - 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.
SECTION 2 - VOIX ET IMAGES 7 Code: 008-08AA
Level one of advanced studies. Prerequisite: Voix et Images 008-086A or comparable language studies. Monday and Wednesday - 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.
POST GRADUATE LANGUAGE STUDIES Code: 088-0387
An advanced discussion course designed for language students who have developed language fluency and wish to retain or refresh their oral skills at an advanced level. Discussion of films, current affairs and literary extracts form the basis of this coures. Tuesday - 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.
FRENCH — DIALOGUE CANADA
A total immersion course taught by the most modern methodology. It is Canadian in content and was developed and is used by the Public Service Commission of Canada for the teaching of French as a second language. It is Federal Government accredited and is accepted as a credit course for a liberal arts elective in any Arts, Business or Technology program taken at Loyalist College.
It will be especially useful for Federal Civil Servants, for businessmen with business affairs in Quebec and for English speaking Canadians who seek an understanding of the language and the culture of French Canada. As language skills are developed by conversational exercises in the classroom, regular attendance is essential.
EVENING CLASSES:
To commence the week of Sept. 29, 1975
SECTION 2 - DIALOGUE CANADA 1 Code: 008-081C
A beginner level course designed for students with little or no knowledge of oral French. No prerequisite. Monday and Wednesday - 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.
DIALOGUE CANADA 3 Code: 008-083C
First level of intermediate studies of this course; Prerequisite: 008-082C Dialogue Canada 2. Monday and Wednesday - 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.
NOTES:
1. All course offerings are subject to sufficient registration.
2. New students wishing to register for courses other than 008-081A Voix et Images 1 or 008-081C. Dialogue Canada 1 may be required to submit to a placement examination or to furnish proof of studies previously made.
3. Two sixty-hour semesters of continued study are offered annually in all courses except Post Graduate Language Studies. The fee for each sixty-hour course is $48.00 plus a $10.00 refundable student materials deposit. The course fee entitles the student to individualized, supervised study in our modern language facilities, in addition to classroom instruction. The refundable student materials deposit entitles the student to home use of language tapes and books accompanying the course, cassette tape recorders and other course materials.
All sixty-hour courses are valued at six credits. In Post Graduate Language Studies, two thirty-hour semesters of continued study are offered annually. The fee for each thirty-hour semester is $25.00.

Ann Landers

Dad-to-Be Can't Face Childbirth

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a 25-year-old man who refuses to accompany his wife to the hospital when she has her first child because he says any aspect of childbirth makes him sick? He claims he becomes nauseated when he sees a picture of a fetus in a magazine.

This man is well-educated, has always been a good husband and says he wants three or four children. But he doesn't want to be around when they are born.

I have tried to explain how much a woman needs to have her husband near to comfort her during such a time but he says his problem goes back to childhood, and he just can't help it.

It seems unnatural that a mature man would have this terrific hangup. Any suggestions? He said you'd side with him because you understand human nature and will agree that nobody can change the spots on a leopard.—P.G. And Mizzerable

Dear P.G.: I didn't realize you were married to a leopard. I thought you were talking about a man. If my assumption is correct, urge him to get counseling through your pediatrician. Merely because the guy picked up some goofy ideas from his mother or his Aunt Mathilda is no reason he must limp through life emotionally hobbled, depriving himself (and you) of the most exciting of all human experiences.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a middle-class American family with three children attending college. Our fourth child will be in college within two years, which means we will be working almost exclusively to educate our children. They've had summer jobs and saved their money since they were 16. They also work on campus. Two have partial scholarships, but still the transportation and extras keep us strapped.

Do you believe college tuition should be tax deductible? If you do, will you say so—?Mr. and Mrs. USA

Dear Mr. and Mrs.: I do indeed believe college tuition should be tax deductible and I have no hesitation about saying so. But if you think education is expensive—try ignorance.

Daughter's Living Death Breaks Mother's Heart

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Except for the bed, it is a normal living room, cluttered with the usual family photographs, children's drawings and other mementoes.

It is hard to walk around, however. Most of the space is occupied by a giant chrome surgical bed.

Fifteen-year-old Karen Vikingstad lies on the bed. She cannot move, cannot speak. No one knows whether she feels or thinks. Her limbs, once young and strong, are twisted and crippled from disuse. She is 17 years old.

Meanwhile, in New Jersey, a legal and medical controversy swirls heatedly around the case of Karen Quinlan, a young woman suspended in a mysterious coma. Her parents want to terminate the extraordinary measures keeping her alive.

Here in northeast Philadelphia, Karen's parents lost the girl they knew to massive brain damage long ago. She did not die, however. Space-age medical technology kept her body going.

In July, 1973, Karen seemed to have a promising future ahead. She was an A student. She swam, ran track, was talented in art, on the piano, on her beloved flute.

Then one morning Karen began choking.

No one knows what happened or why. By the time Karen was rushed to the hospital, her brain had been deprived of oxygen for so long it was damaged beyond repair.

"Her heart stopped once or twice more that evening, and they had her hooked up to every possible machine to keep her body functioning," says her mother.

"But they knew then what severe brain damage there had been. Wasn't that the time to come and say to us: 'I'm sorry, your daughter is dead?' I know it's not an easy question for them, but someone had better look into what happens afterward to the lives they're saving by their heroic measures."

Mrs. Vikingstad's eyes are desperate as she gestures toward her daughter.

"She's had more than two years now of what they call life—but that's not life. If I could show you what was life for her: that piano, that flute, these awards.

"So many things, I don't even know how to tell you. She had a urinary tract infection. Her body blew up like a balloon and turned red as a lobster with a reaction from some antibiotics. She got pneumonia and couldn't cough, couldn't breathe without choking, so they put in a trachea tube and taught me how to suction out the secretions.

"She can't chew, can't swallow, so they put a tube in her stomach and I pour her food, this blenderized formula, into the tube.

"Uncontrolled spastic movement is all she has, but the body was built to be up and moving around, and her legs finally contracted and pulled up almost to her chin from disuse."

Mrs. Vikingstad has given up hope for her daughter. And she is enraged over opinions put forth in the debate over Karen Quinlan.

"If I had known two years ago what I know now, I would have pulled every one of those plugs that kept my daughter alive. I wish I had the courage, but I didn't, and what can I do now? Can I stop pouring the food into the tube in her stomach and let her slowly starve to death? I can't do that."

'Bittersweet' Tells Women's History

TORONTO (CP) — Inscriptions on items of clothing hanging from a clothesline illustrate the status of Ontario women over the last 75 years in an exhibition called Bittersweet.

The exhibition is the work of Judy Wright and Debbie Magidson, two recent York University graduates, and opens today in Sault Ste. Marie before touring other communities in the province.

There are 35 items in the exhibition, including an apron and a cutout of a baby buggy. Inscriptions include facts on the status of women and even some humor in one by Groucho Marx: "My girl is a human gimme pig."

Miss Wright said "the original purpose of the exhibition was to popularize women's history."

"We wanted something visually exciting and humorous. Humor is something important to us."

The exhibition is financed by an International Women's Year grant, an Opportunities For Youth grant and five private donations. The women have also received help from the Ontario Arts Council, the ministry of culture and recreation and the secretary of state, to take the exhibition on tour.

The two women collected the greater part of their material from the National Library in Ottawa and the public archives. They also received contributions from various women's groups.

World Briefs

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Jamaica is planning the establishment of a women's bureau to deal with problems affecting women, says Beverly Manley, wife of the Jamaican prime minister. She said the news media must portray women equally as men.

FAUCET SHOULD RUN

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — Allow the tap water to run for a minute every morning before using it for cooking or drinking, say water experts from the Water Quality Research Council. This method gets rid of water that may have picked up undesirable elements—such as lead or cadmium—by standing in the pipes overnight.

Refugees Learn 'American Way'

INDIAN GAP, Pa. (AP) — The irritating whine of a telephone busy signal rushed through the makeshift classroom that once was a dining hall.

"What is that sound?" a matronly woman slowly asked the room packed with students.

"A biz-zee seg-nall," they responded in kind.

"This is what someone who is calling you hears when you leave the receiver off the hook," the instructor continued, over-enunciating each word. "Do not leave the receiver off the hook."

This "how to use the telephone" class was held for the Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees at one of four holding camps for the 130,000 Asian arrivals in the United States. It is part of a program to ease the assimilation of the refugees into American society.

Outside the instruction room, once an army mess hall, a group of young Vietnamese men energetically pop a volleyball back and forth over a net. Younger boys and girls stand nearby, occasionally spewing forth the new English words they have learned as though one sentence: "Hello how are you fine you're welcome."

The children giggle impishly when the English-speaking visitor responds to the run-on sentence. They do not understand.

The English language is perhaps the most mind-boggling aspect of life here for the Southeast Asians. But they are determined to learn the language, since most of the refugees—former soldiers in the old South Vietnamese Army, American Embassy workers and government administrators—intend to stay in the U.S. for a long time.

The U.S. government has invited the refugees to apply as permanent non-resident aliens.

About 3,000 refugees are waiting to return to Vietnam and are filling out questionnaires from the new regime.

"Some have already gone back and the reception seems to indicate there is no problem," said a spokesman from the United Nations high commissioner on refugees.

He anticipated the program of returning refugees would cost "in the millions of dollars" and that the returns would begin by end of the month.

Many more refugees say they would return "tomorrow" if the new Communist regime did not exist.

"Vietnam is my homeland," said Bui Quang Hau, a 30-year-old former helicopter pilot. "Always there will be homesickness."

Nguyen Van Trieu, a barrack leader at Indiantown Gap, said he would wait maybe two or three years and see how the new government runs before deciding to return.

As barrack leader, Trieu helps the families with day-to-day problems in living. The biggest problem when the camp first opened, he said, was how to use the toilet. Many Vietnamese apparently had never seen one.

Now the biggest problem is boredom.

"There's nothing to do except this," 16-year-old Nguyen Long Van said, pointing to the Scrabble game he and two other men were playing as best they could with the few English words they'd learned.

"They've come to a strange country and almost everything is a problem," said Thich Giac Duc, a Buddhist monk on the Pennsylvania army base. "They're always wondering about what will happen next, what is their future."

Most of the refugees spend their time outside, strolling, visiting one another or just sitting under a tree or near the side of a building. Quietly. Thoughtfully.

Although many refugees say they are anxious to leave the camps and begin new lives, many more are growing reluctant to leave.

Federal and private agency officials say it is the unknown that frightens the refugees, especially those who came from farming areas and speak little English.

Pioneer Life for Disadvantaged Kids

JERVIS, N.Y. (AP) — What is a napkin?

What is a bed you sleep in alone?

Children—labeled "disadvantaged and endangered"—aged 8 through 16 have these and other questions answered for them at Trail Blazer Camps, 1,000 rocky and wooded acres 15 miles south of here in New Jersey.

To be "disadvantaged" means, in their parlance, that you've got nothing going for you. To be "endangered" means things may get worse.

Things may get worse because some older siblings have been in trouble with the law, because some of these children may never have known a father.

Some have been victims of almost total neglect and often child abuse. They are children who aren't in bad trouble—yet. Trail Blazer Camps aim to save such children.

The campers are selected with the help of 29 social service agencies in New York City and Sussex County, New Jersey. The 80 girls and 48 boys—in separate camps—spend four weeks at a time living as "families" with eight children to two well-trained counsellors, a high ratio on the campfire circuit. Approximately 400 children attend the camp each summer.

They also come back for winter reunions and Old Grads bring their families to visit. One Old rad is Eli Wallach, the actorm Another is Vincent Loscalzo, staff artist for Fortune magazine. Both serve on the camp's board of directors.

Established in 1887, Trail Blazer Camps were formerly Life Camps. The 1,000 acres was donated by Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress, in the 1930s, but they exist solely on private donations. Lois Goodrich, camp director since 1934, says: "It's harder and harden to get money for children these days. Everything is geared to geriatrics. I know they need it, but so do we."

Each social service agency is given a quota of campers and each child assigned to Trail Blazer Camps is given two weeks of sessions explaining what to expect.

They are told they will live like pioneers, in tepees and covered wagons, build their own outdoor fireplaces, cut their firewood, plant and harvest their own vegetables, construct and clean their own latrines. In other words, start with nothing in the wilderness and work their way up.

Peter K. will tell you how they dug an Indian well, erected tepees, set up a kitchen unit by lashing poles they cut themselves to boards sawed in the camp sawmill.

He'll tell you about the 13 fish they caught yesterday in 55-acre Lake Mashipacong, which is part of the camp site, about the snakes he has seen, the berries he has picked and eaten, the garden he and the other boys are trying to start and the fried chicken and biscuits they have every weekend.

Chores at the camps rotate with two children as cooks; two as firemakers, who also chop wood; two as dishwashers and sterilizers of utensils; a handyman who fills lanterns, cleans the latrine and carries water, and a waiter or waitress, who sets the table, brings the food to be served by the counsellor, and clears away.

A shopping list is made up with help from the camp dietitians and with a posted list of food prices from the camp store.

Each unit—10 for the girls and eight for the boys—makes up its own shopping list and, while no money is exchanged and no budget is set, the campers learn the cost of each item and how to calculate cost of food per person.

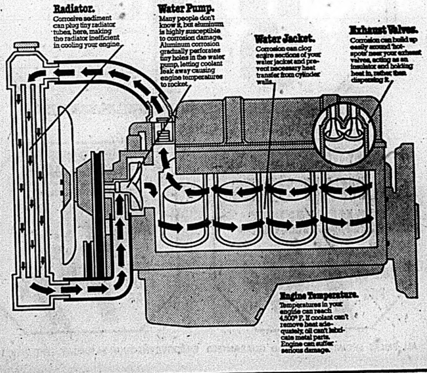
HOW YOUR COOLING SYSTEM CAN AFFECT THE PERFORMANCE OF YOUR ENGINE.

First the bad news.

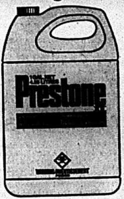
Depending on the size of your engine, there are between 5,000 and 7,000 square inches of bare metal inside your cooling system — metals like steel, cast iron, copper, brass and solder — even aluminum, which is being used increasingly in cooling systems, especially in imported cars.
All of these metals are susceptible to corrosion.
This type of corrosion can easily build up without your even knowing. So it could be affecting the performance of your engine, right now.
It can build up near your exhaust valves, clog your water jacket, plug your radiator and even eat holes in your aluminum water pump or your aluminum cylinder heads.
Any of these corrosion build-ups can cause dangerous engine over-heating and lead to costly repairs.



Radiator.
Corrosive sediment can plug tiny radiator tubes, here, making the radiator inefficient in cooling your engine.
Water Pump.
Many people don't know it, but aluminum is highly susceptible to corrosion damage. Aluminum corrosion gradually perforates tiny holes in the water pump, letting coolant leak away causing engine temperatures to rocket.
Water Jacket.
Corrosion can clog entire sections of your water jacket and prevent necessary heat transfer from cylinder walls.
Exhaust Valves.
Corrosion can build up easily around 'hot-spots' near your exhaust valves, acting as an insulator and holding heat in, rather than dispensing it.
Engine Temperature.
Temperatures in your engine can reach 4,500° F. If coolant can't remove heat adequately, oil can't lubricate metal parts. Engine can suffer serious damage.

Now the good news.

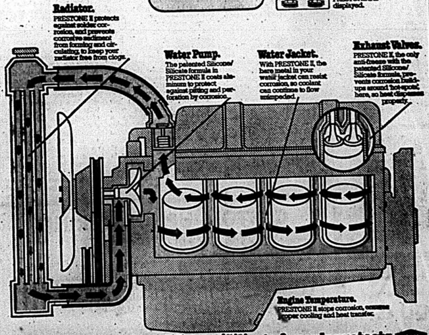
PRESTONE II prevents cooling system corrosion. In fact, PRESTONE II is the only anti-freeze and summer coolant which contains the patented Silicone/Silicate formula to protect against this corrosion.
This unique Silicone/Silicate formula actually bonds itself to every square inch of bare metal inside your cooling system.



It forms a tough protective film over the metal which effectively resists corrosion all year round, to help maintain maximum engine performance.
To ensure the fullest possible protection against corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause, install a fresh fill of PRESTONE II every year.

FLUSH & FILL KIT

To back flush your cooling system at home, quickly and professionally, look for the economical Prestone Flush & Fill Kit, wherever PRESTONE II is displayed.



Radiator.
PRESTONE II protects against solder corrosion, and prevents corrosive sediment from forming and circulating, to keep your radiator free from clogs.
Water Pump.
The patented Silicone/Silicate formula in PRESTONE II coats aluminum to protect against pitting and perforation by corrosion.
Water Jacket.
With PRESTONE II, the bare metal in your water jacket can resist corrosion, so coolant can continue to flow unimpeded.
Exhaust Valves.
PRESTONE II, the only anti-freeze with the patented Silicone/Silicate formula, prevents corrosion build-ups around 'hot-spots' here, so heat disperses properly.
Engine Temperature.
PRESTONE II stops corrosion, ensures proper cooling and heat transfer.

PRESTONE II's unique Silicone/Silicate formula protects every square inch of metal inside your cooling system.

Hatfield Dumps Bricklin After Spending $20 Million

FREDERICTON (CP) — The future of Bricklin Canada Ltd., New Brunswick's government-financed sports car company, was thrown into doubt Thursday when the government said it was putting the company into receivership.

Additional financing from any of Bricklin's three secured creditors will not be forthcoming, Premier Richard Hatfield said in a statement.

He said the decision to appoint a receiver was reached in consultations with the other secured creditors—the First Pennsylvania Bank and the Bank of Montreal.

The move came less than two weeks after the government guaranteed an additional loan of up to $1.2-million, and a day after it announced it was appointing two persons to the board of General Vehicle Inc., Bricklin Canada's parent company in the United States.

It was not immediately known when the government would officially apply to the provincial Supreme Court to have Bricklin put into receivership.

Whether receivership means the end of the company—and the province's $20-million investment—is uncertain.

There was speculation the move was designed to force out Malcolm Bricklin, chairman of the board of Bricklin Canada and president of the parent firm.

Meanwhile, Bricklin workers said they were told to report for work today as usual. As well, employees laid off in the last two weeks would report for work Monday.

A union spokesman said he hoped the situation would be cleared up in a meeting today with the receiver, the Clarkson Co.

Bricklin announced it was locating in Saint John in June, 1973. Initially, the government's investment was to be $6.5-million and it was to own 51 per cent of the shares. Bricklin was to produce about 10,000 cars in the first 12 months of operation, to begin that September.

Government investment now has reached approximately $20 million and it owns 67 per cent of Bricklin Canada Ltd., but the company has not produced the 10,000 cars.

By mid-summer this year, Malcolm Bricklin—by then moved from president to chairman of the board—said Bricklin was near the break-even point.

Two weeks ago, Bricklin announced a one-week layoff of about 250 workers because of a parts shortage. A few days later, the government revealed that a factor in the parts shortage was a cash shortage—and it moved to guarantee the latest loan.

CP News Roundup

Europe Gets Wrong Cover

NEW YORK (CP) — To the embarrassment of the publishers, readers of a ime magazine's international edition found themselves looking at a banner headline without a story.

The banner headline on the front cover of this week's edition concerned the upset Ontario election that turned Premier Davis's administration into a minority government.

But there was no story about the election inside.

Time executives said Thursday that through a production error, the cover for the Canadian edition also became the cover for the international edition that goes to Europe and South America.

Files Complaint

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Public Service Union (CPSU) has filed a grievance against the Canadian Red Cross Society on behalf of Diane Jones, 25, a pregnant employee the Red Cross refused to transfer to light duties. Norman Fraser, CPSU spokesman, said the Red Cross suggested Mrs. Jones take a leave of absence.

Seize Cocaine

BALTIMORE, Md. (Reuter) — U.S. Customs officers seized $5.1-million worth of cocaine at Dulles Airport near Washington and in San Francisco earlier this week and have arrested five Bolivians in connection with the case, Customs Commissioner Vernon Acree said Thursday.

Pays for Release

BONN (Reuter)—West Germany has paid an undisclosed sum to buy 82 people out of East German prisons under a new agreement, the Hamburg newspaper Die Welt says. It quotes informed sources as saying about 800 prisoners would be released to West Germany by the end of this year.

Announces Candidacy

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, 63, Thursday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for U.S. president. He is the eighth Democrat to enter the race.

Memoirs Published

CAIRO (Reuter) — President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said in memoirs published Thursday in the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram that his first duty on becoming head of state was to eliminate conflicting centres of power aimed to overthrow the government and the second was to "do without Soviet experts."

Temper Demands

ST. JOVITE, Que. (CP) — Treasury Board President Jean Chretien called on organized labor Thursday to temper wage demands, saying a poor economic situation that can result from large pay raises can hurt workers the most.

He also urged general restraint on the part of the public.

Gromyko Visits

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko arrived in Ottawa amidst heavy security Thursday for a two-day round of talks with Canadian officials.

The Soviet minister began a heavy schedule almost immediately. He is to fly back to the United Nations today.

Oil Meetings

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial energy ministers will be asked to meet "within a matter of weeks" to discuss Ontario's freeze on oil and gasoline prices, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

The minister, concerned over the effects of the freeze on exploration, said the provinces cannot expect the oil companies to go on absorbing the $1.50 a barrel increase in crude oil prices imposed July 1.

Inspector, Threatened

TORONTO (CP) — Leslie Jowett, a former inspector for the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario, testified in provincial court Thursday he was told his arms and legs would be broken because he found that a premises he had inspected was not acceptable.

Mr. Jowett testified that J. J. Parker "was supposed to do the damage" but no charges resulted from the threat more than 15 years ago because Parker was brought to trial on another matter and the pressure was lifted.

Will Search Out

TORONTO (CP) — An anti-racist group said Thursday its members will search out and expose racial discrimination in trade unions, industry, the media, government offices and schools.

Dr. Wilson Head, co-chairman of the newly-formed Urban Alliance on Race Relations, said at a news conference that although Toronto is "far superior in its race relations to any other North American city," racism is a destructive force that could consume city residents.

Kickback Rumors

OTTAWA (CP) — Vanier Mayor Bernard Grandmaitre said Thursday that "rumors were going on for some time" concerning an alleged kickback scheme in his police department but he was never given any concrete information.

"As chairman of the board of police commissioners and as mayor of the city of Vanier, I have been aware of certain information for some time related to these events," he said.

Thatcher Optimistic

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Thatcher, leader of the Conservative Party in Britain, predicted Thursday that steps taken by the British government will bring inflation down next year from the current rate of 25 per cent.

Agreement Reached

TORONTO (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said Thursday a tentative agreement has been reached on a fringe-benefit package covering 52,000 Ontario civil servants.

The union says it is preparing to send ballots to members for ratification. The voting is expected to be completed by Oct. 20.

Chairman Chosen

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada announced Thursday it has selected Roger Charbonneau, 60, dean of the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales in Montreal, as chairman for the business committee that is to help the government oversee development of a commerce system.

U.S. Revises Tariffs To Relief of Canadians

WASHINGTON (CP) — To the relief of many Canadian exporters, the United States has revised key tariff regulations without imposing high-cost changes that Canadians had feared.

"I think Canada's concern has been met," one Canadian expert said Thursday, following publication of the revisions which become effective Oct. 20.

These relate to the use of American components incorporated in Canadian products sold in the U.S.

In the past, the U.S. waived tariffs on a portion of the Canadian products representing the U.S.-produced components. But many Canadians had feared that with revisions coming up, the American policy would be changed and tariffs would be levied against the entire cost of the products, including the American-made components.

During the last four years, importers have been spared duty on about $500 million worth of U.S. components embodied in finished Canadian products shipped into the U.S.

One Canadian expert said the modifications reproduced in the Federal Register "are far less onerous than proposed regulations which appeared last July."

Some of the red tape surrounding the shipment of products made with U.S. components has been pared and customs brokers now may sign documents on behalf of actual importers.

Act Out Sex Roles

TORONTO (CP) — Some prisoners at the Millhaven penitentiary in Kingston act out boy-friend—girl-friend roles, a penitentiary guard testified Thursday at the trial of two prisoners.

However, the guard said he did not know whether David Cabana, 41, stabbed to death last January, had such a relationship with a younger prisoner.

James Cavanagh, 27, and William Ronald Donaldson, 27, are on trial on a charge of murder punishible with life imprisonment in connection with Cabana's death.

Walton Rose of Toronto, lawyer for Donaldson, suggested Cabana might have been killed because of jealously over a homosexual relationship.

Crown Attorney Norman Matusiak alleges that Cavanagh stabbed Cabana 40 times while Donaldson acted as a lookout. A former prisoner who Mr. Matusiak says witnessed Cabana's death is expected to testify during a hearing Saturday.

Mr. Justice Edson Haines ordered a Saturday sitting because the jury is sequestered until the end ofthe trial and he hopes to speed the proceedings. The trial continues today.

Agency Opened

SASKATOON (CP) — An employment placement agency for the handicapped in Saskatoon has been opened to provide counselling, employer contact and follow-up services to city and district residents. Officials estimate there are 500 potential clients in the area.

Bussinessmen Criticize Free Trade Move Here

TORONTO (CP) — Two businessmen Thursday criticized the Economic Council of Canada's recent recommendation that Canada move towards free trade.

Council chairman Andre Raynauld said he feels depressed that many Canadians feel that the country lacks the ability to compete on equal terms in the world market.

At the first of six seminars on the council's report sponsored by the Canadian Manufacturers Association (CMA), Albert Davidson, president of Harding Carpets Ltd., Toronto, said the council's outline of a new trade strategy "is not a credible document."

William MacOwan, president of Howden Parsons Ltd., Toronto, said the report uses unsupported statements to build other arguments.

The third businessman on the seminar panel, A. S. Logan, general manager of Sparton of Canada Ltd., London, Ont., said he supports free trade because Canada is becoming isolated.

Mr. Davidson said parts of the report are misleading and it does not cover areas concerning free trade, such as economic changes that have taken place over recent years.

He said he finds it distressing that the council would make recommendations on free trade at "this crucial time" when inflation is a major concern.

Mr. MacOwan said the country should be looking for skilful use of import protection rather than eliminating it completely. He expressed concern that free trade would lead to dumping.

Mr. Raynauld, in defence of the report, said the council suggested free trade as one way to improve Canada's low productivity level and said those who disagree must offer alternative solutions.

Oil Companies Urge Ontario To Work Oil Policy with Ottawa

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An executive of the Ontario Paper Co. Ltd. said Thursday that one of the first priorities of the Ontario government should be to attempt to work out a sensible national energy policy with Ottawa.

W. Kenneth Voss, vice-president of the St. Catharines-based company, told the Canadian Club that one of the principal reasons for rate increases being sought by Ontario Hydro is the burden of capital costs of nuclear-power stations.

He said the cost of establishing the expensive nuclear-generating network could be shared with other provinces and, at the same time, Ontario could be supplementing its capacity with cheaper hydro-electric power from Quebec and Manitoba.

"We have to work out a sensible national energy policy," he said. "But aside from that, the long-term solution to the high cost of industrial power is for the customers and supplier to sit down and talk things over like adults."

Mr. Voss is also chairman of the Association of Major Power Consumers in Ontario, a group of 40 industries attempting to curb Hpdro's proposed rate increases: The utility first asked for a 30-per-cent rise and then scaled it down to 25 per cent.

Outbreak of Forest Fires Highest in Ten Years Says Official

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

This has been the worst year in at least a decade for forest fires in the northern townships of the Quinte district.

Sparked by a prolonged dry spell that started in early summer, the number of fires in the Tweed forestry district more than doubled the 10-year average.

A major cause of the outbreaks was traced to people using the outdoors for recreation.

"I'd be safe in saying it was the worst season in the area for at least 10 years," says Doug Mumford, fire control supervisor for the district.

The local situation was reflected province-wide. Up to Wednesday there were 2,990 forest fires in Ontario, one of the worst totals in years, said Mr. Mumford.

The Tweed district covers 25 townships from Roslin to Denbigh and east from [illegible] to Sharbot — an area of 3,200 square miles.

Officially, the forest fire season extends from April 1 to Oct. 31.

But, with the exception of perhaps a dry spell in the next month when the forest floor is covered by falling leaves, the major fire threat to district bushland now has passed, said the official.

Up to Thursday, 143 fires had burned over 1,408 acres.

This compared with 63 fires and 200 acres in 1974.

The 10-year average for the district is 68 fires, but in August alone there were 45 outbreaks.

Biggest single factor in the cause of fires was campers, cottagers and others using the outdoors.

About one of every two outbreaks originated with campfires, which had not been fully extinguished, said Mr. Mumford.

Many campers may have believed they had properly extinguished camp fires, but because of tinder-dry conditions the fires smouldered unnoticed on the forest floor — to flare later.

The number of fires caused by lightning — usually about 10 per cent of the total — also doubled, estimated the official.

With rainfall below normal, the fire hazard reached a peak in mid-summer. But from early May to September dry weather caused problems in various parts of the district, said Mr. Mumford.

County Jobless Rate Higher Than Average

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Hastings County is experiencing 8.2 per cent unemployment rate — two per cent higher than the provincial average and one per cent higher than the national average, Canada Manpower figures revealed Thursday.

Jim White, manager of the Canada Manpower Centre in Belleville released figures Thursday which showed 2,400 area people were searching for work in August.

The 8.2 per cent unemployment figure was arrived at using a county labor market of 30,000 — a manpower approximation based on the 1971 census.

The figures apply to an area including Hastings County, Belleville and Ameliasburgh Township.

Jim Staveley, chairman of the Belleville and District Employment Committee, said he estimates 60 per cent of the unemployed live in the northern portions of Hastings County with the remainder coming from areas south of Highway 7.

Due to a slowdown of construction trades in the winter months, Mr. Staveley said all the indicators point to the unemployment situation worsening as winter closes in."

He urged members of his committee to "mull over" the situation and come up with some ideas to head off the employment decline.

Mr. Staveley said some relief will be the renewed exploration interest in the north for uranium deposits near Bancroft.

At Thursday's committee meeting, members mentioned the possibility of encouraging small manufacturing plants to locate in northern townships, though Mr. Staveley said there are "problems" for firms locating too far north away from major transportation links.

"I think we should be looking at the construction trades and look for ways to stimulate the residential construction industry," he said.

The employment picture will be the key issue at the committee's Oct. 23 meeting, he said.

Rape Suspect Committed For Trial

A 21-year-old Belleville man charged with rape elected trial by county court judge and jury during a preliminary hearing in provincial court Thursday.

Lynn William Parker of 230A West Moira St. was committed for trial during the fall county court sessions. A spokesman for the crown attorney's office said today his case will be heard sometime in the two or three weeks following Nov. 12.

Parker has been charged with rape in connection with an incident July 10 involving a 22-year-old Chatham woman.

The incident occurred near a foot path in a wooded area between Tracey St. and Bell Blvd.

Park All Snowplows Suggests Social Worker

Parking the county's snow plows is one man's solution to handling Hastings County unemployment problems.

Don Porritt, a county social services worker, told the Belleville and District Employment committee, "the county should park its plows and get people on welfare and unemployment insurance out with shovels."

He said he didn't know if it would be more expensive "but we're going to have to pay them anyway, they might as well be working."

"A lot of them say they'll work if I find them a job," said Mr. Porritt. On the other hand, "why work if I can get UIC or welfare? That seems to be the attitude of some."

Commission to Erect New Shelters

The Belleville Transit Commission will erect two new shelters for use by its passengers waiting for buses on Pinnacle St. and on Wellington St., near the new 81-unit senior citizens apartment building.

Commissioners opted Thursday to build the shelters before winter when passengers must wait in the cold for buses.

It means that the BTC will lose a third of a 75 per cent subsidy on erection of the Pinnacle St. shelter, to be built on the corner of Campbell St., next to the library.

Cost for the Pinnacle shelter (about $1,000) is subsidized 50 per cent when funds are taken from the BTC capital budget, as they must be if the shelter is erected this year.

BTC manager Lewis McMullin said, if built next year, the erection costs would have been subsidized 75 per cent.

Erection of the Pinnacle shelter fulfills an agreement the BTC made with the Downtown Board of Management. Commissioners agreed to a Pinnacle shelter in return for board payment for a shelter on Front St.

No seats or other "luxuries" will be included in either shelter, according to Mr. McMullin.

"Any time you put any comforts in them, they become used by people that aren't riding the buses at all," he told commissioners.

In Winnipeg, the transit commission installed electric heaters with the result that "winos, and everybody else, collected in there" and passengers didn't use shelters, he said.

Damage Minor

A 29-year-old Frankford area man has been charged with following too close in connection with a two-vehicle collision Thursday on County Rd. 4, a quarter of a mile south of Highway 401 in Sydney Township.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville identified the man today as Francesco Scardio of RR 2, Frankford.

A passenger in one of the vehicles, Dorothy Wiersma, 42, of RR 3, Trenton, was treated and released from hospital.

Constable Garnet Brown estimated $150 damage to each vehicle in the 5.35 p.m. mishap. The truck is owned by P and P Masonry Ltd. of RR 2, Trenton.

Cablevue Unaffected By Ruling

Although cable television companies in the Toronto-Hamilton area have been ordered by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) to delete commercials from American TV broadcasts and substitute them with Canadian material, Roy Taylor, manager of Cablevue (Quinte) Ltd., said Friday this policy would not affect the Belleville company.

"We aren't certain how this will affect us locally, as we are not involved with the Toronto cable system."

The CRTC said Thursday cable companies should report on the result of implementing this policy by the end of this year.

The policy was studied May during public hearings held in Hamilton when the CRTC concluded deletion and substitution was necessary to serve Canada.

U.S. Networks are protesting vigorously and threatening to 're-orient' (jam) their transmitters, if they can, to prevent signals from coming to Canada.

CRTC, who licences cable companies, decided the stations could carry their present services until Toronto's CN Tower comes into use.

Lahr City Manager To Visit City for Week

The chief administrative official of Belleville's twin municipality will start a week-long visit to the city Sunday.

A program of receptions and various events is planned to welcome Adolf Kohler, city manager of Lahr, West Germany.

Herr Kohler and his wife will arrive in Ottawa Sunday where they will be met by Belleville city manager Wilbur Purcell.

They will stay at the Purcell home until Tuesday. For the remainder of the visit they will be guests at the home of former mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Among the special events planned during the Kohler stay are — A houseboat tour Monday with members of city council through the Murray Canal to Presqu'ile Bay for fishing. On return, a reception at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club with councillors and members of the Belleville-Lahr student exchange committee.

On Tuesday the city manager will be a guest on CJBQ's Tom and Ted show followed by a railway car dinner at the Canadian National station.

On Wednesday he will meet with Lahr exchange students currently in the city at the home of Ald. Jean Smith and join an evening reception at the home of Ald. George Zegouras, one of the city councillors on the Belleville-Lahr friendship flight in early summer.

Thursday includes lunch at CFB Trenton; a slide show and reception at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club to which participants on the friendship flight are invited.

Sunday — Private lunch given by Mayor Ben Corke.

On Monday the Kohlers will return to Lahr from Toronto.

Transit Commission Takes Hard Line on Dial-a-Bus

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

A dial-a-bus service in Belleville would have a murderous impact on the already deficit ridden Belleville Tranit Commission, commissioner Pete Acton said Thursday.

It won't carry itself and will increase the corporate deficit," Mr. Acton said. It's beyond reach for the taxpayers."

The commissioner's comments were prompted by discussion in city council this week over problems faced by the disabled in their attempts to achieve mobility in Belleville.

Cheshire Home director Irene Sansom wrote to council saying transportation in the city for the handicapped is "non-existent" apart from a few private vehicles.

During discussion, Ald. Jean Smith indicated the BTC is aware of the problem and might make available information on a dial-a-bus system.

A newspaper report of her comments prompted the ire of Mr. Acton who said it's murder to allow it (dial-a-bus issue) to smolder."

I feel that you should stifle it," he told commissioners.

Reaction to the dial-a-bus suggestion was strongly negative Thursday with commissioners citing high costs, and duplication of existing service as marks against such a system.

Chairman Marylea Burtt said What you're doing is taking over as a taxi service."

She said the only possible uses of a dial-a-bus service would be at night, or Sundays for runs back and forth to Belleville General Hospital. (No bus service exists Sundays.) A shuttle service from, for example, Foxboro to the closest existing-service terminal at the Quinte Mall, might also be possible.

To do it in a city that's small, and already is covered, is too expensive," Mrs. Burtt said. We looked at it two years ago."

She said Ald. Smith is a little off-base with her scheme," and striticized city council for lack of consultation with the BTC on transit-related subjects.

It was estimated that costs per dial-a-bus vehicle would be between $12,000 and $14,000.

It's not economically feasible and right now we're trying to control our deficit," Mrs. Burtt said.

She suggested the Cheshire Home should look into provision of a bus equipped to handle the handicapped through fundraising groups.

She suggested the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund as a possible source of money.

The BTC would assist in helping them to obtain a vehicle," said the chairman, but it cannot consider obtaining one strictly for use by the disabled.

Study of Bus Service Put Back Four Months

A city-wide survey of the Belleville transit system by Loyalist College students has been postponed for four months and now is expected to start in January, the Belleville Transit Commission learned Thursday.

Lack of sufficient student manpower was cited by BTC chairman Marylea Burtt as the main reason the college has opted to undertake a pilot survey this year and save any more extensive poll of passengers for 1976.

The chairman said discussion with a Loyalist marketing class instructor revealed more students than the 10 in marketing would be needed to conduct a large survey.

Commissioners want to guage passenger reaction to bus service and routes, fares, and driver conduct in the survey. It would likely be compiled through interviews and a questionaire handed to the transit-using public.

Mrs. Burtt said the pilot survey will be geared to asess the nature of the larger survey.

Smashed

Vandals were active in Belleville again this week, city police reported today.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said four windows were smashed with rocks at Belleville Auto Electric Ltd. at 84 Grier St. sometime late Wednesday or early Thursday. Total value is estimated at $10.

Taking Shelter

Belleville high school students duck out of the rain into a transit commission shelter on Front St. while waiting for a bus to take them to school today. Two new shelters will be erected in the city this year — one on Pinnacle St. and another on Wellington St.

Annual Count Almost Complete

The annual municipal enumeration is in its final phase.

Leighton Thompson, regional assessment commissioner Thursday expected the enumeration to be completed by the end of this week, or early next week in the Quinte district.

Mr. Thompson heads the revenue ministry's regional assessment office at Trenton that serves Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland counties — an area with a population close to 200,000.

Since Sept. 19 some 240 enumerators have been canvassing households in the district, gathering data used for a variety of purposes.

These include: Public and separate school taxes, jurors lists, distribution of provincial grants to local governments.

The enumeration also is used as a census in the preparation of municipal voters lists.

Lost in Work

Johnsen Stonemason employees are lost among the scaffolding surrounding the walls of St. Thomas' Anglican Church as work continues to rebuild the church, gut'ed by fire April 30. About 10 men work on the site daily using limestone quarried from a pit in the Niagara Peninsula. Workmen now have about 80 tons of stone sitting around the hill-top church and hope to finish capping the walls by winter.

Training Courses Tailored To Meet Employer Needs

Regional training development officers will accellerate the availability of special training programs to area employers, the Belleville and District Employment Committee was told Thursday.

John Legate, the development officer working with Loyalist College and the Belleville Canada Manpower office, said in the past it could have taken as much as two months to have a special course adjudicated and approved by Toronto civil servants.

Now, with Mr. Legate and several others stationed in communities around the province, the waiting time should be reduced to two weeks, he said.

The program invites employers to approach manpower with special staff needs — and if no personnel is available, Mr. Legate will organize a training course that ultimately will fill the position.

He described the training course as a three-phase approach — combining classroom teaching, simulated working conditions and finally on-the-job training.

About 38 companies have already approached manpower and Mr. Legate for course preparations.

The training venture is jointly sponsored by the federal and provincial governments and is considered "a good deal" for the employer.

Instructors' fees (to a maximum of $100) will be covered by the government on behalf of the company and a maximum of 85 per cent of the student's wages will be provided with the firm picking up the remainder. "It's a good investment for the employer," said Mr. Legate.

However, with a development officer in the community, "not only will we be able to provide quicker service but we will be able to more effectively monitor the program to guard against abuses," said Mr. Legate.

The program is designed to train an individual to 50 per cent productivity — with the remainder to be gained through practical, on-the-job experience, he said.

Mr. Legate took over the provincial position Sept. 1.

Lindy Turns To Farming

LINDY McDANIEL

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Relief pitcher Lindy McDaniel will bid farewell to baseball at the end of this season after 21 years in the major leagues.

McDaniel, who has pitched the last two seasons for Kansas City Royals, announced his retirement Thursday. He said he will go into farming with his father at the family farm near Hollis, Okla.

"Baseball has been about the only life I have ever known," McDaniel said. "It has given me thrills to last a lifetime, financial security, the opportunity to see the United States from coast to coast, the chance to meet thousands of people and make many new friends."

McDaniel said he is retiring because of loss of pitching effectiveness, he feels he is not performing a vital role and he has been in professional baseball long enough.

He set a National League record by pitching in 225 consecutive games without committing an error from June 16, 1964, to May 6, 1968. He retired 32 consecutive batters over a four-game span in 1968. At the time, that tied an American League record.

Problem for Coaches But Fans Enjoy Rule

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Football League coaches who have to contend with the problems of stopping Johnny Rodgers or Larry Highbaugh may have mixed feelings about the new punt-return rule.

But there is no doubt it has altered the game significantly. And if attendance is any indication, the fans have taken to it.

The new rule permits blocking above the waist on punts although tacklers are still penalized if they fail to give five yards clearance until the punt-receiver touches the ball.

The statistics give a good idea of the results. During the entire 72-game schedule in 1972 only five returns of more than 25 yards were recorded.

Gord Paterson of Winnipeg Blue Bombers led all punt-returners with a 7.4-yard average and Dick Adams of Ottawa Rough Riders led in total return yardage with 608.

This year, after the first 44 games, there have been 43 punt-return runs of more than 25 yards. And Paterson's 7.4 average would be only 18th on the list.

Adams was the only player to return punts for more than 400 yards in 1974. This season there will be at least half a dozen. In fact, Rodgers, the Montreal Alouettes star, has already run punts back for 669 yards, easily exceeding Adams's total for the full 1974 season.

Of players who have returned 14 or more punts this season, 13 have averaged 10 or more yards.

The longest punt return last season was 51 yards by Merve Walker of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. This season there have been 11 returns of 50 or more yards, including Rodgers's 100-yard run against Edmonton Eskimos Tuesday night. That was the fourth punt-return touchdown this season compared with only one last year.

The rule change has prompted coaches to alter their strategy when facing such brilliant punt-return men as Rodgers, Highbaugh, the Edmonton Eskimos' defensive back, Al Marcelin of Ottawa, Lewis Porter of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Tom Campana of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

In tight situations, tacklers have been instructed to ignore the five-yard restraining zone and hit the punt-return man as soon as he catches the ball. The theory is that a 10-yard penalty is better than taking a chance on a long runback.

The rule isn't the only reason for increased attendance but, insofar as it has generated extra excitement, it must be considered a factor.

Attendance is up by 92,626 at the 44-game mark and seven single-game records have been broken—three at Toronto and two each at Edmonton and Ottawa. In addition, Calgary and Winnipeg have tied their capacity records twice.

Lamonica Retires

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) —The rumors and suspicions were put to rest Thursday—veteran quarterback Daryle Lamonica is retiring.

"I've officially retired from football," the 14-year pro, now with the World Football League's Southern California Sun, announced Thursday.

Lamonica, 35, hampered by injuries to his knee and coming off hernia surgery, appeared angered by stories he had left the team without permission.

"I told Hatfield last Wednesday I was finished with football," he said. Larry Hatfield is president of the WFL franchise, based in Anaheim.

"He asked if the club could announce it and I said, 'Fine, any way you like it.' And then I find out they're telling everyone that I'm absent without leave. I made it very clear I wasn't about to fly to Shreveport to play back there because of my knee."

SINGLETON HONORED

BALTIMORE (AP) — Outfielder Ken Singleton, acquired by Baltimore in an off-season trade with Montreal Expos, was named Thursday by the American League baseball team as the 1975 winner of the Most Valuable Oriole award. Singleton, who leads the Orioles with a .302 batting average, 175 hits, 37 doubles, 116 walks and 88 runs, received seven first-place votes and amassed 46 points on a 5-3-1 scoring system.

Orioles and Red Sox Can Do Without Rain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The two front runners head into the home stretch of the American League East Division baseball pennant race tonight, hoping for a clear track and no rain.

Scratched by bad weather for most of this week, both Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles are scheduled for twi-night doubleheaders as they start the last weekend of the regular season.

The Orioles, rained out of a doubleheader Thursday night with Detroit, will play two games with New York Yankees at Shea Stadium. The Red Sox, washed out of Thursday night's game with Cleveland, will play host to the Indians in a pair at Fenway Park.

Boston, with a 3½-game lead over Baltimore, has a magic number of four to clinch the last playoff spot in baseball. But if nothing is decided by Sunday, both teams have a list of possible makeup games for next week.

"I have a hunch the race will end by Sunday," said Alvin Dark, whose Oakland A's have clinched the American League West. "I anticipate playing Boston. I don't disrespect Baltimore. But with all those doubleheaders and games to be made up, things are going against them. It means they could be forced to use their fifth and sixth starters in some of the games—and that's a difficult situation."

Baltimore manager Earl Weaver doesn't quite agree, although he admits the siuation is a bit tenuous for the Orioles.

"It looks like Monday's game could come into focus," said Weaver, who would probably be forced to start a rookie if the Orioles have to play Chicago White Sox in a makeup game.

The White Sox beat the A's 8-2 and Minnesota Twins defeated Kansas City Royals 5-2 in the only American League games Thursday night.

In the National League, San Diego Padres beat San Francisco Giants 8-6.

Wilbur Wood pitched a five-hitter against a second-line squad of Oakland players, leading Chicago's victory over the West Division champions.

Wood, 16-20, was backed by a 13-hit attack which included three hits by Jerry Hairston, giving the outfielder seven hits in two games. Hairston doubled with one out in the first to start a two-run rally against Craig Mitchell, who also allowed three runs in the fourth in losing his major-league debut.

Craig Kusick hit a home run and a single and scored twice, leading Minnesota past Kansas City. Kusick's homer, his sixth of the season, led off the fourth inning and came off Paul Splittorff, 9-10.

The Twins, trailing 1-0, went ahead in the second on Kusick's single, Lyman Bostock's run-scoring double and Phil Roof's single. Jerry Terrell doubled for Minnesota in the fifth, went to third on a fly ball and scored on Dave Macy's groundout.

Willie McCovey hit his 22nd and 23rd home runs of the season and drove in three runs and Dave Winfield hit his 15th, leading San Diego over San Francisco. The victory sealed fourth place in the National League West for the Padres.

NFL Negotiations

Players Have 3 Options And None Is Sure Thing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National Football League players, overwhelmingly rejecting management's latest contract offer, now have three options: they can return to the bargaining table, continue to play without a contract or strike for the third time in 14 months.

Each of the possibilities, however, presents a danger.

If they return to the bargaining table, it is reliably reported that the owners would come back with a less inviting offer than the one now before the players.

If they continue playing without a contract, there is danger of a further split among the players and clubs, with the possibility of the pension plan going broke.

And if they strike again, they will further alienate the fans who voiced their disagreement at the previous walkouts and they'll lose 1-14th of their salaries for each missed game.

Despite these obvious dangers, the players' dissatisfaction with management's offer is mounting rapidly.

Of the league's 26 teams, 16 have voted to reject the new contract, only one has voted to accept it and the other nine have either not voted or have not announced their votes.

Through Thursday night, the total vote count against the offer was 470 to 75. Fourteen teams voted for rejection Thursday.

They included New England, 27 to 0; San Francisco, Washington, Oakland, Kansas City and New Orleans, each 43 to 0; Chicago, 41 to 0; Miami, 30 to 5; Cleveland, 30 to 11; Philadelphia, 24 to 18, and Detroit, 27 to 15.

Green Bay, Atlanta and St. Louis also voted against it, but did not reveal their exact vote counts.

Previously, Buffalo and Houston each had voted 43 to 0 to reject the offer.

Still to be counted were Dallas, Minnesota, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Denver, San Diego and the two New York teams—the Jets and Giants. However, it was learned that Los Angeles had voted for rejection, although player representative Jack Youngblood declined to disclose the results.

Only Cincinnati voted to accept, 26 to 13.

The vote against the contract was not a vote to strike. That must be done in a separate ballot. So far, none of the teams has announcid plans for a strike vote and all are expected to play their games this weekend.

Stabler Wins Battle

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Ken Stabler of Oakland Raiders won his battle Thursday to be freed from a seven-year $875,000 contract with the World Football League's Birmingham franchise.

The Alabama Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling which found that Alabama Football, Inc. had breached the contract which Stabler signed in 1974.

Stabler had asked to be released from the contract when the franchise failed to pay him a $40,000 balance for 1974.

He signed the contract a few months before his 1974 season in which he led Oakland to the Super Bowl and won the most valuable player award in the National Football League. He was to begin playing for the WFL when his Oakland contract terminated at the end of the 1975 season.

The Birmingham franchise had argued that it didn't have to pay Stabler the $40,000 balance because he didn't repay $50,000 which it had given him earlier for 1974.

The court, however, ruled that Alabama Football, Inc., had benefited from the signing of Stabler and that the quarterback "was under no obligation to restore the money paid to him."

HONDA RE-THOUGHT THE AUTOMOBILE AND CAME UP WITH THE FIAT 128

Well Almost

According to Honda, the Civic is "the automobile re-thought". The way we see it, what Honda came up with is sort of a cross between a bigger Austin Mini in its shape and a Fiat 128 in its engineering features.

In Fiat, Honda picked a winner to resemble. The Fiat 128 won eight Car of the Year awards in Europe. And won the Canadian Winter Rally four years straight — something no other car has ever done.

In many ways, Fiat and Honda are remarkably alike. Both have front-wheel drive. A sideways-mounted engine. Independent suspension all 'round. Power-assisted front wheel disc brakes. And rack and pinion steering. But Honda chose to make the Civic shorter than the Fiat 128. It's also cheaper — by about $174*. And that isn't much when you think of what more you get in Fiat.

Like oodles and oodles of space. Both Fiat and Honda have more leg room up front than a Cadillac El Dorado but the 128 also has much more room in the rear — more than any leading small car. And lots of space for luggage — an enormous 13 cu. ft. (Ever seen a Honda trunk or a Honda back seat? Mmmmm.) All this fits in an over-all length only 11½ inches more than a Honda.

The Fiat 128 also give you big performance and safety plus—radial tires (Come to think of it, the extra value of radials eats up a big hunk of $174.) Plus a real honest-to-goodness 128 station wagon, rather than a hatchback. Plus a 4-door model. Plus a snazzy-looking coupe that really turns heads.

To sum up, if what you want in a car is something for two of you to tootle around town in, the Honda is a fine little car. (Then again, so is the Fiat). But if you like to have friends along from time to time — or even bigger kids — it's nice to make them more comfortable! And if you take to the highway weekends or whenever, the Fiat has space for four big people and their baggage. In short, it's an all-rounder — a town-and-country car. No doubt about it. The Honda is a trendy little car. But the Fiat 128 is still the champ. Come and take a drive. You'll see.

Minor Sports Benefits From Classic Hockey

When he was helping RCAF Flyers out of Ottawa capture the hockey gold for Canada in 1948 Olympic action, Orval (Red) Gravelle was, if memory serves, about 19 years old.

Ten years later, he was a member of the Levis, Quebec team which failed to stall Belleville McFarlands' drive to the Allan Cup. But he was a top operator for that Levis team, as I recall.

Now, with serious senior and intermediate play behind him; plenty of work as coach and later game official on his record, Red continues to take an active part in a sport he obviously had and has a great feeling for.

Yes, he's still playing hockey but now it's for the fun and recreation.

Sunday at Trenton Community Gardens, he'll lead a Trenton team against a squad from Ottawa in a benefit game which is being billed as "classic hockey".

Proceeds from this matchup of players who have passed their prime when it comes to hockey but retain plenty of the skills the sport requires, will go to minor sports and recreation in Trenton.

It's the first of what organizers hope will be a regular schedule of games with oldtimers from other communities. Since Belleville McFarlands are being revived, there's a natural opponent for the squad representing the neighboring community . . . and it's almost within skating distance.

Red needs no introduction to area sports fans and neither do many of the skaters in the Trenton lineup.

The roster is dotted with familiar names. And, truthfully, some of these fellows can't be termed oldtimers.

Former Belleville senior star Al Ferguson will play. Bert Garrett, a whiz in minor hockey and now a Trenton lawyer, is in the lineup.

Other familiar names are Roger Drake, Dr. John Bonn, Jim Steenburg, Pat Scott, goalie Wayne Bonter, Jim Jones, Austin Scott, Vince Steiner, Dr. Dan Murphy, Ted Levis, Tom Nigro, Bill Dickson and Tom Gauthier.

The club won't be lacking in numbers. Some 25 players are expected to suit up for the match.

Game time is 8 p.m.

• • • • •

SLICES — Sunday night will also mark the final preseason match for Belleville Bobcats of the Metro Junior B Hockey League. Visitors at Memorial Arena for the 8 15 p.m. game will be Kingston Voyageurs.

Tonight, Oshawa is in the city for a 9 p.m. contest with the Bobcats.

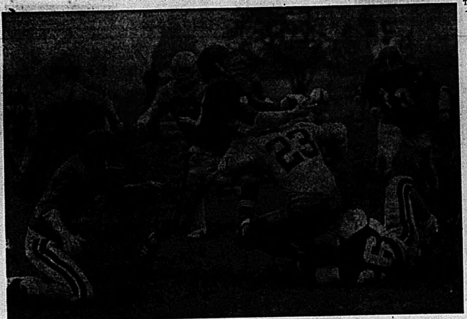
According to reports from Napanee, that town's entry in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A grouping has the welcome mat out for Belleville residents including goalie Steve Rexe (with Springfield in the American Hockey League last season) and defenceman Brian Coughlin (he did his playing for the International Hockey League columbus Owls in 1974-75).

Walt Gerow is back as coach of the Napanee Comets. Wayne McConnell, Ron Riley and Al Garrison are also attending practice sessions.

Comets meet Gananoque of the Ottawa District Hockey Association in a preseason match in Napanee, Sunday afternoon.

The club makes its first league start at home, October 12.



Hit 'Em High . . . . . . and Low

Teammates last season with Trenton High School Junior Tigers, Charlie O'Malley (23) and Steve Peterson (26) met again Thursday in Bay of Quinte High School Senior Football match at Bayside. O'Malley counted THS touchdown in team's 12-0 defeat of the Red Devils. Peterson, now with Bayside, gets some help from mate who appears to be looking for a head hold. Both teams put up stout defences in the wet going. Winners' other points came on four singles by Dave Lewis, and a safety touch.

Red Devils Blanked 12-0

Don't Write THS Tigers Off

Defence was the name of the game in Thursday's Senior Bay of Quinte High School Football contest between the Bayside Red Devils and Trenton High School Tigers at Bayside. The visitors picked up their first victory of the season, blanking Bayside 12-0.

Trenton scored only one major in the game, that one by Charlie O'Malley. It came in the late stages of the second quarter. All of the remaining points came on singles and one two point safety.

It was wet, cold and very slippery on the field which proved to be murder on the offences but a blessing for the defence. Turnovers played an important part in the victory for Trenton as their strong defence on several occasions nullified any scoring threat by the Red Devil's offence.

Bayside won the toss of the coin and elected to receive the ball, the boot by Dave Lewis, who also doubles as quarterback for Trenton, sailed into the end zone and before Bayside could make an attempt to run the ball out, a mob of Trenton players converged on the ball carrier.

Rob Carr and Rob Oliver, two of the more aggressive performers on the Trenton defence, looked especially sharp in reading the plays of their opponents. They continually broke through the line, and several times managed to sack Bayside quarterback Gary Savoy.

Bayside's defence also looked strong as they were able to break through the front line Ray Pattison set up the of the Trenton club at will on some occasions. At one point in the second quarter Trenton after a punt return, had possession of the ball at the Bayside 12 yard line, but were unable to manage more than a single point on the attempt.

Greg Hendricks got the call game's only touchdown, running a kickback 40 yards to the Bayside four yard line. O'Malley with good second effort was able to drive over the goal line for the score.

The conversion attempt was missed and the half ended with Trenton out in front by 9-0.

Doug Misner and Bob Berry looked impressive on the defensive line of the Red Devils, with Misner also picking off a sure touchdown pass right out of the hands of a Trenton receiver in the first half.

on a good number of the Trenton plays and gained valuable yardage, usually the hard way, through the middle.

In the second half of play Trenton added to their score but neither team was able to mount much of an offensive threat. Both clubs appeared to be content with letting the defence do the work and in the case of the Trenton team, win the game.

Tigers will have their work cut out for them this Tuesday when they will take on the league leaders, Quinte Saints who are undefeated so far.

Schuette Injured In Car Accident

OTTAWA (CP) — Tom Schuette, 30, an offensive guard with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League, was in fair condition in Civic Hospital today after a one-car accident early today.

Provincial police said Schuette was a passenger in a car which went out of control on the rain-slicked Queensway and struck a cement pillar holding a direction sign.

The Queensway is part of Highway 17 through Ottawa.

Police said the car was torn apart. It was driven by Susan Regnier, 24, of nearby Vanier. She was in critical condition in Civic Hospital.

Police said one witness told them Schuette walked to the ambulance. But Miss Regnier was trapped in the car and had to be freed by police.

Schuette began his ninth year with the Riders this year He has been with the team for two Grey Cup wins and was to play Saturday against Toronto Argonauts.

Espo Hasn't Lost Touch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito, who has led the National Hockey League with more than 70 goals a season for the last six years, is showing every indication that his scoring pace won't slacken in 1975-76.

The Boston Bruins star centre scored four power-play goals Thursday night in an 8-3 pre-season victory over New York Rangers, pushing his total to nine goals in four exhibition games.

"It's a cliche, but I've got to say it—when you're hot you're hot," said Esposito who wore a microphone during the game which was filmed for an educational television program.

"I just hope they got that last goal on film," he said. "That's when I put the puck between the defencemen, got hit, went down on one knee and flipped the thing over the goaltender. I need that film for my hockey school to show the kids how it's done."

In Thursday's other NHL exhibitions, Buffalo Sabres beat Pittsburgh Penguins 6-4, Los Angeles Kings defeated New York Islanders 6-2 and Minnesota North Stars tied Atlanta Flames 3-3.

The World Hockey Association pre-season schedule in North America opens tonight with Phoenix Roadrunners meeting Houston Aeros at Seattle. Toronto Toros and Winnipeg Jets, already into pre-season activity against European clubs, both lost matches Thursday.

The Jets dropped a 6-1 decision to the Czechoslovakian national team in Prague while the Toros lost 3-1 to Timraa Elite in Timraa, Sweden.

Esposito snapped a 2-2 tie with two second-period goals, both coming seconds after a New York player went to the penalty box. However, it wasn't anything unusual. He has 527 career goals, ranking fifth among the NHL's all-time leaders.

"Esposito has been working particularly hard in training," Boston coach Don Cherry said. "He's down to about 211 pounds. After tonight, he must be down to about 205, the lightest he's been in a long time."

Ken Hodge, Dave Forbes, Andre Savard and Barry Smith scored the other Boston goals. Rick Middleton scored twice for the Rangers and Dale Lewis added one.

Oshawa Swamps Windsor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The line of Glenn Kirkham, Paul Gardner and Peter Vandemark gathered 12 points Thursday as Oshawa Generals defeated Windsor Spitfires 10-1 in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

Meanwhile, in Peterborough, Ottawa '67s battled Peterborough Petes to a 4-4 tie before a crowd of 2,615.

In Windsor, a crowd of 4,355 watched as Kirkham led the Generals with two goals and three assists. Gardner added a goal and three assists and Vandemark had a goal and two assists.

Alex Jones also scored twice for Oshawa, which took a 3-0 lead in the first period and stretched it to 7-1 at the end of the second. Brian Dillon, Brian Drumm, Frank Boyd and Glenn Knight rounded out Oshawa's scoring.

Rolly Hedges had the Spitfires goal.

Oshawa outshot Spitfires 40-23. Windsor served 23 of the games 38 penalty minutes.

An anxious Petes team had its passing game fall apart in the first period, allowing Ottawa to take a 3-0 lead on a power-play goal by Doug Wilson and a goal by captain Peter Lee

Ottwa carried its momentum into the second period when Larry Skinner scored, giving Ottawa a 3-0 lead.

The Petes began a rally in the second period with goals by Vic Battey, Roger Fife and Tony Cassolato in less than two minutes to tie the game.

John Wilson gave the lead back to Ottawa just after the middle of the second.

Peterborough failed to capitalize on a power play at the beginning of the third period but Glenn Wagner scored to tie the game at 9:21.

Action continues tonight with Oshawa at London, St. Catharines at Kitchener, Toronto at Ottawa, Peterborough at Kingston, Windsor at Sudbury and Hamilton at Sault Ste. Marie.

Quebecois Hang On

QUEBEC (CP) — Bruce Arena scored four goals to lead Montreal Quebecois to a 13-8 win over Quebec Caribous in the fourth game of their best-of-seven National Lacrosse League final series Thursday night.

Quebec now leads the series 3-1 with the fifth game in Montreal Saturday night.

Bill Sheehan and Dave Tasker scored two goals each for Montreal, while John McKenna, John Sheffield, Bruce Roundpoint, Ron Pinder and Wayne Finck added the others.

Bruce Murdock and Dave Durante scored twice each for Quebec before a record playoff crowd of 11,645. Travvis Cook, Glen Mueller, Brian Evans and Gord Osinchuk added the other Caribous goals.

Montreal, which held a 53-46 edge in shots on goal, led 6-4 after the first period and scored four unanswered goals in the second to pull away.

JOHN FERGUSON

Ferguson Likes Habs' Approach

MONTREAL (CP) — John Ferguson, who built an eight-year National Hockey League career on his role as policeman for Montreal Canadiens, said Thursday he is glad to see the team adopting an aggressive attitude—but they do not need it to win.

Ferguson was commenting after Montreal's exhibition game last Sunday night in Philadelphia against the defending Stanley Cup champion Flyers. The game was called with more than two minutes remaining because of a benches-clearing, 10-minute brawl.

"Philly now realizes the Canadiens have taken a position where they aren't going to take a back seat to anybody when it comes to intimidation on the ice," Ferguson said.

"They've proven—with guys like Larry Robinson, Pierre Bouchard, Doug Risebrough and now even Rick Chartraw—that they're not going to get pushed around without fighting back.

"And I believe that's good, because to be a consistent winner you've got to match the opposition with bodycheck for bodycheck as well as matching them in whatever else they may try to throw at you. A player welcomes the knowledge that if there's real trouble he can count on his team-mates for help," Ferguson said.

"But I must emphasize the Canadiens don't really have to play that way to win. They've got enough over-all talent to do very well without it."

Third Loss For Canadians

BOGOTA, Colombia (CP) — Mexico qualified for the finals of the world women's basketball championships with a 71-53 win Thursday night over Canada's national team.

The loss was Canada's third in the tournament and relegated the team to consolation play.

High scorer for the Canadians was Chris Critelli of St Catharines, Ont., with 12.

Coach Brian Heaney of Halifax wasn't discouraged with the performance of the Canadian team.

"I think in all three games in this opening round, we lost to three excellent teams," said Heaney. "We were simply soundly beaten by better basketball teams."

TERRY HARPER

Harper To Fight Trade

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Terry Harper, captain of Los Angeles Kings last season, will fight in court to void a trade by the National Hockey League team sending him to Detroit Red Wings.

Harper, through his lawyer, Phil Kelly, said Thursday he signed a two-year contract with the Kings June 13 with assurances he would be playing for the club. Also included was an option clause for his services for an additional year.

Twelve days later, he was traded to Detroit in the deal that brought Marcel Dionne to the Kings.

"We feel there was international misrepresentation," Kelly said of the contract with Harper, who had played out his option.

"We are going to federal court with a suit against the Kings, owner Jack Kent Cooke, his California Sports Inc., all of the National Hockey League franchises and NHL President Clarence Campbell."

Kelly said the suit will ask that the contract be voided and the 35-year-old player be declared a free agent.

Cougars Launch Lawsuit

VICTORIA (CP) — Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League have launched a lawsuit Thursday claiming damages for the loss of defenceman Gordie Roberts, signed to a contract this week by New England Whalers of the World Hockey Associatin.

Roberts, who will be 18 Oct. 2, played for the Cougars last season and attended training camp here this month before leaving for his home in Detroit last week.

Pat Ginnell, owner-manager of the Cougars, said the loss of the American-born defenceman is "a major blow to us, particularly since he was on a legal contract with us."

Robests signed a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association playing card last year and the standard WCHL player contract, he said.

The Whalers said since Roberts is a United States citizen, he is not subject to the CAHA rules or to an unwritten agreement between the three major junior hockey leagues in Canada and the WHA in which the WHA agreed not to offer a professional contract to any player under 20 years of age.

Ginnell said he would allow Roberts to rejoin the Cougars because he believes that Roberts was "pressured" into signing with the Whalers.

WHA executives have scheduled a meeting in Toronto Monday to discuss the Roberts signing. Vice-president Bud Poile said the signing was "in direct violation of a WHA bylaw."

NHL Openers On October 7

MONTREAL (CP) — The 59th National Hockey League schedule will begin Tuesday, Oct. 7, with one game and close Sunday, April 4, with all 18 teams in action, the league announced Thursday.

The lone opening night clash will see Pittsburgh Penguins travel to Landover, Md., to meet Washington Capitals.

The next night, New York Rangers will be at home to Chicago Black Hawks, New York Islanders visit Kansas City Scouts, California Seals take on the Flames in Atlanta, Montreal Canadiens play host to Los Angeles Kings, Detroit Red Wings are at home to St. Louis Blues and Vancouver Canucks visit Minnesota North Stars.

Boston Bruins, Buffalo Sabres and Philadelphia Flyers, defending Stanley Cup champions, have their openers Oct. 9 with the Bruins playing Montreal, the Sabres meeting the Red Wings and the Flyers entertaining Washington.

The Islanders first home game is Oct. 12 against the Kings and the same night, Toronto Maple Leafs begin their schedule by playing Chicago Black Hawks at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Chicago's first game at home is the next night against Vancouver and the Canucks play in front of their hometown crowd for the first time against Washington Oct. 12.

Other home openers are Kansas City at St. Louis Oct. 14, Washington at Los Angeles Oct. 15 and Washington at California Oct. 17.

The annual NHL all-star game is set for Philadelphia Jan. 20.

There will be less over-all travel by the clubs this season. In 1974-75, the 18 clubs travelled 850,678 air miles, but this season, they are expected to travel 833,015 air miles, a reduction of 17,663.

The 1975-76 season encompasses 171 calendar days, of which only 17 will not have at least one game and 15 of those days are Mondays. There are 32 dates on which there are five games; 28 with three games; 25 with six; 21 with two; 17 with four; 15 with seven; 13 with one; 10 with eight and two with nine—Dec. 17 and April 4.

A total of 175 games are scheduled for Saturdays and 148 for Sundays.

Wednesday is the busiest week night with 141 games. There are 87 Tuesday games, 84 on Thursdays, 71 of Fridays and 14 on Mondays.

The only team with at least one game on each day of the week is Montreal. The Canadiens have 20 Saturdays, six Wednesdays, five Sundays, three games each on Mondays and Tuesdays, two on Fridays and one on a Thursday.

New York Rangers, with the exception of one Tuesday and one Friday, play all their home games on Wednesdays (17) and Sundays (21).

BOBBY ORR

Bruins Miss Bobby

BOSTON (AP) — What does the loss of injured defenceman Bobby Orr for the first few weeks of the National Hockey League season mean to Boston Bruins?

"I even miss him on the bus," says coach Don Cherry.

"We've just got to go out and play our best," high-scoring Phil Esposito says. "Bobby Orr is the greatest player in the game, but if he quit tomorrow the rest of us would still have to go out and play. We've got jobs to do and we get paid to go out and do them."

Meanwhile, Orr is recuperating at Massachusetts General Hospital from surgery on his left knee for the fourth time since 1968.

Sport Briefs

AFFECTS TALKS

BOSTON (AP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr's knee surgery is figuring into his contract negotiations with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, Orr said Wednesday. The surgery was performed Saturday for removal of bone chips and calcium. Orr said talks have not been progressing smoothly and "I hope this snag isn't because of the knee. The knee is coming along nicely and the doctor is very happy about it."

THREATEN SUIT

MILAN, Italy (Reuter) — Stefano Anzi and Giuliano Besson, former Italian Olympic skiers, are threatening to take the Italian Ski Federation and Olympic committee to court to force the organizations to put them back on Italy's Olympic team. Their lawyer said they were dismissed because they had been acting as unofficial shop stewards for the team, pressing for more money.

SEEKS FUNDS

MONTREAL (CP) — Brian O'Neill, executive director of the National Hockey League, said Thursday that San Francisco businessman Mel Swig is having difficulty producing a $1.5-million guarantee for purchase of California Seals. Swig says two potential partners backed out because of revised tax laws.

BILL CLEMENT

Clement Capitals' Captain

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Milt Schmidt, general manager and coach of Washington Capitals, announced Thursday that Bill Clement has been named captain of the second-year National Hockey League team.

Clement, 24, a native of Buckingham, Que., replaces defenceman Doug Mohns who retired at the end of last season.

Clement came to the Capitals from Philadelphia Flyers in a deal last June.

The Capitals players also voted Clement as the team representative in the NHL Players' Association, the same position he held last year with the Flyers.

Clement, a centre, scored 21 goals last season for the Flyers who won their second consecutive Stanley Cup.

LOSES THIRD MATCH

BUCHAREST (CP) — The Canadian men's volleyball team lost its third consecutive match Thursday, dropping a 3-1 decision to Romania. The scores were 15-8, 13-15, 15-12, 15-7. The Canadians lost 3-0 to the same team Wednesday following a 3-0 setback to Romania on Tuesday.

Warning from Bassett For Toronto Toros

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros' season ticket sales are down 50 per cent and the team president warned Thursday that his players had better start earning their jobs or they won't have any

John Bassett, president of the World Hockey Association club, was commenting on reports he has received that some of his veteran players are not producing during the team's pre-season tour of Sweden and Finland.

"Unless some of the guys that are paid high salaries realize they have to play the game, they will be sitting on the bench or in their living rooms," said Bassett.

"I'm sick and tired of the whole affair. The only kids that are doing anything over there are the young guys. The veterans haven't shown well."

Bassett said he thinks the team's poor showing last season was one reason for the decline in season ticket sales.

GET PERMANENT PROTECTION WITH AN ANNUAL CHANGE.

Many people think a modern coolant can stay in the cooling system permanently—or at least two or three years.
It's true that a coolant will give you anti-freeze protection year after year, as long as it isn't diluted, and your cooling system doesn't leak.
But it won't protect against corrosion that long.
Exhaust gases can escape through a leaky cylinder-head gasket into the cooling system. When that happens, the gases turn to acids, which weaken rust inhibitors and hasten corrosion of metal parts.
For this reason, you should never leave your coolant in the cooling system too long—even when it's PRESTONE II.
How often should you change?
Recommendations in car owners' manuals may vary.
We say once a year.
Some of you may think we say that just to sell more coolant. Others may think we're being perfectionists.
But we've been working with coolants and engine cooling systems since 1927. And our experience says that the way to avoid corrosion and the expensive damage it can cause is to invest in two gallons of PRESTONE II every year.
